FOREWORD

The Richmond Journal of Global Law & Business is proud to present its Winter 2002/Spring 2003 issue. Founded in the Fall of 1998, the Journal was the student complement to the Center for Global Law and Business at the University of Richmond School of Law. Since that time, the Journal has branched out and is now an independent and leading organization at the T.C. Williams School of Law. The Journal features articles on international law and business topics by leading scholars and practitioners as well as notes and case comments written by Journal members.

On October 25, 2002, the Journal hosted its annual Fall Symposium, "Corporate Governance in Emerging Markets of the Global Village." The symposium brought together scholars from across the globe who were able to educate those in attendance as to the relevance of corporate governance in today's world. Notably, the symposium included a direct video-conference link with Ellen Dry, a global businesswoman from the U.S. Embassy in Oman. This link allowed participants to interact with Ms. Dry in real-time. In the following issue of the Journal are the papers which resulted from the event, as well as other scholarly articles on point. The views presented in these articles represent ideas and philosophies which are both educational and enlightening.

The Journal has also made great technological strides over the past academic year and can be found on the World Wide Web. The Journal site can be found at <http://law.richmond.edu/global>. From there, users may learn more about the Journal and view a digitally archived copy of the symposium.

The Journal could not have achieved such unprecedented success without the help of numerous individuals and organizations who supported us along the way, both in planning and hosting the symposium, as well as in publishing this issue. The Journal would like to thank Dr. Stephen Davis, Jim McCauley, Ellen Dry, Hani K. Findakly, Rhoda H. Karpatkin, Mike Lubrano, Alexander Berg, and David Domes for their participation in the symposium. As well as Professor Azizah Y. al-Hibri for her support throughout the symposium and for serving as moderator. The Journal also thanks co-sponsor of the event The Richmond Quest, along with GE Financial, Prudential Door & Window Co., Inc., Southern Tool Manufacturing Co., Swisher International, Inc., Jepson School of Leadership of the University of Richmond, Robins School of Business of the University of Richmond, and T.C. Williams School of Law for their sponsorship of the symposium. Thanks also to the following student organizations: Alliance of Gay & Lesbian Law Students, Black Law Student Association, International Law Student Association, Multi-Ethnic Law Student Association, and Women Law Students Association. The Journal thanks Dr. Davis, Mr. McCauley, Ms. Dry, Ms. Karpatkin and Mr. George White for their contribution to this issue, as well as Philip M. Stupak for his student comment. In addition, the Journal wishes to thank Anne Jacobson and Angela Schettine of the Department of Alumni Relations for the Law School for their belief in the Journal and the symposium. Lastly, the Journal would like to extend its heartfelt gratitude to the Staff and members of the Editorial Board for the dedication and commitment to the Journal and its success.
