Law Library News

Happy Halloween to all!

Exams can be scary and stressful, but we want to help you keep calm and avoid distractions. At the request of some of your fellow law students, I ask you to remember keep the noise down in the library out of respect to others.

The quiet study area on the first floor is meant to be just that: Quiet. For studying. Also, noise at carrels and when attending classes in the library can be distracting.

We provide ear plugs to cancel out ambient noise. We sell headphones for listening to music while studying.

Thanks for helping us keep the library quiet and enjoyable for all. Enjoy the last day of the month before exam season starts. And remember: after today there will be no more "October surprises" in our elections. At least none that will happen during October.

Want to hear a little less ...or a little more?

Earbud headphones are now available to purchase from the Law Library circulation desk for $2.00 a pair. So now you can rock out in your carrel or “study” with Netflix.

Brush Up on the Basics

Representatives from Bloomberg Law, Lexis, and Westlaw will be in the law library in a few weeks. The training sessions are designed to build on the lessons from the basic 1L training the reps did early in the semester. If you want to sharpen your online searching skills you should make plans to attend.
