TURNING POINT

Jepson Gift Creates Leadership Center

A First in Higher Education
Mark your calendar now for these selected fall events

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>AUGUST</th>
<th>THURSDAY</th>
<th>FRIDAY</th>
<th>SATURDAY</th>
<th>SUNDAY</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>22</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Freshmen arrive on campus</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>27</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Opening Convocation and first day of fall classes</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SEPTEMBER</th>
<th>THURSDAY</th>
<th>FRIDAY</th>
<th>SATURDAY</th>
<th>SUNDAY</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>11</td>
<td></td>
<td>20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Business School Alumni Fall Outing</td>
<td></td>
<td>Arts Around the Lake</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>OCTOBER</th>
<th>THURSDAY</th>
<th>FRIDAY</th>
<th>SATURDAY</th>
<th>SUNDAY</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>23</td>
<td>26</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Inauguration of Dr. Banks</td>
<td>Conference for Alumni Leaders</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>NOVEMBER</th>
<th>THURSDAY</th>
<th>FRIDAY</th>
<th>SATURDAY</th>
<th>SUNDAY</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>13</td>
<td>14</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Law Weekend</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

For more information, please call
Alumni Office
Sarah Brunet Memorial Hall
(804) 289-8027
2 Turning Point
Jepson Gift Creates Leadership Center, a First in Higher Education
By Randy Fitzgerald

6 Homecoming Every Day
Alumni Faculty
By Lee Price Davis

10 Bostwick
The Little-Known Benefactor
By Dr. Josephine McMurtry

12 Year in Review for Athletics
By Tripp Shepherd

14 Around the Lake

20 Alumni Notes

26 Classnotes

37 Letters

---

The University of Richmond Magazine, of which this is Volume 49, Number 4, is published quarterly for the alumni and friends of the University of Richmond, Virginia 23173. © 1987 University of Richmond
Jepson Gift Creates Leadership Center

A First in Higher Education

By Randy Fitzgerald, R'63 and G'64

When President Samuel Alston Banks made the dramatic announcement at Commencement of a $20 million gift to fund an innovative center for leadership studies, he said that the gift and program marked a turning point in the University’s history and in the history of American higher education as well.

“There are parts of such programs in other universities, but nothing like this brought together fully. I have talked with presidents of 15 other universities, and I’m convinced this program has no replica across the country.”

The program will be made possible through the generosity of Robert S. Jepson Jr., B'64, and his wife Alice, who will give $5 million toward the construction of a building to house the center for leadership studies and, along with an anonymous donor, $15 million to endow the center and its activities.

The program will be “interdisciplinary, international and life-oriented,” Dr. Banks said. It would bring together the arts and sciences, business school and law school faculties to create and implement a program that will help “develop citizen leaders” and that will “appeal to the best and brightest students in the nation.”

The center will serve as the “connective tissue that brings together the three faculties as a fully functioning university,” Dr. Banks said at a news conference at Commencement. It will help students bridge the gap between theory and practice and will help them see the “great synthesis” of materials, methods and ideas that make working knowledge and leadership possible.
The center will help students bridge the gap between theory and practice and will help them see the "great synthesis" of materials, methods and ideas that make working knowledge and leadership possible.

Robert S. Jepson Jr., B’64, left, listens as Dr. Samuel A. Banks announces the gift at a press conference on May 10.
The study opportunities in the center will allow students and professors to move across all areas of learning and surmount national and cultural barriers.”

—Dr. Banks

The aim of the center will be to produce generalists, people who bring together “issues, ideas and values in a coherent, unified way,” Dr. Banks said. “We have to do it in a university in such a way that we create a citizenry of people who are neither rebels nor followers but are leaders.” Leaders are essential in all walks of life, from executive to politician, from scoutmaster to homemaker, he said.

Mr. Jepson, responding to a reporter’s question during the news conference, said with a smile that graduates of the center would “run the world.”

Faculty and administrators will be working during the summer to develop the program. The broad outlines of the proposal include at least three distinguished faculty chairs, at least 12 faculty fellowships and a fund to bring nationally known speakers, consultants and other resource people to campus for special programs, symposia and colloquia.

The 12 fellows would be relieved of their normal course loads to develop and teach their own new interdisciplinary courses. A sociologist might teach a course on the relationship between religious and political institutions in Western and Eastern nations; a philosophy professor might teach a course in the ethics of legal practice; or a law professor might teach a course on comparative legal systems affecting business in America and Europe.

The fellows would receive ample stipends for books and travel needed to complete their projects and courses. Their slots on the faculty would be filled by distinguished outsiders. The fellowships would be for one year, and in 10 years half of the faculty theoretically could have participated in the center, Dr. Banks said.

“The programs that our existing schools can offer through the Jepson Center have the potential to be known nationally and internationally. The study opportunities in the center will allow students and professors to move across all areas of learning and surmount national and cultural barriers,” according to Dr. Banks.

The center is a dream of an international, interdisciplinary and leadership-oriented program Dr. Banks has had for years, he said, and one the Jepsons caught. At Dickinson College, where he was president for 11 years before coming to UR, Dr. Banks was instrumental in a language studies program that the chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities called “one of the best—if not the best—international studies programs in the country.” That program offered 11 foreign languages and programs in seven countries abroad.

Mr. Jepson, who won the Charles T. Norman Award as the outstanding business school graduate in 1964, said the program was an easy one for him to support. He said he owed a great deal of whatever success he has enjoyed to the leadership training he received as a member of the honorary national leadership society Omicron Delta Kappa. Jepson in fact was president of that organization and president of the student government association of the business school as well. Those leadership activities “have done as much for me individually as did the academics,” he said. “My love has been to see a program develop in that area to do for others hopefully what in some small way it did for me.”

His “favorite professor,” Dr. W. David Robbins, dean of the business school from 1959-1977, said that Jepson “was the most able student I have ever had.” That includes his 28 years at UR and a term at Harvard’s business school as well. Dr. Robbins said that the vote among the faculty for the Norman Award in 1964 was unanimous for Jepson, the only time he is aware that has ever happened.

Mr. Jepson is interviewed by a reporter from Channel 12 television news after the press conference May 10.
Robert S. and Alice A. Jepson

Jepson in November made the commitment for $1 million for the W. David Robbins Chair of Business Policy at UR. Robbins, professor of business policy, is the first holder of that chair.

The first phase of the $20 million gift will be $6 million, $5 million of which will go toward a $7.5 million building to house the center. The other $1 million will complete the Robbins chair. The additional $15 million from the Jepsons and an anonymous donor will come when the faculty and administration have worked out details for the center and its programs.

The 65,000-square-foot building, probably 18 months to two years away from completion, will house the center for leadership studies, as well as the University’s academic computing center and the mathematics/computer science department. One of the architects working on the project said it would be “the most beautiful” building he has ever designed. The center and the building both will be named after Robert S. and Alice A. Jepson.

The $20 million gift and the E. Claiborne Robins family’s $50 million gift in 1969 are the two largest in UR’s history.

The University will match the Jepson challenge with gifts of $2.5 million for the Jepson Hall project and $10 million in endowment for the Center for Leadership Studies. These funds will be raised as a part of a comprehensive campaign to be announced shortly.

In 1983 Mr. Jepson formed the Jepson Corp. and today serves as its chairman and chief executive officer. The corporation’s operating companies and their major product groups are: Emerson Quiet Kool Corp., window room air conditioners, dehumidifiers and recreational vehicle rooftop air conditioning units; Gerry Sportswear Corp., ski and rugged outerwear and tennis apparel; Hedstrom Corp., bicycles, tricycles, metal gym sets and juvenile furniture and toys; Signet/Armolite Inc., hard-resin (plastic) ophthalmic lenses; Air-Maze Corp., dry and liquid filtration products for industrial, agricultural and aerospace applications; Atlantic Industries Inc., dyestuff for fabric, paper and leather coloration; Hill Refrigeration Corp., refrigeration units for food retailers; The Jepson-Burns Corp., new and refurbished commercial airline seats; and Denman Tire Corp., specialty tire products.

From 1969 to 1983 Mr. Jepson was involved in various officer and directorial capacities in the investment banking business, both in California and in Chicago. He received a master of science degree in commerce from UR in 1975, but it wasn’t until last year that he renewed his ties with his alma mater when an employee of Ukrop’s Super Markets Inc. brought the name of Jepson—one of whose companies was doing business with the Richmond supermarket chain—to the attention of Vice President Robert S. Ukrop, B’69 and a UR trustee. In recounting at the news conference how the gift came to be, Jepson alluded to that story: “That started a chain of events which I guess brings us to today.”

Dr. Randy Fitzgerald, R’63 and G’64, is director of the news bureau at the University and contributing editor of UR Magazine.
For five University alumni, "homecoming" is more a daily occurrence than an annual event. Collectively representing nearly a century of teaching experience, they "come home" each time they enter the classrooms where they teach today's students. Though the University has undergone a magnificent metamorphosis, the five agree that the small class size that attracted them as freshmen continues to appeal to them as faculty members.
money into educational programs and into faculty development [to elevate them] to the same level to show that we are one of the best.”

He points out that one reason the University is better than other small schools is that “we have the financial resources and the physical facilities of larger institutions. We do what larger schools do without having to have the large student body to support us.”

A devoted educator, Babb believes that he and other faculty members “have a real responsibility to teach more than subject matter. We must teach values and ethics.”

Dr. Irby B. Brown, R’54, is just plain comfortable at UR. Though he resides in a neighborhood near campus, the English professor seems truly at home at the University where he returned in 1959 to teach with his role models, Dr. Edward Peple and Dr. Lewis Ball.

Relaxed and open, Brown remembers having “a wonderful time as a student. I held my own very well in graduate school at the University of Virginia because I had been educated pretty well here.” He calls Professors Ball and Peple “excellent teachers who lived what they taught.”

Brown considers the campus one of the University’s big assets. Brown came up with the slogan, “The University of Richmond, a beautiful place to learn,” for the admissions office to use in attracting prospective students.

In addition to the campus, the “virtues” that attracted him as a student lured him back as an educator: “small classes, a very friendly and congenial faculty, a well-trained faculty, a very human setting, opportunities to continue one’s education beyond the classroom in quite reasonable ways... location in a city that is a hair’s breadth from Washington and a collegiality—a sense of belonging to a college community of scholars.”

Brown does notice some differences: less learning for learning’s sake and more purposeful learning now. He considers the evolving student a by-product of an evolving world that is “more hurried and sophisticated and less intellectually motivating... One obstacle to concentrated learning is that the world is so wide and we are bombarded with so many opportunities.”

Brown wants to bring some of the wide world into closer view by bringing more international students to the University. “We need to offer classes that will make the school receptive to international students, such as Third World studies and courses in African, Latin American and Japanese studies.”

Television, the subject of Brown’s current research, is another means of bringing the world into closer view. However, Brown’s research is concerned with the accuracy of the view television offers. In collaboration with Dr. Robert S. Alley, R’53, Brown is exploring how women are depicted by television and film. They plan to hold a conference on the topic next spring in Williamsburg, Va.

For a freshman who selected UR so he could remain close to his home in Chesterfield County, Brown is a man bringing all elements of the world close to his campus home.
Even as a student, Suzanne Kidd Bunting, W'58, knew music would be her life's work. The installation of the Beckerath organ in the Cannon Memorial Chapel led her back home in 1961, after she had completed her graduate work in Germany.

Bunting describes the department of which she is chairman as "a small department in the context of a liberal arts college. Our mission is not to train a violinist for the Boston Symphony. Rather, our interest is in making music majors as excellent on their chosen instruments as they can be. And, we open up the world of music to as many general students as we can through courses and ensembles."

Those who accept Richmond's offer of admission find a different University from the one Bunting attended. "There's really no aspect of student life that hasn't changed."

However, she says that the student body is less diverse than it might appear because the students come from very similar socio-economic backgrounds. She points out that the situation is "an economic one and is a problem for many private schools."

A student finds up-to-date technological advances in the Music Department now. In addition to compact discs, the department has an electronic keyboard and uses a computer to assist in drills. There is also special sound equipment for the jazz band and jazz combo, and the first phase of a computer music studio has been approved for purchase.

Bunting would like to see a more intellectually stimulated student body. "To make the University the university it wants to be, we must somehow attract the kind of student and have the kind of atmosphere that will stimulate students who want to learn. We need to establish a relationship between student social life and what goes on in the classroom. It must be okay for a student to go to a lecture or a concert without hearing ridicule and put-downs from his peers."

Bunting looks to the University's new leadership for success in integrating student life with learning.

In his student days, Dr. Stuart C. Clough, R'65, assisted in Dr. James Worsham's research in synthesizing amides. A member of the chemistry faculty since 1973, Clough continues doing research—with current UR students assisting him. Clough's research now explores volatile materials in plants from a systemic perspective. In layman's terms, the smiling empiricist describes his study as "what makes a tree smell nice."

Though the opportunity "to do research on a reasonable scale" was one factor that appealed to Clough the professor, he still considers that "teaching is my first priority."

Interaction with Professors Stanton Pierce and Allen Powell led Clough, the student, to pursue teaching chemistry. He affectionately calls his role "models, men of integrity."

Other pluses offered by the sciences are "modern and dynamic course offerings, top-quality and modern instrumentation and the funding to support research."

