FOREWORD

This first issue of the University of Richmond Law Notes inaugurates a service by the Faculty of the Law School which we hope will be of some value to the lawyers of Virginia. If the bar thinks the undertaking worthwhile it will become a permanent publication,—perhaps enlarged in scope and volume.

The Law Notes will be devoted to Virginia law. It will contain discussions of practical problems which are thought to be of current interest to the profession. Presented in this issue—purposely a modest beginning—are five brief articles, each prepared by a member of the Faculty. The authors have sought to select topics of concern to the practicing lawyer, and have sought to present the material in an easy-to-read style with a minimum of reference. There are no footnotes.

Through the courtesy of the University of Richmond Law School Association copies of this issue are being distributed to all alumni of the Law School. We earnestly invite your comments and suggestions concerning this new project.

WILLIAM T. MUSE, Dean
