Editor's Notes

I seem destined to go down in UR Magazine history as the editor with the shortest tenure. Before this issue reaches you, I will have joined the university relations staff of the University of Maryland's central administration. In this last column, I want to discuss the question my college friends often ask: "What's really going on at the University?"

Their question assumes from the start that things are changing. The most obvious evidence concerns buildings: the new Robins Center, a completely renovated North Court and Thomas Hall, Agnes Gray Dormitory now going up, the recently completed tennis courts, and the eight-lane track now almost finished. You will read about the comprehensive campus plan in this issue's lead story.

Provost Glassick points out that buildings are important only because of what goes on inside them—education. That's why he encouraged the UR faculty to conduct a major study of University academic goals, a study now nearing completion.

It is clear to me that UR can only compete with low-cost state institutions by making the most of its strengths: coordinate education, its relatively small size, the beautiful campus with its Richmond location, a faculty with a special concern for students, and the advantages of freedom and flexibility of a private institution. If it is to attract students despite higher tuition, the University must offer an educational program of clearly superior quality.

My alumni friends say they hear a lot about money from the University these days, and that is why. Quality education is costly. The Robins gift to endowment assures UR's financial stability, but the rest of us must do our part if we are to transform our University into an institution of national stature. Who has more of a stake in the success of that endeavor than those of us who hold UR degrees?

Trustees Adopt Master Plan for Campus

A new campus plan which outlines the University’s physical development in the years to come has been adopted by the Board of Trustees.

The theme of "quality, not quantity" underlies the plan. In the next 10 years the University will not grow larger but its physical facilities will be enhanced to support the UR goal: "to provide quality education in the best possible learning environment."

Perkins and Will, Inc., national campus planning firm, developed the new master plan, which projects major building in the area between the Westhampton campus and the Richmond College-School of Business-Law School area.

The planners documented the major needs of the University using data gathered earlier in a year of study by faculty, students, administrators, alumni and Trustees. Perkins and Will then specified the new construction and renovations necessary to meet these needs, gave costs for each project, and drew up a timetable showing what should be done when.

The result: a $30 million program of new buildings, outdoor athletic and physical education facilities, roads and parking areas, and renovations, to be made possible by the “Our Time in History” Development Program. Also included in the $50 million ten-year “Our Time” campaign are funds for endowed professorships, scholarships, academic program enrichment and classroom instructional equipment.

“We have suggested a development effort which goes far beyond the mere provisions of a few new buildings and correction of existing physical inadequacies,” said the planners. “It should provide a new image for the University. . .”

In releasing details of the campus plan, President E. Bruce Heilman echoed the planners’ optimism: “We now have a blueprint for the facilities we need to make the University of Richmond one of the finest small, private, church-related universities in the nation.”
The new plan creates for the University a unified campus instead of two separate campuses divided by the lake. It also calls for a new main entrance to the University, better marking of existing entrances, better lighting and landscaping of the campus, and a new traffic pattern.

In place of existing campus roads, the plan calls for a peripheral drive circling the campus. This drive, and adjacent screened parking areas, will return the central campus to pedestrians. Existing roads will be used as walkways and for emergency vehicles.

The Perkins and Will report supports the need for three major new building projects:

Library An addition to and renovation of F. W. Boatwright Memorial Library will increase its floor space from 29,000 to 100,000 square feet. The resulting library, with shelving space for 500,000 books and with the latest audio-visual equipment, will become a total learning resources center. This project will cost $3,320,000.

University Union A new University Union will foster a sense of community by providing a meeting place not only for students but also for faculty, staff, alumni, parents and visitors to campus. The Union will include a snack bar and guest dining area; meeting rooms; the campus post office; an enlarged book store; and space for student publications and organizations, the campus radio station and student government. Planners estimate the cost at $4,000,000.

Science Center A new Science Center, to be located between Modlin Fine Arts Building and Cannon Chapel, will replace the present inadequate facilities. Perkins and Will studies show that, even with expensive remodeling, the present Science Buildings would not provide enough of the right kind of space. The new Science Center will include up-to-date laboratories, classrooms and offices for the Departments of Biology, Chemistry, Mathematics, Physics and Psychology. The Science Center price tag is $8,000,000.

The campus plan calls for extensive remodeling and renovation to bring older University buildings up to modern standards and make them functional for years to come. These projects, affecting eight buildings, will cost $7,925,000.

The present science buildings—Maryland, Puryear, and Richmond Halls—will become an Administrative Services Complex. Location of these buildings, central to the "main street" of University pedestrian traffic, was termed ideal for administrative functions which related to both on- and off-campus groups.

At present, administrative services—the President's office, Deans' offices, financial and business services, the admissions office, the University relations functions (development, alumni relations, public information and publications), computer services, and the printing department—are scattered among a dozen buildings, some "temporary" barracks built during World War II. Planners termed this arrangement extremely inefficient.

The Alumni-Student Center, built in 1951, will be revamped and used for faculty offices and classrooms.

Jeter Hall, now housing a number of academic departments and some students, will be remodeled and used exclusively as a dormitory.

Ryland Hall, Cannon Chapel and Keller Hall will be modernized.

Students need more and better outdoor sports and phys ed facilities, say the campus planners. Soon after receiving the Perkins and Will report, University officials let the contract for eight new Rob-Kor tennis courts to replace the four old ones near the University bus stop. Now underway are the refurbishing of the Pitt Field stands and construction of an eight-lane Chevron track, which will be one of the best such facilities in the country. Projected for the future are new playing fields and more tennis courts. These projects will total $625,000.