Clough earned his Ph.D. at the University of Florida and did post-doctoral work at the State University of New York in Buffalo. "Today's students, on the average, are getting stronger,"
Clough says, “though they are hard-pressed to compete with my class [class of '65] in chemistry,” in which there were a high percentage of Phi Beta Kappa members and a high percentage of students who pursued post-graduate studies.

He points out that “there are more B's, and the D's and F's are disappearing.”

Clough hopes to see “more financial aid for students” because he sees “a trend toward the University’s becoming limited to just the upper-middle class.”

Busy with his teaching, his students and his research, Clough only half-jokingly wishes for a “30-hour day.”

No doubt, he would spend most of it at the University because, he happily admits, “I flat out like it here.”

Fall 1966 brought Dr. Frank E. Eakin Jr., R’58, back after having earned a B.D. at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary and a Ph.D. at Duke University. Though he entered college intending to study for the ministry, Eakin felt the influence of Dr. Solon B. Cousins so strongly that he decided to teach.

“Dr. Cousins gave a model of a person who enjoyed immensely what he did and who did it well,” Eakin remembers fondly.

Named the Camp Professor of Bible and the Solon B. Cousins Professor of Religion, the soft-spoken Eakin acknowledges the changes education has undergone since his mentor taught. “Dr. Cousins was of a generation where specialization was not a concern. He taught broadly. Now people are trained with much more focus toward a particular specialty within one area of a discipline.”

A major factor in Eakin’s accepting UR’s offer over 20 years ago was the University’s having a Phi Beta Kappa chapter, “which said something about the institution.” He was a member of the same chapter during his student days and remains active today as secretary-treasurer of the honor society.

Eakin captures the change in the school since his student days in one word: diversity. While Richmond natives used to compose the majority of the student body, today’s student finds his peers coming from diverse locations. And, Eakin sees today’s faculty and offerings as varied as the hometowns of the students. He thinks the diversity enhances the school’s strength.

He appreciates the physical changes as well. As a student, he lived in the barracks. He had no telephone the first few years after he joined the faculty, “to say nothing of an air conditioner.”

Now, the office and classroom spaces are of much better quality, but he would like to see more of them as well as more seminar rooms. Easing the teaching load for faculty members is another improvement he hopes to see.

However, he has “difficulty envisioning any place freer academically or more affirming of the individual than the University of Richmond. The school has given me hundreds of opportunities in terms of working with various aspects of my discipline,” says the department chairman and coordinator of the Master of Humanities program.

“I’ve been able to develop the area of Judeo-Christian relations academically and personally. I’m glad to have been at a place where personal development is not only possible but encouraged,” he says.

Lee Price Davis, W’75, is a freelance writer who has held several writing and editing positions in Richmond.
In the year 1887, when Richmond College received a near-miraculous gift of Standard Oil stock from a previously unknown benefactor named Jabez Abel Bostwick, the college was still struggling to recover from the Civil War of some 20 years earlier.

The devastation had been heavy. Richmond College had closed in 1861, as its students marched away to battle. Northern troops occupying the campus after the fall of Richmond had removed every portable object, including the library books. The endowment had been invested in Confederate bonds, now worthless, and the post-war dawn seemed a bleak one.

In 1866, nevertheless, the college had re-opened and had soon shown its will to survive. Private donors and schools had sent books for the library. Supporters, particularly the Baptists, had raised an endowment, with some early pledges paid in watches and jewelry in lieu of money, according to Dr. Reuben E. Alley in his book History of the University of Richmond 1830-1971.

SEARCHING FOR HELP

But more resources were needed. A.E. Dickinson, editor of the Religious Herald, the journal of the Baptist General Association of Virginia, was engaged to act in his spare time as a one-man development office. Because donors in Virginia had already given to Richmond College as generously as their means allowed, Dickinson was asked to explore the territory of the late enemy, where, as Dr. Alley observes, "industrial giants of the North were accumulating vast fortunes under a national policy of laissez-faire."

These journeys, as shown by surviving correspondence between Dickinson and Dr. Frederic W. Boatwright, were often unrewarded; but Dickinson's meeting with J.A. Bostwick bore immediate and much-appreciated fruit. In 1915, almost 30 years after Bostwick's gift, Dr. Boatwright described it in a letter to Bostwick's widow as having "meant more to us than any others we ever received."

WHO WAS MR. BOSTWICK?

Jabez Abel Bostwick, who was not himself a college graduate, grew up in Ohio and started out in the hardware business, later moving into cotton brokerage and to New York City.

("Jabez," a Biblical name found in 1 Chronicles 4:9, appears in references to Bostwick during his lifetime and in America's Successful Men of Affairs, a biographical dictionary published by the New York Tribune in 1895. In 1915, the Boatwright letter quoted above is directed to "Mrs. James A. Bostwick." The stages of this nomenclative metamorphosis are unclear. No letter of protest or clarification from Mrs. Bostwick has survived in the archives.)
MANSIONS AND MIDNIGHT ALARMS

Plain and unassuming though Bostwick himself may have been, his family lived as became New York millionaires of the period. The town house was on Fifth Avenue, facing Central Park; here Bostwick’s younger daughter Fanny, “a great beauty” who “rode exceptionally well,” once gave a hunt breakfast for guests in full hunting dress, creating a stir in the Times. The summer house was in Mamaroneck on Long Island Sound; here the older daughter, Nellie, was married “in the drawing room under a canopy of roses,” before 700 guests—including Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller.

It was at the Mamaroneck house that Bostwick died in 1892. The stable caught fire in the night; family, servants and neighbors ran to rescue the horses, which they did, and then began to bring out the carriages. In helping to pull out “a large drag” (a four-wheeled vehicle resembling a stage coach), Bostwick was accidentally crushed against the stable wall and died shortly afterward of internal injuries, lying on a sofa which had been brought out for him, flames from the burning stable lighting the scene. He was 51.

UNASSUMING BENEVOLENCE

Bostwick’s gifts to Richmond College included $25,000 in Louisiana four percent bonds and 250 shares of stock in Standard Oil Trust—shares which, after providing much-needed income for many years, were sold in 1915 for almost $400,000. (A quick reference point for the buying power of 1915 money is provided by the Model T Ford, which in 1913 first rolled off the assembly line to sell for $500.)

No evidence has survived of Bostwick’s ever visiting the campus, but it is clear that his widow did so, for Dr. Boatwright states in his letter that “since your visit to Richmond College we have removed from our old site, occupied for 80 years, and in September, 1914, came to our present campus of 290 acres in the western suburbs of Richmond.” And Dr. Boatwright assures Mrs. Bostwick of a hearty welcome should she repeat her visit.

HOME SWEET BOSTWICK LANE

Because construction of the new campus necessitated the sale of the Bostwick securities, Richmond College, wishing to preserve the name permanently, established the James A. Bostwick Chair of English and named one of the newly laid-out streets in the benefactor’s honor. Bostwick Lane, wandering up the wooded hill across Campus Road from the main gates, has permanent homes of faculty and administrators as well as half a dozen small houses, available for rent to newly-arrived faculty for a limited time. The supply of new faces is continuous, and a sizeable proportion of the faculty, wherever they eventually settle, are Bostwick Lane alumni.

For Bostwick Lane residents past and present, and for the many students who have climbed the hill for parties and informal gatherings, memories as well as address books preserve the name of an unostentatious benefactor whose gift, exactly 100 years ago, made possible an important phase of the University’s survival and growth.

Dr. Josephine McMurtry is a professor of English at the University.
Year in Review for Athletics

By Tripp Shepherd

The 1986-87 academic year was notable for individual accomplishments and continued fan support. Senior tight end John Henry was named to the All-America team by the Associated Press in addition to the All-Yankee Conference squad. Standouts James Church, R’87, and Jeff Olivo, R’90, also were All-Yankee selections, while Bob Bleier, R’86, joined Henry in Montgomery, Ala., for the Blue-Gray All-Star Classic.

Competing for the first time as a Yankee Conference member, the Spiders led the league in attendance and ranked seventh nationally in attendance in Division I-AA.

While large crowds filled UR Stadium in the fall, excitement was also being generated in Richmond’s newly-renovated soccer complex. Posting 13 wins, the most in UR soccer history, head coach Tim O’Sullivan’s squad generated interest both on and off campus. Forward Greg Sluyter, R’88, was a 1986 All-Colonial Athletic Association selection while teammates Joe Dueker, R’89, and Eric Jones, R’89, were nominees for Academic All-America. In cross country, Jessica Space, W’87, captured first place in the Colonial Athletic Association meet while Larry Elliot, R’90, was the top freshman male runner in the conference.

After three years of planning, the inaugural Central Fidelity Holiday Classic became a reality when Georgia Tech, Stanford, and Rice came to Richmond in November to begin the 1986-87 men’s basketball season. Over 14,000 fans watched the two-day tournament at the Robins Center as the Spiders captured the championship trophy in an exciting upset of nationally ranked Georgia Tech in overtime.

The Spiders continued this excitement throughout the season, introducing a new group of talented players who helped to defeat such teams as Navy and James Madison. Peter Woolfolk, R’88, was recognized by the National Association of Basketball Coaches on the All-District IV team, while freshman Ken Atkinson garnered Rookie-of-the-Year honors in the CAA.

In December, major strides were made in the women’s basketball program as second-year head coach Stephanie Gaitley’s Spiders hosted the Dole Pineapple Classic. The Spiders continued the season by defeating every CAA opponent except James Madison. Junior Laurie Governor scored her 1,000th point and was named to the All-Colonial Athletic Association squad. In addition, she was named to three all-tournament teams and was selected team MVP. Senior guard Peggy Fitzsimmons was named to the CAA All-Academic Team and was a Third Team Academic All-American.

Two freshmen also made their mark with Pam Bryant winning the CAA Rookie-of-the-Year Award and Beth Spence being selected to the CAA’s All-Rookie Team.
In the area of athletic fund raising, growth has continued with much time devoted in recent months to research on incentives for annual giving to athletics. Development of such a program could be a tremendous boost to the Spider Athletic Fund.

One of the least noted but worthwhile projects of the Athletic Department culminated in December when the department gave a "Book and Ball" party to benefit the area's needy children. Spearheaded by Dr. Candine Johnson, director of academic advising for student-athletes, athletic personnel donated over 100 books and balls to the Richmond Bureau of Police. The gifts were distributed on Christmas Eve by Sgt. Santa of the police bureau.

Many records were set by the men's and women's swimming teams. Diana Robinson, a senior who qualified for the NCAA Zone Meet, finished first in one- and three-meter competition at the CAA Meet where she was named outstanding diver for the second year in a row. Sue Wager, W'87, who also participated in the CAA Championships, won a first place and set conference records in both the 100- and 200-meter freestyle events and concluded a brilliant career by setting 11 school records. George Edelman, R'89, competing for the men's squad at the CAA meet, also broke records and finished first in both the 200- and 500-meter freestyle events.

UR's two other aquatic teams fared well on a national level. Alex Szilassy's water polo squad had another outstanding season as they cracked the Top 20, finished sixth at the Eastern Finals, became the Virginia State Champions and were named the Southern Water Polo League Champions. In the spring the squad hosted and won the JoPa Invitational Tournament held at the Robins Center.

The Aquanettes made their finest showing to date by finishing third at the Nationals. Jamie Parilla, W'87, an Academic All-American candidate, was nominated for a Rhodes Scholarship. The women's field hockey team captured fourth place in the South Atlantic Field Hockey Conference Championships. Their tough regular-season schedule pitted them against some of the top field hockey powers in the country including Maryland and George-town. Junior Robin Cowan was the squad's second leading scorer and was nominated for Academic All-America honors. Cowan joined Sandra Lewis, W'88, and Lori Regester, B'88, in the spring to give the UR lacrosse team one of the most talented squads around.

Nat Withers' golf team continued Richmond's success on the links in the fall, winning two tournaments. In the spring, the Spiders co-hosted the Hyatt Intercollegiate Tournament with VCU, while senior Rob Gai captured his second CAA individual title and was nominated for Academic All-American. The men's tennis team showcased a successful spring with victories over Brigham Young and Pittsburgh while the doubles team of sophomore Steve Haskins and senior Marc Policastro participated in the ITCA Rolex Indoor National Championships, hosted by the University at Richmond's Arthur Ashe Center.

Also representing Richmond in the Rolex Tournament was singles player Charlotte Haberstroh, W'87, who led the women's tennis team through an exciting season which included an eighth place finish in the ECAC-East.

As winter turned to spring, the UR baseball team batted its way to recognition as the top offensive team in the CAA. With stellar performances by sophomores Greg Harding, Andy Malloy and Don Vossler, the Spiders posted a 10-5 record in the conference.

Tripp Shepherd is director of sports information at the University.
ANNOUNCEMENT OF GIFT HIGHLIGHTS COMMENCEMENT

Dr. Samuel Alston Banks, sixth president of the University, concluded his first commencement with the announcement of a $20 million gift to fund an innovative center for leadership studies.

Presiding over UR's 157th commencement, Dr. Banks told the 784 members of the class of '87 and their families and friends that Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Jepson Jr. will give the University $6 million this summer, $5 million of which will go toward erecting a 65,000-square-foot building that will house the proposed center for leadership studies. It is the first phase of a multi-staged $20 million gift to fund the Robert S. and Alice A. Jepson Center for Leadership Studies.

