Following a reception for students and faculty to honor the extraordinary success of our National Moot Court Team's sweep of the Regional Competition, I was chatting with my administrative assistant, Ms. Shirley Hinkson, about the high quality of our student body. During our conversation Shirley asked, "Given the fact that all law students are quite bright, are students at the other law schools where you've taught as nice, as appreciative and as loyal as UR students?" In typical law professor fashion, my affirmative response was so qualified by references to law school location, student body size, demographics and the like that Shirley never received a clear answer to an interesting question.

Reflecting on the issue, I have concluded that we have a remarkable student body at the Law School. In their intellectual ability and academic achievement, our students do not differ from their colleagues studying law elsewhere. There are, however, certain collective personality traits that set UR students apart from many of their counterparts. The arrogance and aloofness observed in many law students are absent at UR. In their place, as Shirley noted, is deep appreciation for the efforts of faculty, staff and fellow students and a loyalty to the School and those who compose it.

What are the causes for these perceptible differences in student personality? In my short time at the Law School I have identified two factors. First, the caring and supportive attitude of faculty and staff encourages a corresponding response in students. The personification of this attitude, of course, is Jean Tarpley. Mrs. Tarpley's commitment to student well-being is truly legendary (and I've been lucky enough to have heard a number of those Tarpley legends retold). And there is in place a new generation of people dedicated to this caring approach and the continuation of the Tarpley tradition.

Alumni attract, encourage and serve as role models for new students. Thus, the second factor influencing our student body character is the attitude of the Law School alumni. My friend and predecessor, Tom Edmonds, told me I would be blessed with a loyal and caring group of Law School alumni. Judge Don Kent and other members of the Alumni Association Board, the volunteers who turned out for our telethons across the Commonwealth and the hundreds of graduates I met during Law Weekend have proved the accuracy of Tom's observation.

Efforts are being made to improve the Law School. Plans are being developed for a major renovation of the Law School building. The full-time faculty will be increased over the next few years, including three new professors to be added next academic year. A dramatic expansion of the Law Library's collection is expected. Added support for faculty scholarship is being put in place. A video about the Law School will be produced as part of a plan to step up recruitment efforts to insure continued quality of the student body as the applicant pool shrinks.

All of these steps are important and they will enhance the quality and the reputation of the Law School. As we make these changes, however, we must remember not (continued on page 3)
A Banner Year for Admissions

by Jean M. Tarpley

The law admissions process continues to flourish! Several years ago, the prediction was that a drop in applications to law schools would occur across the nation. Our numbers have continued to increase. This year our class was selected from 1127 applications.

For two years, the class has been larger than our normal size of 150-160. Due to the fact that the usual percentage of withdrawals of applicants did not take place, the result was a larger incoming class. This phenomenon apparently occurred in many other law schools. It appears, thus, that the interest in the study of law is not on the wane.

We have 172 students in the first-year class, representing 27 states and ninety-five colleges or universities. The average age is 25 years and forty-one percent of the 1987 entering class are women. Although our school has always accepted women in the law school, the numbers were few and far between until the late 60’s, when applications began to increase. Last year the percentage of women totaled 46, which is the greatest number, to date, enrolling in the entering class.

Over the years the number of out-of-state students has gradually increased. This year the percentage was 31.81.

Dean Harbaugh, who joined us in July, has begun the initiation of a number of ideas into our admission process by enlarging upon the utilization of our computer system, as well as pooling our human resources, all the way from the admissions staff to our alumni. You will hear more about this later.

Please continue to visit us at the school whenever you can, for this is very meaningful to all of us.

Recruiting Efforts Strengthen Law School

by Ann S. Gibbs

Several years ago The University of Richmond Law School administrators and faculty began to visit undergraduate institutions within Virginia and other states in order to speak with potential law school applicants and to encourage them to apply to The University of Richmond Law School. With a strong reputation within our own state of Virginia, but a decreasing population of law school applicants in general, this policy was initiated to insure that the reputation of The University of Richmond was made known to a variety of potential students. Over the years we have concentrated our recruiting within the east coast region and this year have expanded our travels to Chicago. As a result of the large numbers of law schools which recruit students through visits to campuses, many undergraduate institutions have organized pre-law clubs and sponsor law school fairs. Next year, a majority of our recruitment efforts will be aimed at attending law school fairs in the east coast and midwest regions.