Also included in the master plan are some building projects which are unglamorous but just as necessary as are academic buildings. These include a new cooling plant, additions to the central heating plant, and extensions of utility lines. These projects, which will cost approximately $2,716,000, will make each individual new building less expensive.

Because it is hard to see ahead to every building need in the next ten years, the planners and the trustees are allocating $2,021,000 for smaller construction and renovation projects in the years between 1978 and 1982. By that time, some of the "middle-aged" buildings on campus will need sprucing up.

Planners spent as much care in determining where buildings should be placed as in deciding which buildings should be built or remodeled. The campus plan keeps Boatwright Library at the center of the academic area but extends this area toward Westhampton. This is why the Science Center is to be located between Cannon Chapel and Modlin Fine Arts Building.

Another unifying building will be the University Union, planned for the east end of University lake, about where the present lake bridge stands. This building attracts students, faculty and staff members from both sides of the lake.

Developing the sites for the new buildings is estimated to cost $535,000.

In determining the need for classroom and laboratory space, the campus planners based their work on the understanding that UR will continue to emphasize seminars and small recitation-lectures, not large lecture classes. They took into consideration how many square feet of an area a student needs for a given activity (class, lab, art studio, etc.) and figured out how many hours a week a particular academic facility should be used. They also evaluated the current and ideal "fit" of people to facility. For example, a class of 15 people in a 20-seat seminar room is more efficient than 15 people in a 75-seat lecture hall.

The same objective approach was used throughout the report. For example, to figure out how many parking spaces will be needed, Perkins and Will weighed such factors as how many students will be enrolled, how many of them are likely to have cars, and how many of these cars might be parked on campus at peak hours. Making the changes in traffic patterns and parking outlined in the master plan will cost $858,000.

The planners, President Heilman and the Trustees are emphatic about one point: the beauty of the University's campus will be preserved.

"Natural features of the campus such as the lake and the wooded areas will be maintained and enhanced," said the campus plan report. "The existing architectural character of the University will be respected. New facilities and renovation of existing buildings should be designed to blend with existing buildings. . . ."

The Trustees and President Heilman will not necessarily follow every detail of the Perkins and Will report, however. "The Board has strongly endorsed the concepts of the campus plan, but we know that planning is a continuing process," said President Heilman. "Even though circumstances may cause some adjustments, this plan gives us the basic guidance we need for future development. Excellence in education requires excellence in facilities, and this campus plan points us toward that excellence."

More Students, Faculty, Courses at Law School

These are among the developments at The T. C. Williams School of Law since Dean Harold G. Wren took office last fall.

But much remains to be done to bring the Law School to the level he, President Heilman and the Trustees intend, the Dean points out. The school needs a stronger library, more scholarships, and faculty salaries more competitive with leading institutions such as Duke and Vanderbilt.

"The basic idea behind our expanded curriculum is to give second- and third-year students more choice," Dean Wren said recently in an interview in his office. "Once upon a time, all students took the same courses whether they wanted to be criminal defense lawyers, labor lawyers, tax lawyers or whatever. But what's happening in the legal field now is that more and more people are specializing.

"We still adhere to the concept of the general practitioner, but today the T. C. Williams student who's interested in a degree of specialization can, after his first year, choose among a number of courses. Suppose he or she wants to go into tax and estate planning, my own area. There are courses in estate planning, wills and trusts, future interests, fiduciary administration, business planning, federal estate and gift taxes, and income tax."

Last fall the new wing of the Law School, built with money from the Centennial Fund and named for Trustee Emeritus M. M. Long, was used for the first time. The wing, which includes an addition to the library, two large classrooms, faculty offices and a student recreation area, enables the Law School to increase its enrollment from approximately 200 in 1971-72 to 450 in 1974-75. This year 325 students will attend.

"We are committed to maintaining those special qualities of intimacy and concern for students which only a small law school can offer," Dean Wren said.

Throughout the country, the early 1970s brought a tremendous surge in the number of college graduates wanting to go to law school. Experts attributed this upswing to factors such as the draft, the interest of young men and women in trying to change society, and the poor job prospects both for graduates with only a baccalaureate degree and for social science Ph.D.s. There is some evidence that the peak of interest has passed, but law schools nationally expect admission competition to remain keen.

In 1962-63, 26,000 students throughout the United States took the Law School Admission Test (LSAT) and 18,000 entered the first year of law school. By 1972-73, the number taking the LSAT had jumped to 119,000 yet the number of first-year students only increased to 35,000. That was all the space available for entering students in the nation's law schools.

The number of prospective students applying to U.R.'s Law School was not as high this year as last, but, even so, the school received 972 applications for 160 places and the quality of the entering class is high.

The system used to pick the 160 entering students is both simple and complex. Students with very high grade point averages and LSAT scores are automatically admitted, and those with very low averages and scores are turned down. This process resulted in the admission of approximately 10 percent of applicants and in the rejection of another 10 percent. So much for the simple part.

The remaining 80 percent of the applicants are considered individually. "We look for maturity and leadership potential, and evaluate the college the student has attended," said Dean Wren. "We also take into consideration whether the applicant is 'one of our own,' a son or daughter of an alumnus, for example."

Although there are exceptions, most students accepted by the T. C. Williams School of Law have a college average of approximately B and a Law School Admission Test score in the 575 to 600 range.

"Our biggest problem in attracting top quality students is that we just do not have enough scholarships," said Dean Wren. "Many first-rate students would really prefer to come here. They like the Richmond scene: they like being near the Virginia General Assembly and taking part in our clinical program; and, even more, they like the fact that ours is a small school."

