Director's Message

Welcome to all new and returning law students.

As we begin a new semester, here are new and continuing ways our library team supports your success. With technology, there are new printers in the computer lab, chargers for PC and Mac laptops, and collaboration technology in all library study rooms. To support learning outside class, we've added Quimbee and continue to provide study aids like Crunchtime and Law School Legends on Audio. For seminars and extended research, you can access thousands of electronic books, download volumes of the entire Code of Virginia and Michie's Jurisprudence, and use practice tools like Virginia Practice. These resources and services are brought to you by a team that collectively has decades of experience. We're all here to help you succeed. If you need anything, let us know.

Welcome back, and enjoy the weeks and months to come.

- Roger Skalbeck, Associate Dean

Library Space Updates

We moved some book collections, and a few people are in new locations. Discover details in our MuseNews blog.

Resources Update

Quimbee is Here!

You may have heard...Quimbee is here! The law library now provides access to Quimbee for all law students. This service provides videos, multiple-choice questions and self-paced learning tools, including content for all iL as well as many upper-level subject areas. Read our MuseNews blog for instructions on signing up through our account.

New Library Resources

Though we didn't have classes this summer, we added numerous new titles to our collection. Browse these collections to discover something new.
