Law Library News

All of us in the library hope your Fall is going well, and that you are settling into a good routine of classes, studying and occasional sleep. In October, we're kicking off a series of training workshops over lunch with hands-on exercises to develop technology skills. We are looking for a few more people to join SLATE the Student Library and Technology Exchange (advisory board). Let me know if you're interested.

Roger Skalbeck, Associate Dean for Library and Information Services

Announcing: Tech Skills Workshops

In October and November, we're offering a series of technology skills workshops for law students. These are hands-on sessions over lunch to develop skills in effective and efficient use of technology for law school and legal work. See detailed descriptions on MuseNews and Sign up via Symplicity to tone your technology muscles.

All sessions are on Thursdays from Noon to 12:50 in Room L-31. RSVP Required.