The Law School Admissions Council sponsors four city-wide law forums in Boston, New York, Chicago and Los Angeles. For the past two years, The University of Richmond has been represented in Boston and New York. This year we also were represented in Chicago. These forums are held on Fridays and Saturdays and are directed at aiding the “older” potential students by affording them easy access to admissions officers and application materials. Over 100 law schools participate and thousands of potential applicants attend these forums. The University of Richmond Law School has been a favorite in New York and Boston. Several students enrolled in our current first and second year classes “discovered” us at these affairs and were impressed enough to visit our campus and finally to apply and enroll in our law school.

Recruiting has proven very rewarding in expanding our reputation and increasing the regional diversity of our student body. We hope to continue to broaden our recruiting horizons and spread the word from coast to coast that The University of Richmond Law School is truly one of the best!

to tamper with the fundamental character of the institution. The Law School must remain small and intimate, and the relationships between and among students, faculty and staff must continue to be personal and supportive. An attractive new building, a larger number of teachers and more books in the Law Library can reinforce but cannot replace the gracious character of the T.C. Williams family of students, staff and alumni.
Judge John F. Daffron, Jr. knew he wanted to be a lawyer since he was a young boy. Growing up in a family of lawyers in Chesterfield, Virginia, Judge Daffron graduated from Richmond College in 1961 and the T. C. Williams School of Law in 1964. After graduation, he decided to return to Chesterfield, rather than practice in metropolitan Richmond. He progressed quickly up the legal ranks in Chesterfield. From his law firm of Daffron, Winston and Jewett, Judge Daffron became a United States Magistrate in 1970, General District Court Judge in 1973, and in 1981, he became a Circuit Court Judge for the 12th Judicial Circuit of Virginia in Chesterfield. Today he serves as the 12th Circuit Court's Chief Judge.

When asked how the practice of law has changed in Chesterfield since he started, Judge Daffron noted that he has witnessed a regrettable decline in the professionalism of the legal profession. As recently as ten years ago, the practice of law in the Richmond area was informal. Lawyers on opposing sides cooperated with each other, and agreements were regularly confirmed by a handshake. Today, every agreement must be documented, because lawyers no longer trust each other. "To the extent that this occurs, it's sad," said Judge Daffron, "because it takes some of the fun out of the practice of law. You always have to be on your guard—not because of what you might overlook, but because someone might lead you into a trap." An old State Police training motto states, "You can be as tough as nails, but still be a perfect gentleman." Judge Daffron emphasizes that zealous, active, and assertive representation of a client is not inconsistent with a courteous, dignified, and professional attitude.

Judge Daffron, however, is not a person who offers complaints without also offering solutions to a problem. At the local level, Judge Daffron meets with his fellow 12th Circuit Court Judges every Tuesday to discuss current trends in the law and the legal profession. He, along with Judge Merhige, Judge Wallace from Henrico, and Judge Nance from Richmond, among others, serve on the Richmond Bar Association's Committee that is investigating the discourtesy lawyers perceive between counsel, and discourtesy to the courts and judges. Judge Daffron also serves on a Virginia Bar Association Committee with similar goals.

On a national level, Judge Daffron has been Presidentially appointed (with Senate confirmation) to the State Justice Institute. The State Justice Institute is a private, non-profit organization whose purpose is to improve the administration of justice in state courts throughout the United States. To this end the organization administers grants to individual courts, state court systems, and persons and organizations, such as the National Center for State Courts in Williamsburg, whose goal is to improve the administration of justice.

The Institute will study and suggest improvements for judge and court personnel selection, training, and removal. It will investigate the types of cases in court, how they should be tried, and whether they should be in court. For example, Judge Daffron suggests that child...
Notes from the Law Library
by Susan B. English

On November 16, 1987, the Law Library joined a growing number of academic law libraries in adding telefacsimile transmission ("fax") to its interlibrary loan capabilities. Using equipment provided by Harris/3M, members of the Library staff now have the ability to transmit entire documents quickly over the telephone lines.