When the chips are down, however, many of these students go to U.Va or William and Mary because the tuition is lower.

The Law School's number two problem is the library.

"Let's face it, with only 49,000 volumes, our library is weak," said Dean Wren. He points out that William and Mary's law library has 75,000 books; W & L's, 70,000; and the University of Virginia law library, which serves Virginia lawyers and judges as well as U.Va. students, has 240,000.

"The new wing gives us shelving space for 100,000 volumes, and President Heilman has indicated that, between 1974 and the end of the decade, we will spend $400,000 for books in a catch-up program.

"Let's not forget that our library has good things, too," commented the Dean. "It's spacious, and it has a comfortable, well-lighted reading room. During the academic year, the library gets heavy use by students."

According to the report of a team from the American Bar Association (ABA) and the Association of American Law Schools (AALS), which visited UR in April, the Law Library needs not only more books but also more staff members and more cataloguing and other work space.

Dean Wren and President Heilman agree that faculty salaries must be increased, and the ABA-AALS team points out that professors need more clerical assistance "if they are to be productive scholars."

Five new professors joined the T. C. Williams faculty this year, three as additions to the faculty and two as replacements—for Prof. D. Orville Lahy who has resigned and for the late Prof. James W. Payne Jr. The next year, the Law School plans to add seven more full-time professors to bring the full-time faculty to 16.

Does he look for any common set of qualities when he interviews potential faculty members?

"One thing we look for is that they have nothing in common. Diversity is what we want," the Dean replied quickly. "If a law faculty developed along the lines of a lot of people being alike, it would be a mediocre faculty."

There will be more diversity in this year's student body, too. Director of Admissions Jean Tarpley points out that there will be 30 women (18 in the first-year class) and two Blacks among the 325 students. One of the first-year students is Mrs. Gladys B. Harris, a Virginia State graduate and the first Black woman ever to attend T. C. Williams.

One development which Dean Wren and the law faculty are watching with interest—and promoting—is a move to allow third-year law students to practice in the courts of Virginia under supervision of a practicing lawyer.

"The Virginia State Bar has endorsed this plan which will go before the General Assembly in the 1974 session. We have a big stake in its success," said Dean Wren.

"T. C. Williams has always had a very strong program in trial practice. Last year, for example, Prof. William Cudlipp taught one course under the State rules of civil procedure, and Judge Robert Merhige taught another under the Federal rules.

"We must continue this program. In addition, the present clinical program, under which law students work at the Richmond Metropolitan Legal Aid Association, needs stronger financial support so all students who wish this type of experience can have it."

Also planned at the Law School are a five-week summer term at the University of Kent, to begin in 1974; cooperation with J. Sargent Reynolds Community College in developing a program for paraprofessionals in law; and the first year's operation of the Institute for Criminal Justice to be headed by Prof. Andre A. Moenssens, a new faculty member.

The Institute, which will sponsor a program of continuing education for prosecutors, defense lawyers and judges, will hold seminars, short courses and special lectures. Prof. Moenssens plans soon a three-day course on new developments in the law for defense lawyers and public defenders and a similar session for prosecutors.

The Institute will also offer seminars in the use of scientific evidence—fingerprints, lie detector tests and pathologists' reports—for lawyers and medical experts often called to testify in criminal cases. T. C. Williams students will benefit through exposure to "the real world" of criminal law, said Prof. Moenssens, who will bring in regional and national experts for the Institute's seminars.

Annual Giving by alumni strengthens the Law School, according to the Dean. In late January, law alumni pledged over

Needed: more scholarships, bigger library

$10,000 through their own Telethon, and total Law School Annual Giving in 1972-73 was $29,072.47.

Dean Wren himself speaks frequently to alumni and Bar groups throughout the State, and heads a task force to determine the extent to which the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment would change the law of Virginia.

"We are the state-oriented law school in Virginia, and we're quite happy to play that role," said Dean Wren, who came to UR from the deanship of Northwestern Law School at Lewis and Clark College, Portland, Ore., and who has taught at the University of Oklahoma, Boston College and Southern Methodist University. "We foster close faculty-student relationships which are just not possible in a bigger institution. In short, we feel we have a great deal to offer."

New Professors Join Law Faculty

Here are the new professors who joined the faculty of T. C. Williams at the beginning of the fall semester.

Professor Andre A. Moenssens, 43, is a native of Belgium. He received his J. D. degree from Chicago-Kent College of Law, and his LL.M. degree from Northwestern University School of Law, and is presently a candidate for the S.J.D. degree at Northwestern. Since 1966, Professor Moenssens has taught at Chicago-Kent and has published several books: Fingerprints and the Law (1969), Scientific Evidence in Criminal Cases (with Inbau and Moses, 1973), and Modern Criminal Law (with Schiller, to be published in 1974). He is a fellow of the American Academy of Forensic Sciences, where he is chairman of the Jurisprudence Section. He has been a consultant in criminalistics to governmental agencies and members of the Bar.

Associate Professor B. J. Brabham, 43, a native of Texas, comes to Richmond from the University of Idaho College of Law, where he has been a member of the faculty since 1970. He holds the B.A. degree from Texas A&M University, the J. D. degree from the University of Texas, the M.A. degree from North Texas State University and the LL.M degree from New York University. Prior to joining the Idaho law faculty, he had practiced law and taught business law for ten years at North Texas State University and the University of Maryland.