The leadership program will be designed as the "connective tissue" that will bring together faculty from different departments and schools to help students see the relationships among all their studies. (See related story, page 2.)

The University awarded Jepson an honorary Doctor of Commercial Science degree during Commencement. Jepson, B'64 and G'75, is chairman and chief executive officer of the Jepson Corp. in Elmhurst, Ill.

Commencement speaker Dr. H. Keith H. Brodie, president of Duke University, addressed the ethical dimensions of life when he spoke to the class prior to the announcement of the gift.

"Be willing to let your lives be measured by your contribution to the human good," he told the degree candidates. "If occasionally you have the opportunity to be a hero, seize that moment but let your conscience guide you...and make your choices on the basis of our common humanity."

Dr. Brodie received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree during the ceremony. He has been president since 1982 at Duke, where he is also James B. Duke Professor of Psychiatry and Law.

Student speaker Brendan Christopher Connerty, R'87, described the significance of academic garb, noting humorously that the tassel "is the only article the University allows us to keep." Each point of the mortar board, he continued, "signifies a weakness with which we came to the University"—ignorance, immaturity, social inexperience and dependence—that during the years at UR has instead become a point of growth and achievement. Connerty, of Wyncliffe, Pa., was selected as a commencement speaker in a speech contest with fellow students.
Recipients of honorary degrees were, left to right, Carl Johnson, Doctor of Commercial Science; Dr. James A. Forbes Jr., Doctor of Divinity; Kathryn Ballard, Doctor of Humane Letters; Dr. R. Keith Parks, Doctor of Divinity; Robert S. Jepson Jr., B'64, Doctor of Commercial Science; and C. Porter Vaughan Jr., R'40, Doctor of Commercial Science.

Baccalaureate speaker Dr. James A. Forbes Jr. called on his listeners to be participants in “Celebration 2000,” the beginning of a new millenium in the year 2000. “What sort of world will we have? Will it be a time of celebration or lamentation?” he asked. He convened the audience as a “committee for Celebration 2000,” giving three minutes for discussion and definition of issues that will be important in shaping the future. Rather than an altar call in conclusion, he asked his listeners to “think of this as the call of God to the altar of the earth. God has invited you to participate in the shaping of the world; every step you take communicates to God your place on the committee.”

During Commencement an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree went to Dr. Forbes, who is associate professor of worship and homiletics at Union Theological Seminary in New York. He is a former president of the board of the Richmond Urban League and from 1965 to 1973 was pastor of the St. John's United Holy Church of America in Richmond.

Also receiving honorary degrees were three Virginia Baptist leaders. The University awarded an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree to Dr. R. Keith Parks, director of the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board in Richmond; an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree to Kathryn Bullard, executive director/treasurer of the Woman’s Missionary Union of the Baptist General Association of Virginia; and an honorary Doctor of Commercial Science degree to Carl Johnson, treasurer of the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board and president of the Virginia Baptist General Association for 1987.

An honorary Doctor of Commercial Science degree went to C. Porter Vaughan Jr., R'40, president of C. Porter Vaughan Inc. in Richmond. Vaughan is serving his second term as a UR trustee and has also served on the Board of Associates.

Receiving the Trustees’ Distinguished Service Award was Dr. Leroy Smith, R'34 and H'80. Dr. Smith is a Richmond plastic and oral surgeon who has received numerous civic awards, notably for his work with the handicapped. He has been a UR trustee since 1975. DW

HARBAUGH NAMED T.C. WILLIAMS LAW DEAN

The T.C. Williams School of Law has a new dean: Joseph D. Harbaugh, a former American University law professor. He assumed his duties July 15.

Harbaugh, professor of law at the Washington College of Law at American University since 1984, was named to succeed Thomas A. Edmonds, who became dean at the University of Mississippi Law School in January. UR has been seeking his successor for about a year.

Harbaugh is an authority on negotiation. A book he co-authored, Interpersonal Skills for Lawyers: Interviewing, Counseling and Negotiating, is scheduled to be published by Little, Brown and Co. Inc. later this year. He established and was director of the first legal clinic at the University of Connecticut School of Law, where he taught from 1968-1972.

Before going to American, he was a professor of law at the Temple University School of Law from 1974-1984. Also there he was associate dean for academic affairs from 1974-1978 and director of the graduate teaching fellow program from 1974-1982. Also, he has taught at Duke University School of Law, was a visiting professor of law at Georgetown University Law Center and a University Research Scholar at Harvard Law School.
His law practice experience includes such positions as chief counsel for the Pennsylvania Senate Judiciary Committee, special assistant chief prosecuting attorney for organized crime for the Connecticut Circuit Court and chief public defender for the Connecticut Circuit Court.

He has a bachelor of science degree in political science from St. Joseph's College in Philadelphia, a bachelor of laws from the University of Pittsburgh and a master of laws from Georgetown.

Harbaugh said he will miss full-time teaching but he thinks T.C. Williams "is one of the most exciting places to be in legal education today." RF

FACULTY RECEIVE TENURE AND PROMOTIONS

Fourteen UR faculty members were promoted by the Board of Trustees this spring. Of those promoted, three were also granted tenure, as was one other faculty member. Those named by the Board are listed below with their new titles.

Faculty members receiving tenure and promotions

John H. Earl
Associate professor of finance

Dr. Robert M. Schmidt
Associate professor of economics

Paul J. Zwier
Professor of law

Faculty member receiving tenure

Dr. Louis E. Tremaine
Assistant professor of English

Faculty members receiving promotions

Dr. Harold W. Babb
Professor of marketing

Okianer C. dark
Associate professor of law

Dr. James E. Duckworth
Professor of English

Susan B. English
Professor of law and law librarian

Dr. Warren P. Hopkins
Associate professor of psychology

Dr. Joseph F. Kent III
Professor of mathematics and computer science

Dr. Thomas R. Morris
Professor of political science

Andrew F. Newcomb
Associate professor of psychology

Dr. Elaine A. Traynelis-Yurek
Associate professor of education

Dr. Joseph C. Troncale
Associate professor of Russian

Dr. Hugh A. West
Associate professor of history

LINWOOD HORNE, ARTHUR BECK RETIRE

The University's associate chaplain and an Institute for Business and Community Development faculty member, both also UR alumni, retired recently.

Dr. Linwood T. Horne, R'43, came to the University in 1970 after over 20 years as a pastor of Baptist churches. As director for church relations and director of the Off-Campus School of Christian Studies he was a liaison between the University and the pastors and churches of Virginia, principally the Baptists, and until 1980 he directed a network of religious study programs in 15 communities in the state. In 1974 Dr. Horne was asked to assist the chaplain, Dr. David D. Burhans, in establishing the Chaplain's Office.

Dr. Horne has had responsibility for the annual UR Pastors Schools, Royal Ambassador days and Bible study emphases for clergy; church and youth group tours and promotions; special event programs; displays and exhibits; sharing in the chapel and chaplaincy ministries; and traveling to churches, associations and conferences.

Dr. Horne holds B.D., Th.M. and Th.D. degrees from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky., and was ordained to the Baptist ministry in 1948. He has held leadership posts in clergy and denominational bodies and has been involved in numerous historical research projects.

In retirement Dr. Horne continues working with UR as a part-time church relations director. He also is researching and writing two church histories, four family histories and a devotional book.

Arthur C. Beck, R'40, has been a student, alumnus, adjunct faculty member, full-time faculty member and a department head at the University. He retired in May as associate professor of organization development at the IBCD.

Beck received his master of business administration from the Wharton School of Business at the University of Pennsylvania in 1941. He came to the University as an adjunct faculty member, teaching University College classes in marketing and human relations for 20 years in both the bachelor’s and master’s programs. He also taught in the summer school program.

He became a full-time faculty member in 1964 as an assistant professor. He has since then been associate professor of organization development, associate director of the IBCD, acting director of the IBCD twice and director of the IBCD from 1976-80.

Beck has co-authored three books and numerous articles with Ellis Hillmar, associate professor in the IBCD. The books are Positive Management Practices—Bringing out the Best in Organizations and Individuals; Making MBO/R Work; and A Practical Approach to Organization Development Through Selected Readings.

Beck says he plans to spend his time working on two more books and “doing a certain amount of consulting, community and volunteer work, and fun and travel.” SR

IN MEMORIAM:

M. RAY DOUBLES

M. Ray Doubles, L'26 and H'54, retired dean and professor in The T.C. Williams School of Law, died April 21 after a brief illness. He was 86.

Judge Doubles served as dean of the law school from 1930 to 1947. He had joined the law school faculty in 1926 after completing his own law degree at the University by studying at night. During his tenure as dean he also served as assistant attorney general of Virginia from 1942 to 1947.

In 1947 he became Circuit Court Judge of the Richmond Hastings Court, Part II, where he served for 18 years. After his retirement in 1965, he returned to the law school to teach part-time and in 1967 became a full-time professor of law. After the illness and death of Dean William T. Muse, Judge Doubles served as acting dean of the law school during 1971-72. When he retired in 1973, he was named dean of law emeritus and professor of law emeritus.

Former students of Judge Doubles include former Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., whom Dean Doubles taught in secondary school while a night law student; and U.S. District Judge Robert R. Merhige Jr., L'42 and G'78, whom he taught at T.C. Williams.

As a circuit court judge, Judge Doubles in 1964 co-authored the book Virginia Jury Instructions with Judge Merhige and Emanuel Emroch, R'28 and L'31. In the early 1970s Judge Doubles served as special counsel to the Virginia Code Commission, updating the state’s criminal code. In 1968 he served as president of the newly chartered Legal Aid Society of Metropolitan Richmond.

Judge Doubles is survived by his second wife, Margaret Fourquerean Grey Doubles; a daughter, Mrs. Eleanor Jane Doubles Davis of Norfolk, Va.; and a son, Malcolm Carroll Doubles of Hartsville, S.C.

April 4 at the age of 83.

Dr. Pruden was a UR trustee from 1951 to 1976, when he became a trustee emeritus. He received an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree from the University in 1932, the youngest person ever awarded that degree here.

Dr. Pruden was pastor of First Baptist Church of Washington from 1936 to 1969, when he retired. Among those who attended services there was President Harry Truman.

While pastor of First Baptist in Washington, Dr. Pruden also served terms as president of the Washington Council of Churches, the District of Columbia Baptist Convention, the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society and the American Baptist Convention. He was also a member of the executive committee of the Baptist World Alliance for 20 years.

After earning his degree at UR in 1925, he studied at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky.; Yale University Divinity School in New Haven, Conn.; and the University of Edinburgh in Scotland where he earned his doctoral degree. He was the author of two books and several hymns, one of which is in the Baptist Hymnal.

Dr. Pruden is survived by his wife, Mae Talmage Pruden of Petersburg; a daughter, Mrs. Patricia Pruden Partridge of St. Louis, who attended Westhampton; a son, Dr. Edward H. Pruden Jr., R'72 and G'74, of Richmond; and five grandchildren. The family asks that any memorial gifts be made to the Mae and Edward Pruden Distinguished Guest Fund at the First Baptist Church in Washington, D.C.

IN MEMORIAM:

EDWARD H. PRUDEN

Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, R'25, emeritus pastor of the First Baptist Church of Washington, D.C., and a University trustee emeritus, died April 4 at the age of 83.

Edward H. Pruden was a UR trustee from 1951 to 1976, when he became a trustee emeritus. He received an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree from the University in 1932, the youngest person ever awarded that degree here.

Dr. Pruden was pastor of First Baptist Church of Washington from 1936 to 1969, when he retired. Among those who attended services there was President Harry Truman.

While pastor of First Baptist in Washington, Dr. Pruden also served terms as president of the Washington Council of Churches, the District of Columbia Baptist Convention, the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society and the American Baptist Convention. He was also a member of the executive committee of the Baptist World Alliance for 20 years.

After earning his degree at UR in 1925, he studied at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky.; Yale University Divinity School in New Haven, Conn.; and the University of Edinburgh in Scotland where he earned his doctoral degree. He was the author of two books and several hymns, one of which is in the Baptist Hymnal.

Dr. Pruden is survived by his wife, Mae Talmage Pruden of Petersburg; a daughter, Mrs. Patricia Pruden Partridge of St. Louis, who attended Westhampton; a son, Dr. Edward H. Pruden Jr., R'72 and G'74, of Richmond; and five grandchildren. The family asks that any memorial gifts be made to the Mae and Edward Pruden Distinguished Guest Fund at the First Baptist Church in Washington, D.C.

IN MEMORIAM:
SOUVENIR PROGRAM FROM CHOIR TOURS, PERFORMS IN RUSSIA

Fifty select University Choir members and one Russian area studies major toured the Soviet Union for two weeks in May on a tour led by Dr. Joseph Troncale, UR associate professor of Russian. The tour was part of the May-term summer school program, and each student received academic credit for the trip.

Leading his 11th tour to Russia, Dr. Troncale decided to take choir members this year to give them a chance to perform for Russian audiences and also in order to expose as many students as possible to Russian life.

The group was composed of five 1987 graduates and 45 students selected on the basis of academic, personal and musical merit, with priority given to the graduates. The selection process also took into account the right blend of voices, according to Dr. James Erb, University Choir director and professor of music.

