FOREWORD

It is with great pleasure that the Editors of the Richmond Journal of Law and the Public Interest present the inaugural issue of The General Assembly in Review. The purpose of this publication is to give interested citizens an overview of Virginia's most recent General Assembly session by highlighting notable legislation and providing analysis on timely public policy issues. We hope that this publication will make it easier for legislators, lawyers, lobbyists, and laypeople to understand the laws affecting their daily lives.

We would like to thank the independent authors who contributed their time and expertise to write the articles within this Issue. We would also like to thank the Journal members on the General Assembly Committee, who dedicated countless hours to monitoring and tracking legislation throughout the session. Finally, we would like to thank the incoming Editorial Board members who were instrumental in the publication process.

We hope that you enjoy this inaugural issue of The General Assembly in Review!