Associate Professor Gary Charles Leedes, 39, is a native of Pennsylvania who was graduated in 1962 from Temple University School of Law, where he was editor-in-chief of the Law Review. After clerking for Judge Kalodner of the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, and ten years of successful practice, Professor Leedes went to Harvard Law School in 1972 to acquire his LL.M degree. He is a constitutional lawyer, specializing in the thirteenth, fourteenth, and fifteenth amendments.

Assistant Professor W. Hamilton Bryson, 32, is a native of Richmond who holds the B.A. degree from Hampden-Sydney, the J.D. degree from Harvard, the LL.M degree from the University of Virginia, and the Ph.D. degree from Cambridge, University, England. During 1972-73, Professor Bryson was a fellow at the Max Planck Institute for European Legal History. Professor Bryson's dissertation at Cambridge dealt with the equity side of the Court of the Exchequer. He is an expert in legal history, and a member of the American Society for Legal History and the Selden Society.

Assistant Professor David S. Cohn, 28, is also a native of Richmond. He holds the B.A. degree from the University of Pennsylvania, and the J.D. degree from Harvard. Professor Cohn has practiced for the past two years in Philadelphia, where he has specialized in real estate and corporate matters.

Because of the M. M. Long Wing, enrollment at T. C. Williams will go up to 450 by next year.
Meet the T.C. Williams Student

Bill Corbett, a Virginia State graduate who served in six foreign countries during his 21 years in the Army, retired as a Lieutenant Colonel to enter T. C. Williams. A second-year student, Bill is now deciding just how he will use his law degree. The Corbetts and their daughter do plan to stay in Richmond.

Richmonder Ed Beck, a third-year student, is president of the Student Bar Association and on the staff of the Law Review. After graduation at Davidson, he spent a year studying in England.

Susan G. Baughan, who holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Virginia Commonwealth University, is a former teacher. Now a second-year student, Susan feels that women, though a distinct minority, have an "equal chance" at T. C. Williams. She and her three children live in Richmond.

Although he doesn't wear it to class, second-year student M. Steven Weaver this summer received the South Vietnamese government's Silver Medal "for outstanding service." The medal recognized his work with refugees and orphans and his efforts in distributing relief supplies. Weaver and his wife just returned from two years in Vietnam with World Vision, a nondenominational Protestant humanitarian organization.
UR Plans
Richmond's Biggest Fund Campaign

COMMITMENTS to the "Our Time in History" Development Program have reached $17.1 million, or 34 percent of the $50 million goal, University Trustees heard at their Oct. 5-6 meeting.

Plans for the year, featuring the $3 million Greater Richmond Campaign, largest fund-raising effort in the city's history, were outlined for Trustees and at an Oct. 4 seminar for "Our Time in History" leaders by General Chairman F. Carlyle Tiller, RC '48.

Tiller introduced Trustee Kenneth L. Roberts, president of Central National Bank, who heads the Greater Richmond Campaign. Roberts explained that the drive is now in its advanced and major gifts phase with general solicitation to follow a gala kick-off on March 14.

Roberts introduced other Greater Richmond Campaign leaders including Trustee William B. Graham, RC '43, president of Insurance Management Corporation and Mutual Insurers, Inc., vice chairman; S. Wayne Bazzle, RC '64, executive vice president of the Bank of Virginia Company, special gifts; and Newman Hamlett, senior vice president of Thalhimers Brothers, Inc., public phase.

Richard H. Guilford, RC '54, executive vice president of Fidelity Corporation, heads the national phase of "Our Time in History" with Antoinette Wirth Whittet (Mrs. R. McLean, Jr.), WC '41, as co-chairman. At the seminar, Guilford outlined a November campaign in Petersburg which will be a model for alumni-alumnae campaigns throughout the country in 1974-75.

Philip Kirkpatrick, RC '56, G '62, chief of the Instructional Methods Division of the Army's Quartermaster School at Fort Lee, is Petersburg general chairman. Stephen White, RC '53, L '55, an attorney, is special gifts chairman, and John Long, RC '40, president of Long Manufacturing Company, is corporation and foundation chairman.

This year the University Annual Giving Program and the Westhampton Alumnae Fund, both of which provide annual operating funds for UR, have been carefully synchronized with the campaign for buildings and endowment.

Ashley D. DeShazor, RC '41, of Chicago, vice president and corporate credit manager of Montgomery Ward and Company, heads the Annual Giving Program which has a goal of $340,000.

Six Good Reasons for Making a Will

"Let's choose executors and talk of wills."—King Richard II Act III, Scene 2.

We take our lead from Shakespeare and offer six reasons for making a will:

1. You, instead of your state's arbitrary intestacy laws, determine to whom, how and when your property will be distributed.

2. You name your own executor—the person, bank or trust company who will manage and settle your estate according to your instructions. If a person dies without a will, the law decides who settles his estate.

As executor, you want a qualified individual, bank or trust company who will (a) follow the instructions in your will, (b) safeguard the interests of current and future beneficiaries, (c) meet the requirements of applicable laws and tax authorities, (d) determine creditors' rights and authenticity of claims, and (e) exercise prudent investment judgment.

You can save executors' fees by naming your spouse or an adult son or daughter as executor. You should name an alternate to act in case the designated executor dies or fails to qualify.

For sizable estates, it is often advisable to name a bank or trust company as executor. Sometimes it is desirable to name co-executors—an individual and a bank or trust company. Your lawyer will advise you on selecting executors and the other aspects of making your will.

3. The guardian who will raise your children and manage their property can be named in your will—subject to a surviving spouse's natural rights. The will can dispense with guardian's bonds and accounting requirements.