The primary use of the fax equipment will be to provide our attorney patrons with photocopies of articles and cases more quickly than is possible through conventional mail. Any attorney with telefacsimile equipment may request the library to send needed materials via telefacsimile. The Library will fill such requests within four hours of receipt if they are received by noon on a business day. A bill for the materials and for copyright royalties (where appropriate) is sent via telefax along with the materials. While attorneys are often able to wait for materials to arrive by mail, there are many occasions where "time is of the essence." When time is short, telefax is an ideal solution.

Since installing our telefax machine, we have discovered that it will be useful in ways that we did not anticipate. It will enable members of the faculty to participate more easily in their professional association work. Many association offices have fax equipment which means, for example, that faculty members are able to send documents quickly to association headquarters to be shared with others who are serving on an association committee.

For further information about our fax service, write to the Library or call (804) 289-8225. If you do not own a telefacsimile machine, you may wish to contact the Virginia State Bar to inquire about the special prices it offers members for such equipment.

(custody cases, which are determined by "the best interests of the child," are not suited to the adversarial system of battling attorneys. Lastly, the Institute will evaluate types of cases throughout the country, and see whether the end result of those cases meet the public's expectations of what is just and fair.

With Judge Daffron's assistance, the quality of the legal profession is improving. He believes that in the past few years, the quality of lawyers out of Virginia law schools has improved. Legal education increasingly stresses practical knowledge, through skills classes and clinical programs. A favorite phrase in the sixties was, "We'll teach you substantive law, but we won't teach you how to be a lawyer." Judge Daffron, himself, is helping to provide practical skills to law students. This year he is teaching Trial Practice and Advocacy here at the T. C. Williams School of Law. In the course, Judge Daffron exposes the students to situations lawyers frequently encounter, such as asking the court for a temporary support award in a divorce proceeding. The final project for each student is a mock trial, where students are the lawyers, and Judge Daffron presides over the proceedings in his familiar role of judge.

The quality of lawyers in Virginia is improving, according to Judge Daffron, and he notes,

"The lawyers who graduate from The T.C. Williams School of Law can hold their own with anybody, and that's a delight to see."
FACULTY FORUM

RONALD J. BACIGAL recently published two installments of the forthcoming biography of Judge Robert R. Merhige in the University of Virginia Journal of Law and Politics (school busing) and the Colombia Journal of Environmental Law (the Kepone incident).

W. HAMILTON BRYSON attended the annual meeting of the American Society for Legal History and the annual meeting of the Boyd-Graves Conference of the Virginia Bar Association. He recently published an article in the Virginia Circuit Court Opinions, Volume 8.

JOHN PAUL JONES received the 1987 Distinguished Educator Award from the University. Recipients are nominated by faculty, administrators, students and recent alumni. Professor Jones has published the following articles: "Administrative Procedure: Annual Survey of Virginia Law" in the University of Richmond Law Review; "Digest of Case Decisions by the Commissioner of the Department of Motor Vehicles Under the Virginia Motor Vehicle Dealer's Franchise Protection Act" for Virginia Bar Association's Committee on Administrative Law; "When Farmers Want Relief—The Litigation to Get FMHA Deferal for Rural Virginia." Professor Jones has been working on a project for the Virginia Bar Association to produce a digest of case decisions by the Virginia Board of Realtors. He also serves on the Committee of the Virginia State Bar on Lawyer Solicitation.

NINA R. KEStIN, formerly Nina R. Murphy, has resumed use of her maiden name.

DANIEL T. MURPHY was honored by the faculty at a reception on September 3rd. He was recognized by his colleagues for his leadership while serving as Acting Dean during the Dean Search. The Faculty presented Dean Murphy with an engraved silver tray.