The choir gave four performances over the two-week period, including one in an auditorium once frequented by Catherine the Great. The remaining time was spent touring Leningrad, Moscow and Suzdal, a small village outside Moscow.

Dr. Troncale says the number of cities was intentionally limited so the students wouldn't be rushed and would "have a sense of where they'd been." He interacted with them constantly, teaching them to be receptive to the things they saw. By exposing them to the Russian culture in museums and marketplaces, he led them to understand the history and creativity of the Russian people.

Throughout the tour, Dr. Troncale attempted to "draw the students out of the gravitational pull" of U.S. propaganda on Russia, encouraging openness and discussion of any feelings the students had about people or places they saw. He also took them to visit Russian friends in apartments to see what apartment living was like and to ask questions about Russian life.

Dr. Erb, who directed the choir on the tour, had never been to Russia before, although he has taken choir groups to Europe. He says he received the most joy from watching the students' reactions to their new surroundings.

Prior to the trip, Dr. Troncale met with the students four times to help them think about their attitudes toward the Soviet Union and to begin to evaluate and balance their opinions when comparing Russia to the United States. KB

ALUMNI SURVEY CHARTS CAREERS OF LIBERAL ARTS, BUSINESS GRADS

Graduates of UR's liberal arts programs differ significantly from graduates of the business school on a number of issues ranging from their educational goals to job satisfaction.

These findings of a recent survey may offer insights into the value of a liberal arts education, according to Dr. Arthur B. Gunlicks, professor of political science, who conducted the survey with students in one of his political research classes.

The survey went out in the form of more than 1,800 questionnaires to former political science and English majors as representatives of the liberal arts, and to former accounting and business administration majors from The E. Claiborne Robins School of Business. The response rate was 37 percent.

Only a minority of the alumni surveyed believe that a liberal arts degree is an asset for the first job; however, a majority of the liberal arts graduates and even "significant minorities" of business school alumni believe that a liberal arts degree is "more of an asset" for the longer term.

"These results suggest that the liberal arts are a lasting, not a temporary asset, that even for employment purposes they can be seen as a kind of long-term investment that may offer delayed but valuable rewards," Gunlicks says.

Almost half of all the alumni respondents have pursued advanced degrees, although liberal arts graduates are much more likely than their business school counterparts to be working on or have received advanced degrees. Business school graduates surveyed are more satisfied than liberal arts graduates with career counseling and career placement services at UR, which Dr. Gunlicks believes reflects the greater uncertainty among liberal arts students regarding career goals.

In terms of their initial educational goals, a majority of liberal arts majors surveyed give a top ranking to the goal of enhancing their general intellectual and social development; female graduates from each major were significantly more likely to support this goal than males. Business school graduates are more oriented toward education as specific preparation for employment.

The two groups differ also when asked about skills they learned as undergraduates at UR. Liberal arts graduates are more positive about writing and speaking skills, while business school alumni are more confident about areas related to mathematical reasoning.

Three-fifths of the alumni surveyed are "highly satisfied" with their current jobs in terms of the challenge of their work, although females are somewhat less satisfied than males. In terms of satisfaction with salary, the survey shows striking differences among the four majors. One-third of the English majors and one-fourth of the political science majors but fewer than one-fifth of the business school majors say they are dissatisfied with their salaries. Those salaries differ significantly by class, major and sex; a law degree or an MBA translates into a relatively high income, but regardless of major or advanced degree, women earn less.

A large majority of the respondents feel positive about the quality of instruction they received in their majors, and a majority would recommend UR to their friends. The majority also believe UR had prepared them for their current jobs better than the graduates of other institutions.

Below is a brief sample of the comments respondents made about the impact their liberal arts studies have made on their lives.

From a political science major: "The philosophy and political science courses I took have had an impact on the moral and ethical problems I must face each day as a health care executive."

From an English major: "In terms of salary and job opportunities, I think liberal arts majors are limited. In terms of vision and philosophy, I wouldn't trade my liberal arts background for anything."

From an accounting major: "It has made me more aware of my enjoyment and appreciation of the arts. It has also given me a better understanding of the human side of the people I interact with daily."

Anyone interested in a copy of the complete 44-page report at a cost of $5 may write Dr. Arthur Gunlicks, Political Science Department, University of Richmond, VA 23173. DW

OUTSTANDING SENIOR ATHLETES RECOGNIZED AT DINNER

The inaugural Senior Awards Banquet, featuring NBC commentator and former Marquette basketball coach Al McGuire, was held in April at the Ramada Renaissance Hotel in downtown Richmond.

The banquet, organized by the UR Spider Club, recognized the senior student-athletes who were concluding their intercollegiate athletic careers at the University. The capacity crowd of over 300 included Spider Club and Spider Athletic Fund members and parents.

McGuire entertained the audience with repartee, weaving stories from his childhood in New York and his life as a basketball celebrity into his message for the athletes—to set one's sights on a goal and follow through with one's plan to make the goal a reality.

UR President Samuel A. Banks also spoke to the group and focused on the analogies between the disciplines of athletic competition and those the graduates will face in life upon graduation.

Five awards were presented to three standout seniors. Greg Galakatos received a Presidential Citation as the graduating senior male athlete with the highest grade point average. A biology major with a 3.49 grade point average, Galakatos captained the water polo team and led the squad in assists. In 1986 the water polo team won its third consecutive Southern Conference Championship and captured the Virginia State title for the fourth consecutive year. A native of Frontenac, Mo., Galakatos also received the Spider Club's Male Athlete of the Year award. He was a member of the record-setting 400- and 800-meter free relay swim teams and the Biology Honor Society, and did honors research in genetic engineering.

Basketball standout Peggy Fitzsimmons, a native of Massepequa, N.Y., also received a Presidential Citation as well as the Helen Reba Humbert Award. She served as basketball team co-captain and helped lead the team to a 13-15 record. A Third Team Academic All-American, Fitzsimmons was named to the Colonial Athletic Association's All-Academic team and boasted a 3.89 GPA with a major in psychology.

Jamie Parilla, a Rhodes Scholar candidate from New Rochelle, N.Y., received the Spider Club's Female Athlete of the Year Award. Aquanette team captain and a Phi Beta Kappa member, Parilla earned numerous awards and medals in both figure and routine synchronized swimming competition and helped lead the squad to a third-place national ranking. Selected to Who's Who Among American College Seniors, Parilla earned a 3.7 GPA while double-majoring in history and Russian area studies.

Chuck Boone, UR athletic director, commented after the banquet, "With our promotional focus on revenue sports, it is particularly significant that although all teams submitted strong candidates, the winners this evening came from the nonrevenue programs." TB, TS
ALUMNI NOTES

ALUMNI WEEKEND, MAY 29-30

The Richmond College Class of '37

at their 50th reunion

The Richmond College, Westminster College and E. Claiborne Robins School of Business Classes of '62 celebrate their 25th reunion.
The Richmond College, Westhampton College and The E. Claiborne Robins School of Business Classes of '77 combined to celebrate their 10th reunion. From left are Bob Seibolt, R'77, president of the Richmond College Alumni Association; Kurt E. Schottlechner, Michelle Petkoschottlechner, W'77; and Robin Seibolt.

The Westhampton College Class of '62 welcomes Mary Jane Miller, retired associate professor of health and physical education, to their reunion.

The 70th reunion of the Westhampton College Class of '17 was celebrated by Gladys Holleman Barlow, who received a special certificate at the Alumni Day Luncheon on May 30. Shown with her is Margaret Ownby Milby, W'78, Alumni Weekend hostess.

Alumnae greet Dr. Frances W. Gregory, professor of history emerita, at the Alumni Day Luncheon.

The Westhampton College Class of '37

at their 50th reunion.
The 1987 Westhampton College Distinguished Alumna Award was presented to Nancy Day Anderson Haga, W'57, left, by Jay Winstead, W'55, at the Alumni Day Luncheon. Mrs. Haga is a community activist and associate professor of speech and theatre at Longwood College in Farmville, Va.

Among those attending the 45th reunion of the Richmond College Class of '42 were, left to right, A.W. "Skee" Goode, Ed Klein, Stan Kellam and an honorary member of the class, Chancellor Emeritus George M. Modlin.

A bust of Dr. Frederic W. Boatwright was presented at the annual dinner of the Boatwright Society, those alumni who have celebrated their 50th reunion. Donated by the Boatwright Society and Dr. Boatwright's granddaughters, Donna Boatwright Castfield, W'64, and Frederica Boatwright Baxter, W'62, the bust was unveiled by Mrs. Castfield, left, and Mrs. Baxter. Looking on is Dr. Samuel A. Banks, UR president, and watching from the podium is Dr. C. J. Gray, R'33 and H'79, president of the Boatwright Society.

The Westhampton College Class of '52 at their 35th reunion.

University College alumni at the Alumni Day Luncheon.
EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR NAMED FOR ALUMNI ASSOCIATIONS

Jane Stockman Thorpe, W'58, has been named executive director of the University's undergraduate alumni associations. Mrs. Thorpe, formerly director of alumnae relations for UR's Westhampton College since 1973, assumed her new duties on June 1, 1987.

In the newly created position, Thorpe is alumni director for all three undergraduate associations: Westhampton, Richmond College and The E. Claiborne Robins School of Business. Two associate directors will report to her. The T. C. Williams School of Law Alumni Association will remain separate.

The change in structure was announced in May after Jeffrey L. Franklin, R'77, former director of alumni affairs for Richmond College and The E. Claiborne Robins School of Business, announced that he was leaving to direct the re-election campaign of Virginia state Sen. William F. Parkerson Jr., R'41, D-Henrico County. Parkerson is running against Republican Edwina P. “Eddy” Dalton, a UR trustee.

Besides directing alumni programs for Westhampton, Thorpe has participated in numerous University-wide programs and committees. The University community has recognized her through honorary membership in Omicron Delta Kappa in 1984 and Mortar Board in 1987.

Before returning to her alma mater as alumnae director, Thorpe was a teacher at the Reveille School of Richmond's Reveille United Methodist Church and at Manchester High School in Chesterfield County, Va. She was also teenage and camp director of the Richmond YWCA in Danville, Va., and recently served as president of the Richmond YWCA Board of Directors.

FOUR ALUMNI RECEIVE AWARDS

Four alumni were honored with the University's highest alumni award on May 8. Receiving the Alumni of the University of Richmond Award for Distinguished Service were, left to right, Dr. Katherine Clark Kersey, W'56, chairman of the Department of Child Studies and Special Education at Old Dominion University; Dr. W. Tyler Haynes, R'22, a retired orthodontist and Medical College of Virginia professor; William Birch Douglas III, L'68, a senior partner with the Richmond-based law firm of McGuire, Woods, Battle & Boothe; and Charles Tysinger, B'70, RBD'78, senior vice president of the finance group with Central Fidelity Bank. The award is based on outstanding achievements of the recipients in their professions; in service to the community, state and nation; and in service to the University.
Dr. and Mrs. Banks

ON THE ROAD

Getting to meet alumni of the University is one of the pleasures of being at UR for President and Mrs. Samuel A. Banks. This spring they were on the road to visit alumni groups.

NORTH CAROLINA GREETINGS

Raleigh: March brought Dr. Banks to Tidewater, Virginia, where these he met included, left to right, J. Carson Spencer, R'65; Dr. Earl Crouch Jr., R'65; Donald C. Williams, B'76; and Richard H. Matthews, R'74, L'77 (with back to camera).

New York City: The Chemist's Club was the setting of the alumni gathering hosted by Mr. and Mrs. S. Wrennham Anderson, far left and far right, in April.

Raleigh: Henry W. Jones, L'78, president of the Triangle Alumni Chapter, welcomed Dr. and Mrs. Banks to the Tarheel State in May with a collection of North Carolina goodies.

Atlanta: Welcoming Dr. and Mrs. Banks to their home in April were B. Franklin Skinner, R'52, H'85, and Mrs. Skinner, right. Nearly 75 alumni attended the reception.

Roanoke: Above, Dr. and Mrs. William A. Sandridge, R'43, chat with Dr. Banks at the reception in May. Below, Mrs. Banks smiles over a book on the Roanoke Valley signed by Thomas M. Winn Jr., R'59, as Dr. Leon Jennings, R'55, looks on.
NEWS FROM ALUMNAE CLUBS

Suffolk-Franklin Alumnae Club
Lena Thornton Small ’47
President
215 Linden Avenue
Suffolk, Va. 23434
At the regular spring meeting, March 21, 1987, of the Suffolk-Franklin Chapter a noon luncheon was hosted by the Smithfield Alumnae at Smithfield Station. There were 14 members and two guests present. Carolyn Cobb Penniston, ’67, acting treasurer, reported a balance of $57.01. On April 20, 1987, gifts of peanuts were delivered by Carolyn Penniston to students at Westhampton from this area. The chapter was honored to have Dean Patricia Harwood speak to us about the Westhampton student and sororities on campus.

Richmond Club
Lee Reeves Childress ’50
President
9205 Venetian Way
Richmond, Va. 23229
The Richmond Club of the Westhampton Alumnae Association completed its seminar series on April 21, 1987. Joseph C. Holmes, past president of the Richmond Wine Society, presented “The Story of the Grape.” In February the seminar group heard Kate Barham Welch, ’69, talk about the wardrobe as an expression of personality. Susan Clarke, ’72, has planned all of these programs.