4. Trusts for your spouse, children and others can be created by will—to protect them against loss or dissipation which might result from their inexperience. Trusts also save taxes.

5. You can reduce, sometimes even eliminate, estate taxes with a will. You, not your state's arbitrary laws, specify whose share of the estate is to be charged with taxes.

6. Many make charitable gifts by will. The Federal government encourages bequests to the University of Richmond by granting an estate tax charitable deduction. Most states give similar state inheritance tax benefits. We would appreciate the opportunity of discussing with you and your advisors a contemplated gift by will to the University of Richmond.

Bitsy Epes Hardy (Mrs. S. Gray), WC '41, is chairman of the Westhampton Alumnae Fund which has a goal of $40,000.

During 1973-74 when alumni, alumnae and friends in the Richmond and Petersburg areas are making pledges to "Our Time in History," the Westhampton and University annual funds will be conducted as usual in other areas. In 1974-75 when donors in many other cities are making "Our Time" commitments, Annual Giving volunteers will again contact donors in Richmond and Petersburg. By 1975-76, the Annual Giving Programs will resume normal operations as they seek gifts on a scale which can be repeated annually.
New Vice Presidents  The UR Board of Trustees Aug. 8 created four vice presidencies representing the four main areas of the University—academic program, student life, development and finance—and authorized the new position of dean of administration.

Provost Charles E. Glassick was named vice president and provost; Dr. William H. Leftwich, RC '52, director of student services and activities became vice president for student affairs; H. Gerald Quigg, executive director of development, was appointed vice president for university relations, and Treasurer Charles H. Wheeler III was named vice president for financial and business affairs and treasurer.

Dr. C. J. Gray, RC '33, dean of administrative services, was appointed dean of administration.

The new plan will give President Heilman more time for planning and implementing the overall development of the University and for relating to off-campus constituencies.

UR Receives NEH Grant  The University has received a $50,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities to increase the effective use of Boatwright Library by students and faculty.

The grant will be matched by UR "to stimulate increased library-centered teaching of undergraduates and to make the library a more effective partner in the teaching-learning process," said Head Librarian Ardie B. Kelly, who will direct the five-year project.

Some faculty members will be given a lighter teaching load to free them to work in the library in advising the librarians on the publications and books in their disciplines.

The program will also help the University plan for the $3,320,000 addition and renovation of the library, a facility which will house approximately 500,000 volumes and seat 1100 persons.

"When the new facility is completed and we put into effect those techniques and ideas developed from the National Endowment grant, our library will be one of the best anywhere," said Kelly.

Gift from WC to UR  Westhampton College alumnae, through the Westhamp-
New Look: Robins Center  An expanded program of Robins Center activities including concerts in the arena will be headed by Donald K. Spriggs, new director of the $10 million center. "Doc" Severinson, trumpeter and band leader on the Johnny Carson show, appeared Sept. 14 in the first concert. A rock show is planned for October and the Budapest Orchestra will play in Robins Center Dec. 4.

Spriggs, former director of the Student Center at UR, will be in total charge of supervision and maintenance of Robins Center. He will handle scheduling, promotion and execution of programs in the center, including athletic events, lectures, concerts and other performances.

Wedding Bells  Irene Ebhomielen, the foreign student sponsored at Westhampton by the YWCA, was married May 19 to a fellow Nigerian who used to live only a mile from her home. Where did they meet? In Richmond!

Irene's husband is Anire Sagay, assistant professor of economics at Virginia Commonwealth University, and this fall both are back in the classroom: he teaching and she finishing her final semester at Westhampton. She will receive her degree next May.

The wedding of Irene and Anire was attended by friends from both their home and adopted countries. Irene's father is evangelism secretary for the Nigerian Baptist Convention, and two bridesmaids were daughters of Southern Baptist Convention missionaries. The Rev. R. Gent Cofer, RC '57, performed the ceremony at Westhampton Baptist Church where both Irene and Anire are members.

National Awards  Publications at the University, edited by Virginia L. Carter, WC '53, have received two national awards.

"Impact," a booklet which tells of UR's contributions to the Richmond area, was named one of the nation's best development publications in a direct mail competition sponsored by Time magazine and the American Alumni Council.

The American College Public Relations Association awarded UR a special citation for the improvements in its publications in 1972-73 compared to the year before.

President E. Bruce Heilman and Chancellor Calvin Lee of the University of Maryland-Baltimore County (above) discussed the financial crisis facing higher education with NBC reporter Paul W. Duke, RC '47, on the TODAY show Sept. 4.

This early September photo shows the Pitt Field site (below) of the new UR track facility, to be one of the best in the nation. The eight-lane Chevron track costing approximately $200,000 is now nearing completion.
A veil for "Miss Heilman" (above) in the halls of Freeman dorm this summer might have been answered by four girls: Bobbi, Sandy, Terry and Nancy (from left), daughters of President and Mrs. E. Bruce Heilman. All were in UR summer school.

Irene Ebhomielen, YWCA foreign student at Westhampton, and Aire Sagay (center couple) had to leave their native Nigeria to meet each other. See story.

UR Chair A handsome captain's chair with the UR seal in gold is available through the College Shop, University of Richmond, Va. 23173. The black chair with cherry arms is $60.00 plus 4 percent Virginia sales tax and a $6.00 freight cost from the manufacturer to Richmond.

Send check or money order in the amount of $68.40 to cover these charges. Delivery takes from ten to twelve weeks if we do not have one in stock. All chairs are sold f.o.b. Richmond, and if you desire to have the chair shipped to your office or home there will be an additional freight charge, which you will pay on delivery.