ROBERT E. SHEPHERD, JR. has been appointed by the Rector of the University to serve on the Presidential Search Committee after nomination by the faculty, and appointed to serve as Chairman of the Screening Subcommittee of the Presidential Search Committee. He has been reappointed as Chairperson, Juvenile Justice Committee, Criminal Justice Section, American Bar Association; and reappointed as Chair, Commission on the Needs of Children, Virginia Bar Association. Professor Shepherd is author of the Juvenile Justice column for the magazine published by the Section of Criminal Justice for the American Bar Association in which he published the following articles: "Out of the Mouth of Babes: Handling Juvenile Confessions," Criminal Justice (American Bar Association, Summer, 1987); "The Right to Effective Counsel," Criminal Justice (American Bar Association, Fall, 1987). Professor Shepherd taught at the Law School's Summer Program at Emmanuel College of Cambridge University in England during the summer of 1987.

PETER N. SWISHER has recently co-authored a new casebook for the Matthew Bender Co. entitled Principles of Insurance Law. He is currently working on another casebook, scheduled to be published in early 1989, entitled Family Law: Cases and Materials. This book will also be published by the Matthew Bender Co. in New York.
Chief Justice Carrico Keynotes Scholarship Banquet

The Honorable Harry L. Carrico, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Virginia, gave the keynote address at the Annual Scholarship Banquet in October. More than 115 alumni, students and friends attended this event which recognized the law firms and individuals who sponsor scholarships and honors the recipients.

Justice Carrico was introduced by Dean Harbaugh and received a standing ovation. In his address, Justice Carrico spoke of a loss of professionalism in the legal community. He said that the declining confidence in the legal profession stems from a number of factors, “and the fault rests on our own doorstep.” Carrico urged the profession to work towards restoring the public perception of lawyers as “healers of the ills resulting from human conflict.”

Dean Harbaugh presented Justice Carrico the William Green Award for Professional Excellence. This award is named for Judge William Green who was one of the three original faculty members of the Law School and recognizes Carrico’s pursuit and consistent achievement of excellence as a lawyer and a judge.

Cambridge: The Perfect Summer Experience
by Ann Connelly and Eric Berger

Have you ever had the opportunity to do something that was "educational" and "worthwhile," but you didn’t take advantage of it because you assumed it would be boring? If so, you’re like a lot of other people, but luckier, because you can change all that with the University of Richmond’s Summer Program in Cambridge, England. Undoubtedly "educational" and "worthwhile," the Cambridge experience is, in the words of one of the T.C. Williams students who took advantage of it, "one of the best things you could do in your entire life."

Why does the program generate such heady praise? According to the brochure, for the past ten years it has afforded "students an opportunity to live and study in surroundings which will provide maximum exposure to and understanding of the English common law system." In other words, it is a unique way to study both British and American law and explore a country that has played such an important role in the creation and maturation of the United States. At Cambridge, law students from the United States are encouraged to take classes taught by British and American professors. Classes are held in Emmanuel College, (which was founded in 1584) and have included such courses as Domestic Relations, Products Liability, International Law, Comparative Public Law of the U.S. and U.K., Legal History, and Law of the European Community. Last summer, the latter four were taught by Cambridge professors, giving students an appreciation of the benefits of learning about common and European law from "in-house" experts. Finally, since the program fully conforms to A.B.A. accreditation standards, students take final exams, and the grades received are fully-transferrable.

According to past participants, the experience of living and traveling in Europe were equally educational. Participants in the Cambridge program hail from a number of American universities and are joined by Spanish, Japanese, and Italian students who also travel to Cambridge for summer study. Excellent lodging and meals are provided on the campus of Emmanuel College. One of last summer’s participants, Ginny McNeill, said her room "was a fantastic, huge single with a balcony overlooking the courtyard." Another student, Darlene Dozier, "lucked out" with a single suite that included a kitchen and living room.

Living in Cambridge is similarly advantageous for travel. A few T.C. Williams participants went on a five-week backpacking trek exploring eight European countries prior to the start of classes, and many more spent weekends during the program exploring the continent. Students travelling in England toured London, Dublin, Edinburgh (some stayed in a castle), Bath, Stonehenge, and Stratford-Upon-Avon. Other favorite spots included Paris, Barcelona, Heidelberg, the Alps (where getting a sunburn while skiing was a real worry), Athens, and especially Amsterdam. A few lucky students got to see the British Open and Wimbledon, too. Ginny McNeill added a few words of advice: "You should plan your trips ahead of time. There are so many little places to stay that are really worth visiting."