Lovey Jane Long Walker, ’57, was chairman of this year’s game party. A fashion show by Lady Wingate’s gave us a preview of spring fashion and abundant favors and door prizes kept the evening lively.

The Spring Brunch at the Commonwealth Club was highlighted by a dynamic presentation by our new president, Dr. Samuel A. Banks. Elsa Queen Falls, ’64, C’72, was presented as the Richmond Club nominee for the Outstanding Alumnae Award. Elections were held and Cindy Creasy, ’75, was elected second vice president; Susan Blount Jones, ’76, recording secretary, and Lovey Jane Walker, treasurer, serving the second year of their terms will be president, Lee Reeves Childress, ’50; first vice president, Wendy Church, ’74; and corresponding secretary, Lee Price Davis, ’75.

Tidewater Club
Edie Paulette Crouch ’69
President
2109 Windward Shore Drive
Virginia Beach, Va. 23451
The Tidewater Club has selected Janet Wrestler ’89, as the first recipient of our scholarship. The amount of the award for the 1987-88 academic year is $550.

Also we have elected a new president, Joan Saunders Kennedy, ’64; and secretary, Susan Hillsman, ’85, for the next two years.

We have had interesting, varied programs this year, all coming to us from the University. In October, Jane Thorpe presented a slide presentation on Westhampton College, bringing us up to date on happenings. In January, Dr. Stephanie Micas introduced us to the WILL (Women Involved with Living and Learning) leadership program, and our March meeting had the Schola Cantorum delight us with selections they performed in Russia this summer.

Middle Peninsula Alumnae Club
Bobbie Reynolds Orrell ’55
President
Box 449
West Point, Va. 23101
The Middle Peninsula Alumnae Club met for its spring salad luncheon on Saturday, April 4, 1987. The meeting was held in the home of Jeanice Johnson Roberts, ’43, at Ford’s Colony in Williamsburg, Va. A program on wardrobe and packing for travel was given by Kate Barham Welch, ’69.

Plans were completed for publishing the Middle Peninsula Salad Cookbook. The book will be for sale at the club’s fall meeting and at Arts Around the Lake. Club members who have not contributed a recipe should send their favorite salad recipe to Bobbie Reynolds Orrell at the address above.

WOMEN TRUSTEES, FACULTY HONORED AT RECEPTION

Women members of the UR faculty and women trustees had a chance to get better acquainted at a reception held March 13. Sponsored by the Westhampton College Alumnae Association, the reception at the Denney included, left to right, Elaine J. Yeatts, W’64, trustee; Dr. Ulana Gabara, professor of Russian; Dr. Kathleen Rakaly, professor of health and physical education; and Dr. Carndine Johnson, director of academic advising.
Grant V. Harrison, R'28, retired since 1972, is a Virginia state registrar for Sons of the American Revolution.

Harold Van Allen, R'34, of Kingston, N.Y., was named 1986 Man of the Year by the American Baptist Men of New York. A former deacon of the First Baptist Church of Kingston, he was honored "in recognition of a lifetime of Christian service to the church, community and American Baptist Men of New York State." A past president of the Kingston Area Council of Churches, he is director of Ministry to the Elderly at First Baptist Church. On the state level, Van Allen served as president of the board of managers of the American Baptist Churches of New York in 1972. He is cluster director of the Alive in Mission campaign for the American Baptist Church, U.S.A. A member of the organization for 25 years, he has also served as president of the American Baptist Men of New York. In addition to his many church activities, Van Allen has been active in fund-raising positions for the United Way, the Hurley Cancer Drive and the YMCA. He is also a member and past president of the Hurley Lion Club and a past president of Alcohol Education for Youth Inc. program in New York State. He is president of the Ulster County Art Association and is a volunteer at the Baptist Home of Brooklyn at Rhinebeck and a member of the advisory committee of the Ulster County Office for the Aging. Van Allen and his wife of 48 years, Katherine E. Brown Van Allen, W'34, have four children and 11 grandchildren. Van Allen retired from IBM in 1971.

Harold B. Yudkin, L'37, recently visited with Judge Max Laster, L'35, and his family in Jerusalem on two separate occasions.

The Rev. David F. White Jr., R'50, former pastor of Weatherford Memorial Baptist Church, has been named manager of marketing and enterprise for Volunteers of America in Virginia. Dr. White is ordained minister and has served as pastor of churches in Virginia, Maryland, South Carolina and Kentucky. He has served on the faculties of Clemson University and the University of Virginia. He holds a master's degree from John Hopkins University and a doctorate from the University of Ga. of Richmond.

Jack W. Fretwell Jr., R'61, is a senior instructional specialist with Xerox in Leesburg, Va.

David M. Fuller, CLU, R'63, G'64, has formed David M. Fuller, CLU & Associates, a corporate fringe benefits consulting firm, in Richmond, Va.

Neil Goren, B'63, is director of new products marketing for the Mennco.

Dallas O. Pinion, R'60, G'63, has been named assistant researcher manager in the department of research and development with the American Tobacco Co. He joined the company in 1968 and was previously supervisor for research.

Daniel M. Thurston, R'60, is a claims manager with Aetna Life & Casualty Co. in Charlotte, N.C.

Jack M. Oakey, R'47, founder and president of Jack Null & Co., has been named 1987 Realtor of the Year by the Richmond Board of Realtors. The award is based on professional accomplishments, civic activities and participation on the local, state and national levels. Null began his real estate career in 1958 after 11 years in the coaching profession which included assignments at UR and Virginia Military Institute. He organized Jack Null & Co. in 1964. He has served six years as a director of the Richmond Board and is a member of the professional Standards committee. He has been chairman of the public relations committee and a member of the legislative committee. He also chaired the Richmond multiple listing service committee. Null is director of the Virginia Association of Realtors, a past chairman of its multiple listing service committee and has served on the legislative and public relations committees. He helped organize and was the first chairman of the Professional Realty Organization, a network of local independent real estate firms. Null is a member of St. Constantine and Helen Greek Orthodox Cathedral and a director of the Children's Miracle Network Telethon.

Kenneth Crompton Jr., R'48, is director of new church development with the Lutheran Church in America.

Elbert Holt, R'49, has been recognized by The Merchants and Business Men's Mutual Insurance Co. as one of the company's top 10 producers of business for work in December 1986. He is a sales representative for the Harrisburg, Pa.-based company.

Alton R. Sharpe Jr., M.D., R'49, is a professor of radiology and medicine at the Medical College of Va. in Richmond.

The Rev. David F. White Jr., R'50, former pastor of Weatherford Memorial Baptist Church, has been named manager of marketing and enterprise for Volunteers of America in Virginia. Dr. White is an ordained minister and has served as pastor of churches in Virginia, Maryland, South Carolina and Kentucky. He has served on the faculties of Clemson University and the University of Virginia. He holds a master's degree from John Hopkins University and a doctorate from the University of Georgia. of Richmond.

Jack W. Fretwell Jr., R'61, is a senior instructional specialist with Xerox in Leesburg, Va.

David M. Fuller, CLU, R'63, G'64, has formed David M. Fuller, CLU & Associates, a corporate fringe benefits consulting firm, in Richmond, Va.

Neil Goren, B'63, is director of new products marketing for the Mennco.

George F. Green III, B'64, B'69, has been promoted to senior vice president with Sovran Financial Corp. and Sovran Bank/Maryland. Green has been manager of the bank's asset-based lending division since joining the bank in 1982. He serves as director for the National Commercial Finance Association. Green; his wife, Sue; and family reside in Rockville, Md.

Charles A. Hartz, R'64, L'68, was promoted to general counsel with the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad Co. He joined the company in 1971 and previously served as assistant general counsel.

Jack Ellis, B'65, has been named vice president for sales and marketing with Williams Contract Furniture of Richmond.

Jefferson D. Ewell III, R'65, is an account executive with Planned Equity Corp. in Georgia.

Nathan S. English Jr., B'66, represented the University on Nov. 24, 1986, at the inauguration of Dr. James Koch as president of the University of Montana.

Emmett J. Morgan Jr., B'67, has been named senior vice president with Home Insurance Co. He will oversee the company's newly created southern region which will direct operations in 10 states and the District of Columbia. Morgan joined Home Insurance in 1981. He will be located in Richmond.

Keith L. Tinkham, R'67, is a senior professional representative with Merck Sharp and Dohme in Charlotte, N.C. In September 1986, he was promoted to hospital chief petty officer with Reserve Naval Hospital Camp Lejeune #307 in Charlotte.
Coleman B. Yeatts Jr., L'68, deputy staff judge advocate with the 80th division (Training), USAR, was recently sworn in as a judge in the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court, 22nd Judicial District.

Harry G. Daniel, G'69, supervisor from Dale District, was elected chairman of the 1987 Chesterfield County, Va., Board of Supervisors. Daniel, who is process and training, USAR, was recently sworn in.

He joined the bank in 1984 and for-
Robert D. Seabolt, R'77, is an attorney with Mays, Valentine, Davenport and Moore in Richmond.

Stephen Wade Atkins, R'78, is an associate attorney with Gardner, Gardner and Barrow in Martinsville, Va.

James Bradford Gardner, B'78, is assistant manager, managerial accounting for Bousios, S.A., an affiliate of PPG Industries Inc., located in Paris, France.

Henry W. Jones Jr., L'78, was elected chairman of the Democratic Party of Wake County, N.C., in April 1985. Henry and his wife, Mary June Jones, B'79, live in Raleigh, N.C.

David E. Kent, M.D., R'78, is a physician with the Scripps Clinic Medical Group in La Jolla, Calif.

William Mackay, B'78, is general manager of the Huntsville, Ala., STAR5 baseball club, the minor league club of the Oakland A's.

Steven J. McIntosh, R'78, recently received the Master of Business Administration degree from Clemson U. in Clemson, S.C.

Kyle Royce Riddle, 8'78, was elected to the board of directors of the professional products division of Musick Hardware Corp. of Richmond. The company recently completed a major renovation project.

Gregory M. Luce, L’76, is a partner with the law firm of Fulbright & Jaworski in Washington, D.C. He is the partner in charge of the health care and health care group of the Washington office.

J. Daniel Marsh, R’76, is a research scientist with the Environmental Sciences Division of Martin Marietta Energy Systems Inc. in Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Robert J. Martens, R’76, is supervisor/production, with Richmond News Inc.

Thomas L. Rowe, R’76, L’79, has been named a senior claims attorney with Lawyers Title Insurance Corp.

Jeffrey Alan Boteler, R’77, is a mechanic with Bead Plumbing & Heating in Manassas, Va.

Jane C. Chudoba, B’77, was awarded the Virginia Pathfinder Award by the Richmond Professional Women’s Network. The award recognizes a woman who is outstanding in her field and serves as a role model to other women. Chudoba is vice president of commercial real estate for Morton G. Thalhimer Inc.

Jeffrey L. Franklin, R’77, is campaign manager for Sen. William F. Parks for re-election as senator from the 7th District in Virginia.

Catherine Friedel Loh, B’80, is a consulting analyst with the Marketing Corp. of America in Westport, Conn.

MacKenzie T. Miller, R’80, is president of Sundance Pool Service Co. in Dallas, Texas.

David P. Musick, R’80, is vice president of Musick Hardware Corp. of Richmond. The company recently completed a major renovation and expansion project.

Robert Sands Schlegel, R’80, is general manager with Fabrication Specialists Inc. in Reading, Pa. He and his wife, Debra Mahon Schlegel, W’80, live in Wyomissing, Pa.

John H. Settle Jr., B’80, is a broker with Wheat, First Securities in Richmond.

Steven C. Delaney, B’81, has been promoted to chief administrative officer with Investors Savings Bank in Richmond. He joined Investors in 1976.

Wade Jewell, R'84, is controller with Smith-Midland Corp. in Midland, Va.

Jennifer Kozak, G'84, academic coordinator for athletics at Wichita State U., has been appointed to the 1987 Student-Athlete Recognition Committee of the National Association of Academic Advisors for Athletics. She has served in the Wichita State athletic department since August 1986. She was an assistant in the sports information office for 1½ years before being appointed academic coordinator in January. She is a 1982 graduate of Dickinson College and earned her master's degree in sport management from UR in 1984.

Russell P. Marks, R'84, is a sales representative with Tournament of Champions in Forest Hills, N.Y. He is working on his master's degree in sports management at UR.

Cheryl Michel, B'84, is benefits manager with Central Fidelity Bank in Richmond.

Brian T. Tams, R'84, is a service representative with James R. Newell Co. Inc. in Richmond.

George M. Ashworth, R'85, is a service coordinator for the Richmond Academy of Medicine Services Corp. in Richmond.

L. Harvey Johnson, U'85, is personnel director with John Tyler Community College in Chester, Va.

Donald M. McGayhey, L'85, was admitted to the New York State Bar in July 1986. He is employed by Bruer and Lark as an associate attorney.

Milton C. Nuchols, B'85, is a mortgage loan officer with Anchor Mortgage Services Inc. in Wayne, N.J.

Andrew W. Payne, R'85, is a sales representative with AAA of Virginia in Richmond.

C. Thomas Richardson, B'85, is a corporate banking associate with European American Bank in Hauppauge, N.Y. In October he graduated from the bank's management training program and is in the Middle Market Lending Group on Long Island.