Management Seminars UR's Institute for Business and Community Development will present 25 management seminars, including three new ones, during 1973-74.

The new seminars are "Motivation—Hygiene Theory and Job Enrichment," "People, Power and Jobs: Getting Effective Integration," and "Budgets and Effective Cost Analysis."

Seminars, which began in mid-September and will run through June 4, cover a variety of managerial subjects ranging from budget analysis to work simplification and including a seminar for career women.

For more information write or call the Institute for Business and Community Development, 601 N. Lombardy St., Richmond, Va. 23220; (804) 358-8401.

Udall Discusses Energy Crisis The energy crisis in the United States is the result of "overshooting," said Stewart Udall, former Secretary of the Interior during the Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

Speaking before students and faculty Sept. 16 as a lecturer for the University Student Union, Udall said the public believes there is an unlimited supply of energy. "Some people think science will bail us out—and that's what I used to believe too. But I don't believe that anymore. The prudent thing for us to do is be honest with ourselves and admit we're in trouble," Udall said.

The former secretary suggested that legislation be passed to limit the size and weight of the cars made in the United States. He said that with smaller cars "gasoline would go twice as far."

Udall suggested that mass transit would be another positive step in solving the problem. "It wouldn't hurt people to walk a little farther to a bus or train station, or to ride a bicycle. In fact, we'd be a lot healthier."

Importing more oil has two disadvantages, Udall asserted. "Saudi Arabia, the major exporter of oil, may want a larger voice in our foreign policy concerning Israel," he said. "Secondly, the United States can ill afford to continue buying more and more oil," he suggested.

Udall also advocated a ten cent federal gasoline tax increase to raise $1 billion to expand mass transit and build bicycle paths.

University Registrar  The University has centralized its divisional registrar's offices and has appointed Melvin C. Burton, formerly registrar and director of admissions at University College, as University registrar. Mrs. Catherine C. Emanuel, who served as Westhampton registrar, has become associate registrar.

The Office of the University Registrar will register students, report grades and maintain student academic records for Richmond College, Westhampton, University College, The T. C. Williams School of Law, the Summer School and the Graduate School. It will later assume these functions for the School of Business Administration.

VFIC Support  Business support will continue to be the difference between red and black ink in the operating budgets of Virginia's private colleges, according to the newly-elected chairman of the board of the Virginia Foundation for Independent Colleges (VFIC).

UR Trustee T. Justin Moore Jr., president of Virginia Electric and Power Company, said Virginia's privately supported four-year colleges are caught in a tightening financial squeeze.

"The squeeze results from increasing costs due to inflation and increasing resistance to higher tuition fees," Moore said. In addition, a shaky stock market is badly eroding endowment income, he added.

Corporate contributions are "meat and potatoes" to Virginia's private colleges and a major source of faculty salary adjustment. Contributions of $1.318,000 through VFIC from nearly 1,000 corporations amounted to about $1,200 per faculty member during the last school year. UR, largest private institution in the state, received $118,604 from VFIC.

Freshman Colloquia  Small discussion classes on topics from justice to communications and Cold War to ethics are available for the second year to Westhampton and Richmond College freshmen.

The Freshman Colloquia, limited to 15 students each, offer first-year students an opportunity to bridge the gap between the lecture method of high school and the college emphasis on independent study. They also give a break from traditional freshman survey courses.

Sample topics include "Future Policy," "Ethics and the Life Sciences," "So Help Us God: Religion and Politics" and a colloquium on the physical universe: "Big Bangs, Black Holes and All That." Each carries three hours credit and counts as an elective course.

Worship Services  For the second year, 11 a.m. Sunday services will be held once a month in Cannon Memorial Chapel. The Rev. Don L. Powell, director of religious activities at UR, opened the series on Aug. 26, the first weekend students were on campus. Dr. George H. Shriver of Georgia Southern College spoke on Sept. 9, and on Sept. 30 UR students presented a service during Parents Weekend.

The Rev. Jack Noffsinger, RC '40, of Knollwood Baptist Church, Winston-Salem, will speak Oct. 21; The Rev. Howard Moody, of Judson Memorial Church, New York City, will lead the service on Nov. 18; and on Dec. 2 an Advent service of lessons and carols will feature UR's Schola Cantorum.

Summer Tour  President Heilman will lead a two-week tour to the Scandinavian countries and the USSR in the summer of 1974. A brochure outlining the itinerary may be obtained by writing Dr. Heilman at University of Richmond, Va. 23173.
University Residence: Family Home and Center for Entertaining

For the first time in its history, the University of Richmond has a University Residence, a home for the President's family and a center for official entertaining. The residence is the gift of an anonymous donor.

Dr. and Mrs. E. Bruce Heilman and their five children moved in August into the Georgian home at the corner of College Road and River Road. It was there that daughter Nancy, WC '73, was married to Mark Davis, RC '74, August 19 on the terrace.

In September, the Heilmans entertained the faculty and staff at the opening reception, usually held in Keller Hall. Throughout the year they will be inviting students, alumni, Trustees and other friends of UR to functions at the University Residence.

The house is designed to accommodate everything from the Heilman family of seven to crowds of 700. The arrangement of the downstairs—large formal rooms and two terraces accessible from the central hallway—enables great numbers of people to move easily through the house.

"We knew the type floor plan we didn't want—we have had that too often in most of the houses we've lived in—and we knew what we needed," Mrs. Heilman told a Times-Dispatch reporter. "We entertain quite a lot. We had to have a house where hundreds could flow easily with no bottlenecks."