The two T.C. Williams professors involved last summer, Professors Shepard and Dark, also enjoyed their stay at Cambridge. "It’s a marvelous experience," Professor Shepard raved. "Our program is at one of the two great Medieval universities of England ... Participating helps to broaden perspectives a great deal." "I think the program is ideal for first years," Professor Dark added. "Second years usually have to look for employment, but I would still suggest that they split their summers between jobs and Cambridge. It will probably be a long time before they can get another experience like this." While Professor Shepard preferred to trace the legend of King Arthur (and the Hard Rock Cafe), Professor Dark spent her time exploring Cambridge and experiencing its traditions.

In summing up their experiences, the participants interviewed consistently echoed each other in saying that the Cambridge program was an experience that would not be forgotten soon and that could not be recommended enough. By combining unique experiences of academics and travel, the program allowed students to make the best of a great opportunity. "Every time we go to Cambridge," concluded Professor Shepard, a two-year veteran, "it simply whets our appetite to go back. We always discover so many things to do."
University Of Richmond Dominates Moot Court Competition

The Thirty-Eighth Annual National Moot Court Competition for Region IV was held in Richmond on November 20–21, 1987. Twenty-seven teams representing fourteen law schools from Virginia, Kentucky, West Virginia, and North Carolina participated in this event. Two teams of University of Richmond Law School students won top honors. The first team, Margaret M. Branham L’88, Steven M. Gombos L’88, and Donald J. Thornley L’88, won the Regional Competition. They defeated Wake Forest in the Quarter-Finals, William & Mary in the Semi-Finals, and University of Kentucky in the Finals. They will go to New York in January to participate in the National Competition. Donald J. Thornley also won the Best Advocate Award. The second team, Patrick N. Anderson L’88, Sharon M. Moon L’88, and Jim Walker L’88, won the Best Brief Award.

The National Moot Court Competition is sponsored by the Young Lawyers Committee of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York and the American College of Trial Lawyers. The Young Lawyers Section of the Virginia Bar Association is the Regional Sponsor for Region IV.

T.C. Williams To Host National Conference

The T.C. Williams School of Law is privileged to host the 34th annual National Conference of Law Reviews on March 23–27, 1988. The conference is designed to counsel incoming law review editors and to provide a forum for examining critically the role and function of law reviews. A series of seminars and panel discussions will allow for this exchange of ideas among the 150 expected representatives of student-edited legal publications.

Confirmed guest speakers include George Plimpton, former pro quarterback and author; Jeff McNelly, nationally syndicated cartoonist; Hon. Shirley Hufstedler, former Judge of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals and U.S. Secretary of Education from 1979 to 1981; and David Vernon, professor of law at the University of Iowa College of Law. Also expected are Judge DeLores Sloviter, of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals, and James C. Raymond, editor of College English.

The goal of NCLR is to assist student-edited law reviews in better serving the academic and professional legal community. Judges, scholars and professionals regularly rely upon law reviews. Notes and comments are used by lawyers as research tools and are cited in Supreme Court opinions.

“We are planning a first-rate conference,” said Jim Walker, co-chair and University of Richmond Law Review member. “It’s vital that editors get together and learn from outgoing editors. We want the nation’s law reviews to continue to be dependable resources for attorneys and judges,” Walker added.

Alumni and particularly former Law Review members are encouraged to assist with preparations for the conference. Events and meals are available for sponsorship. To make your tax-deductible contribution, or for more information, contact:

Judge Merhige Featured in 1987–88 Legal Forum Schedule

by V. Eileen Long

Legal Forum began its lecture year with a vibrant speaker and an outstanding figure in the field of law. The Honorable Robert R. Merhige, Jr., spoke to our students on professionalism on October 15 in the Business School Auditorium. The lecture was followed by a reception in his honor in the Student Lounge. Judge Merhige recently celebrated his twentieth anniversary of becoming a federal judge. Over the years, he has been involved in many controversial cases. For example, Judge Merhige ordered crosstown bussing to achieve Richmond school desegregation in 1970. During these desegregation cases, he became the object of demonstrations, and federal marshalls had to be assigned to protect him. In 1971, Judge Merhige ordered state prison officials to extend due process to convicts. In 1974 Judge Merhige ordered certain Watergate tapes made public, and in 1976, he levied the largest pollution fine against Allied Chemical Co. for contaminating the James River with Kepone pesticide. He is currently involved in the A. H. Robins bankruptcy reorganization. Judge Merhige has been honored by law schools, bar organizations, and citizen groups across the country. His reputation for deciding cases quickly caused him to be sent to try Native Americans in Wounded Knee, and taking depositions in a nuclear power case. Judge Merhige was also the first American Judge to hold court in England. Until recently, Judge Merhige taught a trial practice and advocacy clinic here at T.C. Williams. He is an enthusiastic speaker with an exciting career, and we welcome him to our school.

Former Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell has answered our request that he address our students. We do not have a positive response at this time, but he has invited us to communicate with him soon about coming to the law school. We are excited at the prospect, and sincerely hope he will be able to work us into his busy schedule.

Legal Forum is presently researching the possibility of sponsoring a General Assembly debate which will take place during the spring session of the legislature. The hot topic right now appears to be the lottery, but other issues may soon surface.

We are anxious to secure a commitment from a nationally prominent attorney, and are presently working out the details. Possibilities include F. Lee Bailey, William Kunstler (Chicago Eight trial, Native Americans at Wounded Knee), and Melvin Belli.

We will sponsor the reception in the spring for the annual Emroch lecture. Griffin Bell addressed our students and the community at the last Emroch lecture.

For the first time in recent years, Legal Forum has attracted a committee of students to assist with our activities and lecture plans. Any interested students are welcome to contact our Chairperson, Eileen Long, and our Co-Chairpersons, Fred Kaufman and Terry Ball.

Emroch Lecture

This year's Emroch Lecture has been scheduled for April 13, 1988. Irving Younger, Professor of Law at the University of Minnesota, will deliver the address. The lecture will be held in the Dennis Auditorium of the E. Claiborne Robins School of Business Building and begin at 4:00 pm. A reception will follow in Sarah Brunet Hall.

Mr. Younger is a native of New York City and was graduated Magna Cum Laude from Harvard in 1953. He attended New York University School of Law where he received his LL.B. in 1958. He holds Honorary Degrees from Lewis and Clark (1981) and McGeorge (1987).

Mr. Younger is the Marvin J. sonosky Professor of Law at the University of Minnesota, and has taught there since 1984. He was an Adjunct Professor at Georgetown University Law Center from 1981-1983.

On-Campus Interviews Fall Semester, 1987

By Beverly D. Boone

Eighty-three on-campus interviews were conducted at the law school during the fall semester this year. Sixty of the interviewing employers have main offices located in Virginia. Out-of-state employers included nine from West Virginia, five federal agencies, three from Pennsylvania, two each from Washington, D.C. and Maryland, and one each from Massachusetts and Georgia. There were eighteen employers who had not previously interviewed on campus visiting the law school this year.

Regional Telethons Launch 1987–88 Law Fund

During a Law Fund Report Meeting held in July, W. Birch Douglass, III, L'68 turned over the reins of the Law Fund to Reginald N. Jones, L'68. Birch, who headed the 1986–87 Fund, gave an overview of the fund raising activities. He cited the great momentum that has been achieved over the last five years in fund raising at T.C. Williams and expressed confidence that it would continue to increase in the years to come.

Reggie Jones is a very capable leader. A former Trustee of the University and past president of the Law School Association, Reggie is enthusiastic about his role as Chairman of the 1987–88 Law Fund. The overall goal for this year’s fund is $450,000, a 10 per cent increase over last year’s record $409,147. Of the $450,000 total, $250,000 will come from annual giving and $200,000 will come from capital gifts. Alumni participation in giving is a critical part of the Law Fund. Last year, 44% of our alumni contributed. Our goal for this year is to achieve 52%. An effort will be made to increase the average alumni gift from $94 to $100.