Victoria L. Shelton, L'85, is residing in Suffolk, Va., is still a lieutenant in the Judge Advocate General's Corps of the U.S. Navy and is a prosecutor in courts-martial at NAS, OCEANNA, Virginia Beach, Va.

Robert Kyle Tucker, B'85, is a systems engineer with International Business Machines in Charlottesville, Va.

Stuart H. Williams, R'85, is a salesman with Medical Economics Co. in Oradell, N.J.

Kready S. Brown, R'86, is a teaching assistant in the classics department at the U. of Massachusetts in Amherst.

James E. Drake, B'86, is in the Ph.D. program in chemical engineering at UCLA. He plans to graduate in 1989 or 1990.

Michele N. Drolette, B'86, is an internal auditor with Media General Inc. in Richmond.

Heide M. Englemair, B'86, is an auditor with Ernst & Whinney in Richmond.

Stephen E. Farmen, R'86, is a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army and is stationed at Fort Lewis in Tacoma, Wash. He completed basic officers course, transportation, at Fort Eustis, Va.; airborne school at Fort Benning, Ga.; and transportation officers maintenance school at Fort Knox, Ky. He is a platoon leader at Fort Lewis.

William M. Gottwald, M.D., RBD'86, has been named director—pharmaceutical ventures for Ethyl Corp. In his new position, Dr. Gottwald's responsibilities include coordination between Ethyl and the newly acquired Nelson Research and Development Co. of Irvine, Calif., and related activities. Dr. Gottwald joined Ethyl in 1981 in the company's human resources department. After serving on the staff of the budget department, he was named marketing manager of Ethyl's subsidiary, the Elk Horn Coal Corp. in 1982. He was promoted to vice president and general manager of Elk Horn in 1984. Dr. Gottwald holds a B.S. degree from Washington and Lee U. He received his M.D. degree from Tulane U.

Laura Lee B. Hannah, B'86, is an associate account executive with Automatic Data Processing in Richmond.

Robert H. Harris Jr., B'86, is director of development services with Harrison & Bates in Richmond.

Kevin T. Kaylor, R'86, is a 2nd lieutenant and medical platoon leader with the U.S. Army at Fort Lewis in Tacoma, Wash.

Jeffry A. Meadows, R'86, is an Army Reserve 2nd lieutenant and has completed an infantry officer basic course at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga.

W. Clark McGhee, B'86, is a management associate with United Virginia Bank in Richmond.

Michael S. Simpson, B'86, is a lieutenant in the U.S. Army and is stationed in Aiea, Hawaii.

Neil F. Suffa, R'86, is a staff accountant with Deloitte, Haskins and Sells in Richmond.

Christopher J. Toolan, R'86, is a stock broker (account executive) with Prudential Bache Securities in Vienna, Va.

George N. Wilson IV, R'86, is an assistant manager of the Taylor-Ramsey Corp. in Pamplin, Va.

MARRIAGES

William MacKay, B'78, and Kelly Regan, Nov. 1, 1986, in Greensboro, N.C.

John H. Settle Jr., B'80, and Delores B. Beaty, R'80, of Arlington, Va., died recently. He was the father of actresses Shirley Maclaine and actor-producer, Warren Beatty. Beaty was a former principal of Westhampton High School. He left Richmond in 1945 to serve as chief probation officer of Arlington County and enter the real estate business. He had a doctorate in psychology and philosophy and was also a jazz musician.

Robert H. Harris Jr., (B), a daughter, Lauren Noell, born Nov. 22, 1986.

DEATHS

1923/T. Dix Sutton, (L), of Richmond, died March 27, 1987.

1924/Ira O. Beaty, (R), of Arlington, Va., formerly of Richmond, died in January 1987. He was the father of actress Shirley Maclaine and actor-producer, Warren Beatty. Beaty was a former principal of Westhampton High School. He left Richmond in 1945 to serve as chief probation officer of Arlington County and enter the real estate business. He had a doctorate in psychology and philosophy and was also a jazz musician.

1926/Hartfel F. Frazier, (R), recently died.

1926/Cassel H. Robinson, (R), of Appomattox, Va., died April 8, 1987. He bought the Times-Virginian in 1931, served as editor and sold it in 1962. He was known as "Father Darkleaf," for the weekly column he wrote for the paper. He began writing the column in 1931 and continued until his death. Robinson began writing columns 62 years ago when he was at UR, with "Hash and Rehash" in The Collegian. In addition to his newspaper career, Robinson spent four years as a radio commentator in Lynchburg, a job that won him a first-place Virginia Associated Press award. Robinson wrote a history of Appomattox, Histoire d'Appomattox, which was used in the county schools. He was a member of St. Anne's Episcopal Church.

1926/Dr. J. Chester Swanson, (R), of Berkeley, Calif., died recently. He had been retired since 1971, after serving as a professor with the School of Education of the University of California in Berkeley. Dr. Swanson spent 11 months in the Philippines in the late 1950s as chairman of a team of six American educators making a study of the public schools of the Philippines. He received his M.A. and Ph.D. from Duke University.

1929/Dr. Eston S. Robertson, (R), of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., died Dec. 24, 1985.

1930/William Evans Massey Sr., (L), a daughter, Virginia "Father Darkleaf," for the weekly column he wrote for the paper. He began writing the column in 1931 and continued until his death. Robinson began writing columns 62 years ago when he was at UR, with "Hash and Rehash" in The Collegian. In addition to his newspaper career, Robinson spent four years as a radio commentator in Lynchburg, a job that won him a first-place Virginia Associated Press award. Robinson wrote a history of Appomattox, Histoire d'Appomattox, which was used in the county schools. He was a member of St. Anne's Episcopal Church.

1926/Dr. J. Chester Swanson, (R), of Berkeley, Calif., died recently. He had been retired since 1971, after serving as a professor with the School of Education of the University of California in Berkeley. Dr. Swanson spent 11 months in the Philippines in the late 1950s as chairman of a team of six American educators making a study of the public schools of the Philippines. He received his M.A. and Ph.D. from Duke University.

1929/Dr. Eston S. Robertson, (R), of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., died Dec. 24, 1985.

WWII, he served as vice president of the firm. In 1962 he succeeded his brother as president and chief executive officer. He became chairman of the board in 1972 and retired in 1977. The Massey Foundation in 1957 as a private philanthropic organization supporting educational and health care organizations primarily in Virginia, West Virginia and Kentucky. The Massey Cancer Center at the Medical College of Virginia is named for Margaret Barnett Massey; and his brother, the late Evan Massey. The American gallery of the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts, the William E. Massey wing, is also named after him. Massey also supported the Red Cross, the Salvation Army and other organizations, including the Ballet of the Richmond Symphony. He was a member of St. Paul’s Episcopal Church. 1931/Angelo Joseph Villani, M.D., (R), of Myrtle Beach, S.C., died March 2, 1987. He was a retired physician. 1932/William A. Irvine, (L), of Petersburg, Va., died in September 1980. 1933/Clayton Harlow, (L), of Richmond, died Dec. 17, 1986. 1933/Samuel Spottwood Taliaferro, (R), of Caret, Va., died Jan. 22, 1987. He was a retired farmer and a former member of the Essex County School Board and School Trustee Board. Taliaferro lived at Lily Mount Farm. He was a past president of the Essex County Farm Bureau, a former director of the Bank of Essex, a member of the Society of the Cincinnati and the Essex County Historical Society. He was a member of Rappahannock Christian Church in Dumfries, Va. 1934/David J. Connors, (R), of Old Lyme, Conn., died in January 1987. He was retired as treasurer of Saybrook Oil Co. in Saybrook, Conn. 1934/William W. Glick, (R), of Richmond, a pharmacist and former owner of Chelf Drug, died Jan. 22, 1987, in Delray, Fla. He earned a bachelor of science degree in chemistry at UR in 1934 and a degree in pharmacy from the Medical College of Virginia in 1935. He opened Chelf Drug Co. in 1937. He retired and closed the store in 1979. Glick served as president of Temple Beth Israel for 12 years and was also a member of the board of directors. In 1970 he was awarded the National Synagogue President's Award by the Union of Orthodox Synagogues of America. He was also a member of the board of directors of Beth Shalom Home of Central Virginia. A 32nd degree mason, he was a member of the Acton Temple Shrine and past master of Masonic Lodge 53. 1935/Paul Henry Poehler, (R), of Richmond, died Feb. 4, 1987. He was retired chairman of the board of Citizens and Marine, a United Virginia Bank affiliate in Newport News. Poehler joined UVB, then State Planters Bank and Trust Co. and now Sovran Bank N.A., in 1936. He served as manager of the former Sixth and Broad Street branch in Richmond from 1955 until 1965. In 1965, he also served as president of Vienna Trust Co. in Vienna, Va., a UVB affiliate that later was known as UVB at Fairfax. He served as senior vice president of Marine Bank in Newport News as president and chief executive officer in 1972. He retired as chairman of the board in 1977. A Richmond native, he also holds a degree from Rutgers U. He also attended the Stonier Graduate School of Banking. He served in the U.S. Navy during WWII. He was a former president of Central Richmond Association and a lifelong member of St. John’s United Church of Christ. 1936/J. Marker Dern, (L), of Christiansburg, Va., died Jan. 20, 1987. 1937/Berkeley H. Martin Jr., M.D., (R), of Richmond, died Feb. 27, 1987. Dr. Martin had been an ophthalmologist in Richmond for 30 years. A native of Richmond, he graduated from the Medical College of Virginia. He was a member of the Medical Society of Virginia, the Richmond Academy of Medicine, the American Ophthalmology and Ophthalmology Society, and the Virginia Society of Ophthalmology. Dr. Martin served on the State Board of Examiners of Opticians as an appointee of Gov. Mills E. Godwin Jr. He was a member of Westminster Baptist Church, where he served as a deacon, trustee and a Sunday school teacher. 1937/Donald S. Rubenstein, (R), of Gaitersburg, Md., died Feb. 1, 1987. He was a former deputy director for civilian personnel for the United States Army. Rubenstein had worked for the Army for a total of 32 years, serving in the Pacific during WWII, then later as a civilian until he retired in 1973. He received the Army’s Exceptional Civilian Service Award. After retiring from the government, Rubenstein served as personnel services director for U. of Illinois and later worked part-time as a personnel management consultant, also writing articles for several professional journals. Rubenstein did graduate work at Johns Hopkins U. 1938/Paul Edward Nauman, (R), of Mechanicsville, Va., died March 15, 1987. He was a retired insurance adjuster and a former member of the Richmond Area Presbyterians. In 1977 Nauman retired from American Mutual Insurance Co., where he had been a claims adjuster. He was a Presbyterian elder for 37 years, first at Forest Hill Presbyterian Church and then at Tuckahoe Presbyterian Church. He served two terms as secretary for the Richmond Northwest Camp of Gideons International. He was also a member of the executive council for the Richmond Area Presbyterians for five years, until 1984. He served as a major in the Army Air Corp. during WWII. 1939/James H. Knight, (B), of Richmond, died recently. 1940/Bernard W. McCray, (L), of Richmond, died July 8, 1986. 1943/Dr. Joseph A. Fortunato, (R), of Newport, N.J., died in September 1985. He was an optometrist. 1949/Willard C. Osburn Jr., (R), of Richmond, died Feb. 20, 1987. Osburn was communications director for the Medical Society of Virginia. He had been with the medical society since 1971 and served as director of legislative services for nearly 15 years. He received a bachelor's degree in psychology from UR and served in the Navy during WWII. He was a member of Manakin Episcopal Church and Kappa Alpha fraternity. At the time of his death he was a unit commissioner for the Boy Scouts’ Shawonodsee District. 1952/Waverly E. Nunally, (L), of Richmond, died Dec. 18, 1986. 1954/P. Armstrong, (L), of Richmond, died Nov. 3, 1986. 1956/William Reeves Dunn, (R), of Richmond, died March 6, 1987. Dunn, a writer, editor, and historian, attended UR for two years. He was a senior public affairs representative for Virginia Power and the author of "Our Living Past," a history of the Lynchburg preservation movement. 1964/Arthur Stanley Maris, (L), of Richmond, died Oct. 8, 1986. 1966/Reid Simmons, (L), of Richmond, died Nov. 30, 1986. 1974/Albert Nance, (L), of Richmond, died March 15, 1987. 1977/Lane E. Shockley, (R), of Ocean City, Md., died Nov. 3, 1986.

Westhampton

'18

Mary Desmond Raffin
1600 Westbrook Avel. Apt. 619
Richmond, Va. 23227

'20

Katherine Vaughan Willis
329 Harrison Street
Princeton, N.J. 08540

'22

Irene Summers Stoneeman
3151 Varina on the James
Richmond, Va. 23223

Dorothy Thelma Gibson, who lives with her daughter near Washington, has had several serious operations but is getting along very well now. Her husband died some time ago. She has three children, a daughter and two sons.

Narcissa Daniel Hargroves enjoys the beautiful grounds at Foulkeways in Gwynedd, Pa., and her many activities keep her busy. One daughter lives in Boston; two in New York.