A bamboo-colored plush carpet covers the formal rooms of the house which are furnished primarily with 18th Century reproductions. The dining room has the same bamboo-colored carpet, deep peach brocade covers on the chairs and warm woods of the hall and living room.

In one wing of the house is the mahogany-paneled library with a wide fireplace as the focal point. Adjacent, separated from the rest of the house by a small hall, are the guest quarters where the family will entertain special friends of the University. In the opposite wing on the main floor are the kitchen, garden room, laundry room and breakfast room. A garage is behind that.

"The University can count on this house for hundreds and hundreds of years. It looks good now, and will improve with age," Mrs. Heilman said. "It's a home that Richmond, the University and its graduates will always be proud of. It wasn't built for a family but for an institution."
Brown New Council Chairman Otis L. Brown, RC '56, former president of the Richmond College Alumni Association, has been elected chairman of the University of Richmond Alumni Council. Michael K. Ryan, SBA '61, is the new vice chairman and Mayme O'Flaherty Stone, WC '41, will serve as secretary.

Brown, secretary of human resources in Governor Linwood Holton's administrative cabinet, will serve a one-year term. Ryan, a partner in the CPA firm of Cooper and Lybrand, is the immediate past president of the SBA Alumni Association. Mrs. Stone, an active member of the Richmond musical community, served during 1971-73 as president of the Westhampton College Alumnae Association.

The University of Richmond Alumni Council is composed of eight members—two representatives from each of the University's four alumni associations. Its purpose is to coordinate University-wide alumni activities.

RC Alumni Officers Henry Vranian, RC '33, has been elected president of the Richmond College Alumni Association. Also elected by mail ballot to the association's board of directors were: J. Wesley Boykin, '38 (Alexandria); A. E. Dick Howard, '54 (Charlottesville); E. E. "Sugar" Ralston, '49 (Richmond); Robert G. Watts, '59 (Richmond); Reed I. West, '30 (Richmond); and Ebb H. Williams, '61 (Martinsville).

In the same balloting, Charles A. Christophersen, RC '59, L '62, was elected to the University's Athletic Council.

Broughton Named Sales Manager H. Gray Broughton, RC '65, has been named manager of group sales for Kings Dominion. Presently under construction 20 miles north of Richmond, Kings Dominion will be a $40 million entertainment complex.

Broughton will manage the new travel attraction's civic, industrial, school, military and church group sales. He was formerly on the sales staff of Virginia Paper Company. A member of the Richmond Jaycees, he was named Director of the Year in 1972.

Shockley Receives Doctorate Seven years of off-duty study on two continents ended recently when Lt. Col. H. A. Shockley, RC '55, received his Ph.D. in international relations from the American University in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Shockley's disciplinary fields were: Theory of International Relations, International Relations of Southeast Asia and International Organization. Much of the research for his dissertation—"British Defense Policy towards Malaysia: 1941-71"—was conducted while Col. Shockley, an 18 year career officer, was an exchange officer with the British Ministry of Defense in London. He is presently serving as Commander of the U.S. Army Special Research Detachment in Washington, D.C.

Athletic Staff Expanded by Three New Coaches

Three new coaches have been added to the athletic staff at the University for the coming year. Dr. Donald Pate has assumed duties as wrestling coach, while Tom Weirich and Tony McAndrews have been added to the basketball staff.

Dr. Pate is a graduate of Moorhead State College in Minn. and the University of Utah. He has nine years coaching experience, including three years at Fargo, N. D. Central High, five years as head man at Wayne State College in Nebraska and one year as assistant at the University of Utah. During his tenure at Wayne State, Pate's squads finished in the top ten nationally in the N.A.I.A. all five years and nine of his grapplers were named to the All-American team.

Weirich, a 1966 graduate of Ohio University, was named assistant basketball coach replacing J. D. Barnett. Weirich has coached at Anderson, (Ind.) High School for four years at Urbana College for one, and the last two years at Xavier University. He completed requirements for his master's degree from Ball State University.

A second assistant basketball coach has also been added. Tony McAndrews is a 1966 graduate of St. Ambrose College in Davenport, Iowa. He obtained his master's degree from Washington State University, where he served a term as graduate assistant coach.

McAndrews coached for two years at Sequim (Wash.) High, two years as assistant at St. Ambrose and then two years under Jim Harding at the University of Detroit.

Basketball star Aron Stewart is doing more for UR than putting the ball through the basket. Now he is helping with the recruiting. Head Coach Lewis Mills signed Eric Gray, a transfer from Essex Community College, the same place where Aron broke all the scoring records. It seems that Stewart let Coach Mills know that the 6-7 Gray was available and interested.

Jumping over to football, this year's contingent of Spiders can truly be called "The Jones Boys." Senior Jay Jones from Lexington, Va. is the punter; Junior Dinky Jones is a wide receiver and return specialist; frosh Johnnie Jones is splitting time as a place kicker; and Frank Jones, he's the coach!

UR's athletic facilities are now being further improved. Eight new hard surface tennis courts have been built on College Road near the bus stop. These courts, which are laid out from North to South to avoid the sun-in-the-eyes problem, are for physical education classes and recreational use, as well as for intercollegiate and intramural all-weather track.

Jumping over to football, this year's contingent of Spiders can truly be called "The Jones Boys." Senior Jay Jones from Lexington, Va. is the punter; Junior Dinky Jones is a wide receiver and return specialist; frosh Johnnie Jones is splitting time as a place kicker; and Frank Jones, he's the coach!