The plans for the 1987–88 Law Fund include an expanded telethon schedule. For the first time, regional telethons have been incorporated in an effort to increase alumni involvement in law school activities. The Richmond Alumni Telethon marked the beginning of this year’s fund raising efforts. This three-night event was held on campus on September 15, 16 and 17. Nearly seventy alumni participated and secured 715 pledges totaling $38,841. The Norfolk Area Alumni Telethon was hosted by Vincent J. Mastracca, Jr., L'64 at Kaufmann & Canoles on September 22. Fourteen area alumni participated and raised $5,400 from 90 alumni. Richard C. Rakes, L'51 hosted our Roanoke Area Alumni Telethon on September 24 at his firm, Gentry, Locke, Rakes & Moore. A total of $3,650 was raised in pledges from 58 alumni and eleven callers participated. Our Northern Virginia/D.C. Area Alumni Telethon was held in the Alexandria offices of Hazel, Thomas, Fiske, Beckhorn & Hanes on October 1. Seventy-eight pledges totaling $4,340 were secured and fourteen alumni participated. On November 5, a student-staffed telethon was held on campus. The two legal fraternities, Phi Alpha Delta and Phi Delta Phi, competed for a cash prize. Phi Alpha Delta came out on top with $3,450 and Phi Delta Phi raised $2,680 during the event.

Endowed Bequest Scholarship Program

Douglas W. Conner L'61, Estate Planning Chairman for the 1987–88 Law Fund, has been working on an exciting new program that promises to benefit the Law School in many ways. The Endowed Bequest Scholarship Program was developed to enable individuals to establish scholarships at the Law School through annual contributions and bequests.

A scholarship becomes endowed with a minimum of $10,000, including accumulated income, in ten years. Once the scholarship is fully funded, annual scholarships in the amount of 5% of the total amount of the fund will be paid. If the scholarship fund, including the bequest and all accumulated income, does not equal or exceed $10,000 at the time of the donor’s death, the scholarship fund becomes part of the general scholarship fund.

To date, many alumni have expressed an interest in this program, and several endowed scholarships have been established. For further information, please contact Brian S. Thomas, Director of Development, The T.C. Williams School of Law, University of Richmond, Virginia 23173.
The Barnett Memorial Golf Tournament marked the beginning of Law Weekend '87. Twenty-five alumni, faculty, and students participated in this event which was held at the beautiful Crossings Golf Course, just north of Richmond. Despite a slight delay in tee times due to snow earlier in the week, the Tournament was a great success. Steven Edmonds '77 won trophies for "Closest to the Pin" on #8, and "Longest Drive" on #15. Eric Ferguson '87 also won a trophy for "Longest Drive" on #9. The "Low Net" winner, 62, was Denis McCarthy '88 and Ted Chandler '77 was the "Low Gross" winner with an 80. Leland Mahan '64 won the "2nd Low Net" trophy with a 64. Elmer Nachta '52 won the "2nd Low Gross" trophy with an 85, and he also won a "Closest to the Pin" trophy on #17. Professor Ron Bacigal picked up the "Closest to the Water" honor.

Later that afternoon, our alumni were treated to a special CLE Program that was sponsored by the Alumni Association. This program, entitled "Constitutional Developments in the Year of the Bicentennial", was held at the Hotel Jefferson. The speakers included The Honorable Robert R. Merhige, Jr. '42, Professor Ronald J. Bacigal, Professor Gary C. Leedes, and Professor John Paul Jones.

The Annual Fall Gathering highlighted the days activities. Held in the Empire Room of the fabulous Hotel Jefferson, this gala event attracted more than 600 alumni. Old friends were reunited and new friendships were started. This reception is sponsored by the Law School Association.