Glady s Booth Bentley is in an intermediate care center in Conway, S. C. She has a form of Parkinson’s disease, has a walker but is in a wheelchair much of the time. One daughter, Jane, who attended Westhampton, lives in Myrtle Beach; she is a portrait painter and her husband is a retired air colonel, an attorney and a member of the city council. Their son has a daughter, Gladys’ only great-grandchild. Another daughter lives in Myrtle Beach and is an herbal specialist. Gladys would enjoy hearing from members of our class.
Several members of our class in Richmond spent last Christmas with out-of-town children—Louise Wilkinson Morton with her son in Houston, Texas; Inez DeJarnette Hite with her daughter in Virginia Beach and Joanna Savedge Ellet with her daughter in Buffalo, N.Y.

Inez had her annual trip to Sea Island, Ga., in January. After she came home, a bout with flu and a fall kept her in for a month. She is much better now.

Rita May Baker died in March 1987. She was an accomplished cellist and she had played with the Richmond and Norfolk symphonies. She also taught and composed. She was buried in Forest Lawn Cemetery here in Richmond. Joanna Savedge Ellet, Norma Coleman Broadus, Louise Wilkinson Morton and I went to her funeral.

At a lovely Valentine party I enjoyed seeing Ethel Pond Brinkley.

Gray Robinson French has moved from Leisure World to the Presbyterian Home just across the Maryland line into the District of Columbia.

Louise Eubank Gray was in town recently visiting friends.

Agnes LaPrade died recently. God’s blessings on her memory.

I am still enjoying membership in a Woman’s Club, book club, garden club and my church. Let Louise Massey or me hear what you are doing these days.
'34

Katherine Sergeant Neady
3810 Atlantic Avenue, Apt. 904
Virginia Beach, Va. 23451

Helen Hulcher and Virginia Watkins
Ellenburg visited together last December when Virginia was in Richmond.

Katherine Brown Van Allen and Harold live in Kingston, N.Y. They are active in their church and Katherine does volunteer work in a nursing home.

Helen Hulcher, Virginia McIntosh Puckett, Frances Gee and Ann Wood meet each month at luncheon at the Christian Women's Club.

Ed and I attended the Tidewater Alumni dinner in March and met the new president, Dr. Samuel A. Banks. I also had a long talk with Jacqueline Warner Warren, W36.

Ammie Herrin Hill Royer has married and is still living in Richmond.

'36

Louise Callison
Apt. A-319, 1900 Lauderdale Drive
Richmond, Va. 23233

Anne Ryland is president of the Residents Association of Westminster-Canterbury (Richmond) while Helen Falls is serving her second year as chairman of the Residents Council at Lakewood Manor (Richmond).

Sarah Covey Hurst's husband Roger was named Volunteer of the Month for December by Mount Dora, Fla., Chamber of Commerce. He and Sarah are involved in education programs there.

Julia Riis Moore enjoyed the Christmas holidays in the Annapolis area with her two daughters and her grandchildren.

Ruth Parker Jones spent two weeks last October in Kenya.

Martha Cosby Rucker is enjoying the quiet life of a small town in Chatham, Va. She has bought a home in which she lives upstairs while her sister and brother-in-law live downstairs.

Mary Virginia Burfoot Hill has a new home on twenty acres of land in Powhatan, Va. The Rev. Dorothy Harrison Enslow resides in Cascade Plaza, a nursing home overlooking her beloved western mountains in Redmond, Wash.

Millie Crowder Pickels was in Richmond last September for the celebration of her mother's 90th birthday.

In February, Sue Bonnet Chermes and Herbert observed their 50th wedding anniversary in Lexington, Va. Minnie Bowers Gill and Wilfred and Lucy Blackwell Alexander and Paul joined them for the occasion.

Garland Bache Garrett's youngest son, graduating from Davidson College, won a scholarship to Emory where he has recently earned his Ph.D.

Rae Norford Hess and Cal have joined a Backyard Wildlife Habitat Program, initiated by the National Wildlife Federation. They recently won the Ellen Schroeder Horticulture Award, a Pennsylvania state laurel for efforts in horticulture and design during 1986.

Alice Pugh Bartz and Warren spent much of last winter in Florida. Alice is still active on the Villanova faculty teaching graduate library students, while Warren spends many hours playing the clarinet in the local band.

Attending the Richmond Club spring brunch at the Commonwealth Club were Helen Denoon Hopson, Marjorie Pugh Tabb, Martha Riis Moore, Minnie Bowers Gill, Frances Williams Parkinson, Eleanor Whitehead Stanley, Louise Collison, Helen Falls, Kitty Ellis Fox and Mary Holt Woolfolk Carlton. The brunch guests were the new UR president and his wife, Dr. Samuel A. Banks and Dr. Joanne Trautmann Banks.

Husband Charles of Elizabeth Folkes Edgar died on April 7, 1987. They had been at Westminster-Canterbury for some time.

'38

Anne P. Walker
1813 Woodbine Road
Richmond, Va. 23225

Peggy Lockwood Nolting
7833 Jalenke Road
Richmond, Va. 23225

Last December, Emily Parker Kendall and Lawrence spent three weeks in Australia and New Zealand. In May daughter Corbin presented a new grandson to them.

Peggy Lockwood Nolting and Dick have a new grandson in California who is named for Peggy's brother, Sam.

Julia Gunter Davidson was in Richmond last October for a reunion of the Ginter Park Baptist Church of which her father was a founder. Julia spent the winter months in Belgium again this year with her oldest son and his family.

Last summer, Ed Crostic Grigg and Ed had a family reunion at Myrtle Beach, S.C. where they, their two sisters, four sons and eight grandchildren gathered from six different states.

Mildred Lewis Massengill spent a week in North Carolina with Josephine Trevett McElhoffer while Jo recuperated from surgery.

Last fall, Peggy and I had lunch at the Virginia Museum with Henrietta Harrell Smith, Douglas Gee Baldwin and Mildred Gafford Davis. We discussed ideas for reunion. Anyone having memorabilia for the class album should send it to Douglas or Josephine Mallory Cosby. Save any later articles to bring you to the reunion in 1988 (for example, clothes, banners, posters, etc.)

Though we all knew she had heart problems, our class was both saddened and shocked by the sudden death of Mildred Gafford Davis in December. Besides supervising the Henrico County Department of Welfare from 1956 until her retirement in 1980, she served on the boards of directors of Central Virginia Legal Aid Society, the Richmond Area Heart Association, the Richmond Area Cancer Society and the Henrico Christmas Mother Council. She was also instrumental in developing the Youth Emergency Shelter and the Elizabeth Adam Crump Manor Nursing Home.

Peggy Lockwood Nolting attended the Richmond Club Spring Brunch at the Commonwealth Club and was greatly impressed by the guest speaker, Dr. Samuel A. Banks, the new president of the University.

Don't forget when you make your annual contribution to the University, that it can be designated for the Poetry Prize Fund that Barbara DeJarnette Bagwell started in memory of Margaret Haley "Sweet" Carpenter.

'40

Mary Sue Carter Patterson
1967 Brightwater Blvd., N.E.
St. Petersburg, Fl, 33704
While Margaret Brinson Reed was in Florida, she had lunch with Mildred James Talton in Orlando.

Marge says the '40s scholarship fund is doing very well, and reminds us that there are many ways to contribute.

If anyone knows the whereabouts of former classmates who may or even may not have graduated, let her know, because plans are in the making for our 50th year reunion and we need to track down everybody.

Maude Smith Jurgens and Fred recently went west in their van and visited daughter Corliss and her family in Oregon. They also visited their son in the San Jose area of California and saw Eleanor Parsons Fish and her family.

Myra Ann Gregory Hitch stays busy keeping two homes and traveling between Chester, Va.; Florida; and New Jersey.

Annabell Lumpkin Hessel's husband has been recuperating from surgery.

Margaret Brinson Reed's husband had his second cataract operation and is doing well.

Our sympathy goes to Frances Bailey Gill, whose mother, Mrs. John Wendell Bailey, died recently.

Gene and I welcomed our second grandchild, another girl, this year. We went to California in April for a press meeting and another in Buenos Aires in May.

Send in news of yourselves, and don't forget to send in your ideas for our reunion.

'42

Frances Callisch Rothenberg
4003 Kensington Avenue
Richmond, Va. 23221
'44

Barbara Lewis Tallbott
224 Westwood Road
Annapolis, Md. 21401

I was deeply saddened to receive the telephone call from Jeanne Yeamans Baxter of the death of Marion Lawton Kinzey on Oct. 13, 1986. Several members of our class attended the service at Ginter Park Baptist Church in Richmond. Marion was a loyal and active supporter of Westhampton College as well as my dear friend. She will be sorely missed. Our deepest sympathy is extended to her mother, her two sons and the family.

Pat Husbands Berton has been back to San Francisco to help her mother, who broke her hip.

Marie Peachee Wicker visited daughter Field in Luxembourg, Belgium, in October. Peachee has been active in the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, having just finished a term as president of District 8. This is Peachee's last year as president of the Chapel Hill Woman's Club.

Virginia Lambeth Shotwell, who is director of RICH Career Center in Palos Heights, Ill., has also taught meditation courses in connection with her wholistic health interests.

Jane Thorpe, director of alumnae relations, writes that the restoration of the Tower Room in North Court has begun! Maybe our letters helped.

Ann Beverly Ryland attended the February wedding of Frances Anne Beale Godde's youngest son David and Betsy Lindsay, B'81, of Norfolk. The couple is living in Virginia Beach.

'46

Cornelia Reid Raulet
8831 Tuckerman Lane
Potomac, Md. 20854

I was deeply saddened to receive the telephone call from Jeanne Yeamans Baxter of the death of Marion Lawton Kinzey on Oct. 13, 1986. Several members of our class attended the service at Ginter Park Baptist Church in Richmond. Marion was a loyal and active supporter of Westhampton College as well as my dear friend. She will be sorely missed. Our deepest sympathy is extended to her mother, her two sons and the family.

Pat Husbands Berton has been back to San Francisco to help her mother, who broke her hip.

Marie Peachee Wicker visited daughter Field in Luxembourg, Belgium, in October. Peachee has been active in the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, having just finished a term as president of District 8. This is Peachee's last year as president of the Chapel Hill Woman's Club.

Virginia Lambeth Shotwell, who is director of RICH Career Center in Palos Heights, Ill., has also taught meditation courses in connection with her wholistic health interests.

Jane Thorpe, director of alumnae relations, writes that the restoration of the Tower Room in North Court has begun! Maybe our letters helped.

Ann Beverly Ryland attended the February wedding of Frances Anne Beale Godde's youngest son David and Betsy Lindsay, B'81, of Norfolk. The couple is living in Virginia Beach.

'48

Jackie Jeter Shockey
3506 Noyes Avenue, S.E.
Charleston, W.V. 25304

Doris Vickers Lektorich and Frank visited some of their children in Oregon, then vacationed in New Orleans and Natchez. Frank is still with Ford Aerospace and Doris has continued her training in interior design.

Ginna Herndon Pugh. Betty and Bill spent Christmas holidays in South Carolina. Billy is engaged and Debbie is a teacher.

Send news to me before the deadlines, October 1 and April 1.

'50

Elizabeth Givens Pierce
Box 67
Hudgins, Virginia 23076

Pat Kelly Jordan and Alex have jobs in Martinsville that keep them busy and they enjoy their cabin in the Blue Ridge Mountains. Son Jimmy has set up his dental practice in Martinsville.

Louise Covington Randall and Harry visited their children who live throughout the Midwest.

Frances Sutton Oliver and Raymond took a trip in 1986. They are building a retirement home in the James Landing section of Newport News.

Libby Givens Pierce and Bucky spent the winter in Florida and had a visit with Peggy Wells Meadon and Ray on the Gulf Coast. Peggy is working part-time in the hospital physical therapy department and she is treating home health patients.

Gene Hart Joyner's daughter Celeste was married to Ronald Hall, a young Baptist minister. Daughter Debbie has two sons. Gene and Lee Reeves Childress attended the annual Richmond Club card party last winter.

Marjorie Parson Owen and Ralph have two new granddaughters. Marianna Rounds Holloway has a new granddaughter and Betty Sims Loving has a second grandson.

Cathy Krause Keeney and husband Grafton have six children, five sons and one daughter plus three grandchildren. Grafton left his pastorate in 1964 and has been in social work ever since. Cathy has completed work on a master's degree in guidance and counseling and is working on a master's in theology.

Joanne Waring Karp was promoted to secretary to the director of Caribbean affairs at the Agency for Institutional Development in Washington.

Barbara Coleman Augustine is the administrative assistant at a retirement home in McLean, Va. She is also continuing her studies in gerontology at George Mason U.

Bettie Lane Barnhill Bragg and Oscar were featured in the Chattanooga Times Free section. Bettie Lane is a creative cook and a dozen of her recipes were included in the article.

Ellen Largent Periman is enjoying retirement and involvement in community activities in Winchester.

Martha Harris Matthews retired in January as account clerk with the Roanoke County Library system.

Bea Covington O'Flaherty and Billie both had surgery in the spring and have recovered.

Marianne Beck Duty's husband William had heart surgery in December and is fine. Daughter Mary Leslie was married in February and has completed her second year at T.C. Williams School of Law. Our sympathy goes out to Tucky Bellows Reed whose husband Dr. Wellford Reed passed away on March 6, 1987.

We regret the delay in knowing about the death of Martha Spencer Fidler's mother in March 1986. Martha has four grandchildren and three foster grandchildren.

