Editorial Policy

The University of Richmond Law Review seeks to preserve the author's writing style when editing articles that have been selected for publication. In order to preserve the author's unique writing style, it is the Law Review's policy to edit articles selected for publication only for grammar, spelling, and structural errors. Any suggested changes made by the Law Review must be approved by the author before the article is deemed ready for publication.

Furthermore, the Law Review strives to promote an open and close working relationship with authors of articles selected for publication. To promote this relationship, the Law Review will maintain regular correspondence to update authors of the progress of their articles, as well as to resolve any problems that may occur during editing.

Submissions

The Law Review welcomes submissions year round on all legal topics. Once an article has been received by the Law Review it will be reviewed by the Lead Articles Editor and an Articles Committee. The Committee reviews the article in two ways. First, the Committee performs a blind read for quality of work and substance. This critique is given primary consideration by the Lead Articles Editor and Editor-in-Chief. Second, the Committee does a background search on the topic and the author. Each of these critiques is taken into consideration before a decision is made by the Editorial Board on the article. Normally, this process is completed and an author is notified within three weeks following our receipt of the article.