The Law School Association Board met on Saturday morning. Judge Donald H. Kent '63, President of the Law School Association, presided. The Board Meeting was followed by the General Business Meeting. Dean Harbaugh addressed the alumni during this meeting. The Brunch topped off Saturday morning's activities. More than 100 alumni and friends attended this event. A chartered bus took a group of alumni from the Brunch to the game at UR Stadium, where the Spiders defeated Villanova, 38-35.
That afternoon Ed Barnes '72 and Denis English '72 hosted an oyster roast in honor of their class' 15th Reunion. The Class of '62 held their 20th Reunion at the Salisbury Country Club. This post-game event was co-chaired by Frank Cowan '62 and Jim Kaufman '62. George and Jinx Andrews, members of the Class of 1977, served as chaircouple for their class' 10th Reunion. This event was held on campus in Sarah Brunet Hall. Members of the Class of '57 gathered for cocktails and dinner at the Downtown Club to celebrate their 30th Reunion. The Class of '82 also held their reunion at the Downtown Club Saturday evening. Archie Yeatts '67 hosted his class' 20th Reunion in his home.

The Merhige Center Approaches Goal

In 1985 the University of Richmond received a $150,000 challenge grant from the Virginia Environmental Endowment to establish The Robert R. Merhige, Jr., Center for Environmental Studies at The T.C. Williams School of Law. This is a three year effort which ends March 31, 1988. To date, $106,000 has been contributed, only $44,000 short of meeting the challenge.

The Merhige Center is an exciting innovation in legal education. When fully endowed, the Merhige Center will bring to campus nationally recognized lawyers, judges or teachers who work in the environmental field to instruct classes and conduct seminars. The Center will stimulate public awareness and interest in environmental issues through seminars and workshops. An effort will be made to foster legal and inter-disciplinary research and publication by awarding grants to faculty members. Through the Center, selected additions will be made to the Law Library.

Environmental Law Symposium Addresses Concerns

On October 16, The Robert R. Merhige, Jr. Center for Environmental Studies at The T.C. Williams School of Law, in conjunction with the Environmental Law Section of the Virginia State Bar, sponsored a symposium entitled, "Development in and Protection of Sensitive Areas: Wetlands, Coastal Zone, Floodplains." This conference was presented in cooperation with the Northern Virginia Building Industry Association, the Virginia Chapter of the American Planning Association, and the Construction Law Section of the Virginia State Bar.

The day-long program was moderated by Timothy G. Hayes. The panel of lecturers included W. Todd Benson, H. Clayton Bernick, Sarah Chasis, John W. Daniel, II, William B. Ellis, John T. Hazel, II, Robert E. Linck, Erik Meyers, W. Tayloe Murphy, Jr., Robert K. Pinkerton, Bruce F. Williams, Walter F. Witt, Jr., and Murray H. Wright.

The conference drew more than eighty participants, including attorneys, state and local officials, and environmental engineers, who attended the program. The topics of discussion included applicable laws, regulatory programs and procedures, local authority and responsibilities, policy considerations, and constitutional limitations on environmental policy regulation.

The Merhige Center has co-sponsored two symposiums. The first, entitled "The Dying Bay: Challenge and Response," was held last October. The Honorable William D. Ruckelshaus keynoted this event. Response to the program was strong with over 400 people attending the day-and-one-half event. The second symposium was held last month. This program was entitled "Development in and Protection of Sensitive Areas: Wetlands, Coastal Zone, Floodplains."

The University was saddened by the death of Harold Fleming "Nicky" Snead, the 21st Chief Justice of the Virginia Supreme Court, who died at his home in Richmond on December 23, 1987. A native of Richmond, he earned his Bachelor of Arts degree from Richmond College in 1925 and his Bachelor of Laws from the T. C. Williams School of Law. He was president of both the Richmond College Student Government and the Student Bar Association. He received the O. H. Berry Medal as the best all-around law graduate in his class. In 1958 the University conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

After several years in private practice Mr. Snead was appointed an assistant trial justice, then trial justice, later elected a Circuit Judge, and in 1956 was appointed to the Supreme Court. In 1969 he became Chief Justice, the first in history to come through the ranks of the courts. He retired in 1974, his judicial career having spanned 41 years.

Justice Snead was elected to the University's Board of Trustees in 1969 and became Trustee Emeritus in 1975. He had served on the following committees: Executive, Academic Program, Student Affairs, Business Management, and Library.

One of the University's most distinguished alumni, Justice Snead was devoted to his Alma Mater and throughout his life faithfully served her.

Dr. George M. Modlin
Chancellor Emeritus