Barbara Brann Johnston's father, Dr. William C. Brann, age 84, died last October. He had been a physician in South Boston for 43 years.

Kay Mallory Loudermilk's husband, The Rev. Donald M. Loudermilk, received the honorary Doctor of Divinity degree from Alderson-Broaddus College in October. He is now serving as associate executive minister of the West Virginia Baptist Convention.

'52

Nola Tickey Breckenridge
4865 Oakcrest Drive
Fairfax, Va. 22030

Joyce Bell Cody's son Dave was married last November. Joyce's son Steve, R'80, and his wife celebrated their second anniversary. Son Doug has a leave from teaching and is attending law school at Temple U. in Philadelphia. Daughter Susan is at Millersville U. in Pennsylvania. Joyce and Bill celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary by going on a cruise to Bermuda.

Desiree Stuart Alexander enjoys retirement and is learning to play golf.

Harriet Stubb and Harriet Willingham Johnson flew last December to Chapel Hill, N.C., for the wedding of Anne Gibson Hill's youngest daughter, Margaret. Harriet W. and husband Cork spent four weeks in Norway last summer. Harriet is executive director of The Acid Rain Foundation.

Diane Evans Glen wrote the sad news of her sister's death. Shirley Evans Hart, W'S6, died last July in Arlington, Va., of respiratory arrest. She had been a teacher in the Fairfax County schools for many years.

Barbara Cawthorne Clarke's daughter Anne graduated from Duke in May 1986 and took a job with Guest Quarters, the suite hotel chain in Atlanta. Her oldest son and his wife live in Richmond. Her second son Bob, the Navy pilot, was married in July 1986. Both her daughters-in-law have completed their first year of law school.

After 26 years in the classroom, I retired from teaching in June 1987. I am devoting my time to my parents, who are 85, and my five grandchildren.

'54

Linda Goodman Lewis
210 Thomas Heights
Martinsville, Va. 24112

Carmen Wong McCabe and Donald live in New Jersey, and she is a learning disabilities consultant to the Trenton Board of Education. She is mother of five children and has two grandchildren.

Polly Newman Smith and John Ran's son John Randolph Jr. married Stacey Sternheimer in March.

Cos Washburn Barnes and Harry are grandparents. They traveled to California to visit their daughter, son-in-law and granddaughter, who will soon be living in Korea.

Laura Mapp, head coach for the women’s basketball team at Bridgewater College, was honored for the second consecutive year as Old Dominion Athletic Conference Coach-of-the-Year. Finishing her 26th season at the Virginia College, she leads active Division III coaches with 342 career victories.

Ruth Dallos Weiss and husband Alan are living in North Miami Beach where he is a pharmacist and drugstore owner. Son Michael graduated from Southeastern College of Osteopathic Medicine in June 1986, married, and is now in Michigan at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital. Son Mark graduated from U. of Florida School of Dentistry and is now a dentist in North Miami Beach.

Daughter Beth is in her third year of pharmacy school at Mercer in Atlanta, Ga. Ruth has been a travel agent for 12 years and she and Alan went to Alaska on the Royal Princess to celebrate their 30th anniversary.

Rose Dranchak Martin works for the Commonwealth of Virginia in the accounting department for the Department of Information Technology. She received a certificate in computer operations from J. Sargeant Reynolds Community College and continues to take classes. Daughter Jeannine attends JMU and will be working for a Richmond accounting firm. Son John lives at home and works for a commercial construction firm.

Lois Reamy visited me on one of her recent trips home to King George. She continues to live in New York City. Lois writes travel articles for the magazine, The Institutional Investor.

Carolyn Moss Hartz
301 Wood Road
Richmond, Va. 23229

Emily Damerel King and I are sharing this secretary job. My turn lasts until our next reunion so please send news. I am working as a realtor for Bowers, Neils and Fonville. Emily completed the training course sponsored by the Richmond Convention and Visitors Bureau and is now a certified tour guide for the Richmond Metropolitan Area.

Carolyn Smith Yarbrough’s son “Champ” graduated from the College of Charleston last December and daughter Erroll Anne graduated from the law school of The U. of South Carolina in June. Carolyn and husband Dabney have been to Europe and Hawaii this year, attending medical meetings.

Carolyn Quinn Higinbothom wrote that son Bruce graduated from Duke U. last May and is now attending graduate school at Tulane.

Elinor “Dee” Delong Belk’s daughter Elinor graduated from Westhampton this June. She was captain of the University cheerleaders.

Mariett Ayers Eggleston teaches math at Monacan High School in Midlothian, Va. Son Eric is attending Virginia Tech and son Mark is at Ferrum College.

Mark your calendars for next year’s reunion.

Peggy Gore Skyes
806 Mu dado Lane SW
Vienna, Va. 22180

Elizabeth Wampler Jarrett
4716 John Scott Drive
Lynchburg, Va. 24503

Emily Ayers Gray
5208 Archer Drive, SW
Roanoke, Va. 24014

Leora Latavore Porter
1000 Sanford Avenue
Virginia Beach, Va. 23455

Susan Lee Harris
2525 Heath Place
Rexon, Va. 22209

Beverly Delano Motley is living in Warren, Va., where she has a preschool for four-year-olds. Husband Peyton is president of the Northern Neck State Bank. The Motleys have three children; Beth, 13; Peyton, 10; and Blake, 6 months. Barbara Beane Hurst and family have moved from Riverside, Calif., to Richmond.

Suzanne Owen Flippo works for the General Assembly in Richmond and also does volunteer work. Carter attends Virginia Tech. and Beth is a junior at College.

Judy Parrish Ratcliffe’s father, Del. Harry Parrish of Manassas, Va., is recovering from a heart attack suffered in March. Jane Chewning Prugh gives walking tours of Old Town Alexandria. She also serves on the PTA board and helps with Cub Scouts. The entire family took up skiing and has enjoyed trips to Stowe, Vt., and Wintergreen.

I enjoyed my first trip to London in March. I accompanied Paul on a business trip for British Aerospace where he is senior vice president for finance.

Sally Orlando Turner and Ralph just bought a home in Fairfax County, Va. He has a business outside Dulles Airport and they hope to resume their catering company once they are settled. They were in the catering business in Denver where they had lived since 1978. They have two children; Daniel was 4 in May, and Abigail was born in September.

BeBe DeBergh Green has two girls and sells the Carlisle line of clothing.

Susan Tarkington Thomas and Peter have a new daughter, Claire Garth Tarkington Thomas, born March 18, 1987. They have also moved into a new home.

Patricia Kibler has been elected an taught at UR for five years and was named Omicron Delta Kappa "Professor of the Year" for 1986. She plans to work full time consulting and teaching following completion of her degree.

Lynne Sweet McIntosh, husband Steve, and 2-year-old son Jimmy live in Hendersonville, N.C. Lynne received an MBA degree from Clemson U. in August 1986. Steve continues to work for DuPont in Brevard. He completed his MBA in December.

Pam Vick Leaf and husband David have built a home in Richmond's far West End. Pam continues to teach in the area and tutors also. She recently visited with Jack and Lee Anne McDonald Stoff and their children, Jan and newborn Will.

'84

Hilary K. Reicht
2012-A Park Avenue
Richmond, Va. 23220

Eileen Kneely Higgins is on temporary leave of absence from her job at Bankers Trust in New York City as she can spend more time with daughter Madeline Erin.

Kristin Whitney received her master's degree in Latin American studies from the U. of New Mexico in August 1986. She works for the Congressional Research Service of the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C.

Ellen Conover works at the White House in the Office of Public Liaison. She lives in Alexandria, Va.

Martha Knox is working on her master's degree in counseling at the U. of North Carolina, Greensboro. She plans to become an elementary school counselor.

Mary Miller is working on her master's degree at U.Va. She is pursuing a career in psychology.

Leslie Clark is an assistant account executive for Market Strategies Inc. in Richmond.

Ann Ladd is the midwestern sales representative for Seventeen magazine in Chicago.

Cynthia Driver Loman lives in Port St. Lucie, Fla., with husband Daniel. She is a feature writer and assistant lifestyle editor for The News Tribune in Port Fort Pierce, Fla.

Mary Scott Witherington was the maid of honor in her wedding in the Jenkins Greek Theatre. Also in the wedding were Kerry Hall, S. Price Riggs and Michelle Mead.

Mary Sue Crocker MacKenzie works in merchandise for J.C. Penney Co. In her wedding in Cannon Chapel were Lee Chapman Critz, Carrie Maddox, Christine McGraw and Marilyn Nashold.

Casey Pollard married Convis O. Brown, R'83, in September 1986. The couple is living in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Please continue to write with your news. Thanks for all your letters!
Financial Corp. in their real estate area funding for developers. Kendall Kerrigan is now living in Manhattan. She is working for Conde-Nast Publications in their personnel department. Susie Torell is working for Hearst Publications in their advertising & promotions department.

Anne Ferris is an au pair in Germany and Eugenia Gall has joined the Peace Corps.

Megan Thomson is assistant of administrative affairs for the Metropolitan Richmond Chamber of Commerce. Janine Stadler is an engineer with Case Communications in Columbia, Md.

Lisa Mangano is a financial analyst in corporate finance for Drexel Burnham Lambert in New York City. Linda Boggs is a paralegal with Hunton and Williams in corporate finance for Drexel Burnham Lambert in New York City. Both are Key Career Consultants for the Office of Career Planning and Placement.

Heidi Turner is enrolled in Lucas Travel School in Richmond. Also in Richmond, Kimberly Fahed works with Blake and Baine Real Estate and Carolyn Cavalleri is the training coordinator and a wairess for Cavalleri Enterprises Inc. Beth Howell is communications and public relations coordinator with National Card Control in Richmond.

Amy Leafe is studying at the Marshall Wythe School of Law at William and Mary. Kim Francis is a law student at the T.C. Williams School of Law. Betty Pugh continues her studies at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky., and Bev George is studying chemical engineering at U.Va.

Lola Franco is working for Telephone Marketing Programs, a Yellow Pages Advertising Agency in New York City. Suzanne Lee is an applications programmer with United Virginia Bank in Richmond.

MARRIAGES

BIRTHS

1969/Mr. and Mrs. Earl R. Crouch, (Edie Paulette), a son, John Andrew, Oct. 22, 1986.
1972/Mr. and Mrs. Peter Thomas, (Susan Tarkington), a daughter, Claire Garth Tarkington Thomas, March 18, 1987.
1973/Mr. and Mrs. Scott Butler, (Gayle Goodson), a daughter, Ellen Carroll, March 21, 1987.
1975/Mr. and Mrs. Mark T. Davis (Nancy Heisman), a son, Morgan Thomas, Feb. 22, 1987.
1976/Mr. and Mrs. Steven D. Woodyard, (Debra Hawkins), a son, Jeffrey Steven, Sept. 23, 1985.
Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Klein, (Nancy Kirkland), a daughter, Carey Elizabeth, Sept. 3, 1986.
Mr. and Mrs. William E. Walker, (Nancy Edwards), a daughter, Mary Catherine Mims, March 5, 1987.
Mr. and Mrs. Phil McEwen, (Karen Janulis), twins, Karen Anne and Sarah Kathleen, March 16, 1987.
1977/Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey M. Nolen, (Shelia Grizzard), a son, John William III, Feb. 6, 1987.
1978/Dr. and Mrs. John Wilson Steffe, (Lee Anne McDonald), a son, Robert Wilson (Will), February 1987.
Mr. and Mrs. Steven McIntosh, (Lynne Sweet), a son, James Irwin, Jan. 24, 1985.
1984/Mr. and Mrs. Kieran Higgins, (Eileen Kneenley), a daughter, Madeline Erin, Sept. 11, 1986.

DEATHS

1924/Rita May Baker, of Richmond, a former cellist with the Richmond and Norfolk symphonies, teacher and composer, March 11, 1987.
1928/Agnes LaPrade, of Richmond, March 4, 1987.
1932/Almarine Montgomery Franklin, of Richmond, a former administrative assistant for the American Red Cross, March 7, 1987.
We invite your comments on articles published in the University of Richmond Magazine or on any facet of the University. Send your letters to Editor, University of Richmond Magazine, University of Richmond, Virginia 23173. Letters are subject to editing, but we'll make sure your message comes through.

More Judges from T.C. Williams

Editor's Note: In the Spring 1987 UR Magazine we listed alumni of The T.C. Williams School of Law who are serving as judges. Several of you wrote or called to add names we inadvertently omitted, and these are listed below. Courts are in Virginia unless otherwise noted. Thank you for your letters.

1953
Kenneth W. Turner
Fourth Judicial District Court, Jacksonville, NC

1968
James E. Dalton Jr.
General District Court, Petersburg
Richard E. Lewis Jr.
General District Court, Dinwiddie
Coleman Yeatts
Juvenile & Domestic Relations Court, Pittsylvania and Franklin Counties, City of Danville

1971
James H. Chamblin
20th Judicial Circuit Court, Fauquier, Loudoun and Rappahannock Counties

1976
Suzanne Kuczko Fulton
Juvenile & Domestic Relations District Court, Wise County and City of Norton

Watch for details about "Town Hall" Meetings

Dr. Samuel A. Banks wants to know what you think about the University of Richmond.

He will be convening "town hall" meetings with parents and alumni this fall and winter at selected locations. Watch your mail for more information.