UR's athletic facilities are now being further improved. Eight new hard surface tennis courts have been built on College Road near the bus stop. These courts, which are laid out from North to South to avoid the sun-in-the-eyes problem, are for physical education classes and recreational use, as well as for intercollegiate and intramural all-weather track.

WESTHAMPTON
Club & Class News

Charlottesville Alumnae Club
President: Mrs. William R. Crews, Jr. (Julie Perkins ’62), 5705 Georgetown Green, Charlottesville, Virginia 22901

The Charlottesville club’s annual meeting in May was a dessert at the home of Peggy Brown Hantzman ’54. Alumnae Secretary Louise Long and Assoc. Professor Augusta Chapman came to “Paint a Westhampton Picture.” Our first check to the college was $110.

The officers for 1973-74 are Julie Perkins Crews ’62, president; Peggy Brown Hantzman ’54, vice-president; Susan DeAlba Snodgrass, secretary-treasurer; Annie Lee Jacobs Condgon ’69, librarian. Our committee chairman: Marion West Stocker ’33, telephone; Jay Hart Carter ’68, high school contact; Mary Eleanor Hodges Strickland ’64, ways and means.

Marguerite Shell Ritchie ’43 was the hostess for our “Back to School” party July 29.

Our calendar for the fall includes a cookbook at the Monticello Hotel followed by a talk, “Old Charlottesville,” by Susan DeAlba Snodgrass ’66 and a walking tour of historic Court Square on September 15. Also, we will be selling pecans throughout the fall. Another activity is contacting area high school girls and guidance counselors to publicize Westhampton.

Peninsula Alumnae Club
President: Mrs. George Bains, Jr. (Nancy Jane Cyrs ’58), 143 Chancellor Road, Hampton, Virginia 23661

The Peninsula Club entertained local freshmen and returning students at a cookout party, Saturday, August 18, at the home of Mrs. Wyatt S. Mapp, Jr. (Gayle Jones ’62).

Tidewater Alumnae Club
President: Mrs. Henry B. Kaufmann (Thais Silberman ’40), 1655 West Lane, Norfolk, Virginia 23518

The Executive Committee met at the home of the president in July to plan the programs and fund raising projects for the coming year. The sale of pecans will again by the major project.

On August 15, the lovely pool and sun porch of Mrs. Lewis Shulman (Gay Winslow ’58) was the setting for the annual Back-to-School Pool Party for new and returning Westhampton students. This event is proving popular with alumnae also.

The club has planned a varied program for this year. Mrs. John T. Atkinson (Betsy Wilson ’67) will be hostess for the October 17 evening meeting in Virginia Beach. The program will be at the Association for Research and Enlightenment.

The efforts of the club this year will be directed toward obtaining a green year for Westhampton and getting more active participation of the 180 alumnae in the area.
On May 8, 1973, R.F.I.-W.C.R. Alumnae held a luncheon at the Commonwealth Club to entertain Dr. wellman and* Mrs. Heilman to the campus of University of Richmond. Other guests were Dr. and Mrs. George Modlin, Dean Mary Louis Gehring, Dr. Susan Heilman and Mrs. Louise Long. We regretted that Dean Clara Keith could not be present.

Margaret Council of Flowers of Texas, representing her mother, presented the University with a four-foot-high Alumnae expressing our esteem and appreciation of Dr. Modlin’s interest in our behalf. Mrs. Long was given a token of our recognition of her helpfulness as Secretary of Westhampton Alumnae. Our Alumnae President was presented a friendship pin as a symbol of affection from “the girls.” Dean Gehring had a surprising gift for us, being an 1854 catalogue of R. F. I. We had thought the one of 1855, that we have, was the earliest. Dr. Jerry Yerger of the University of Richmond faculty had purchased it from a bookshop in Boston. When Dr. Yerger learned we did not have a copy and wanted to borrow it for reproducing, he gave it to us. To quote him, “It is indeed now in its proper home.”

The catalogues of 1854 and 1855 were printed on steam presses by Henry K. Ellis, 147 Main St., Richmond, Va. Mr. Ellis was trustee and treasurer of Richmond College 1869-1890, the time of his death.

In the spring of 1883 the following notice appeared in the Richmond Dispatch owned and operated by the Richmond College. “Professor C. H. Winston of Richmond College is organizing a small party of young ladies for a short trip to Europe. He expects to sail on the Servia, of the Cunard Line, June 18, and to be absent three months. . . . Later the article says “Professor Winston has completed his arrangements for the party of young ladies who will accompany him to Europe. He has secured on the favorite Servia and sails from New York June 13. The party consists of the following young ladies: Miss Susan L. Hanner, wife of Professor C. H. Winston of R.F.I.; Miss Fannie E. Hackett, daughter of Colonel T. M. Heck of Raleigh, N. C.; Miss Peachy Powers, daughter of Alderman Robert Powers; Miss Ada Carrington, daughter of Colonel J. L. Carrington, of the Exchange Hotel; Miss Martha Brown of this city and Miss Maggie Pollard, daughter of Mr. Thomas F. Pollard. Many hearts will watch with interest the departure and journeyings of these choice young representatives of Richmond and Southern society; and many friends will unite to wish them a safe return and to welcome them back with the sincerest satisfaction.” This information was furnished by Miss Betty Winston, granddaughter of Dr. Winston who became the second president of Rich­mond Female Institute.

There have been some changes since then in the mode of travel but the professors are still giving guiding tours to enable students to gain more information.

On Friday evening of Alumnae Weekend our class had a mini-reunion in advance of the reception which preceded the dinner at which the Alumni [sic] Award was launched. This get-together was the more treasured because we did not find enough places for all of us at the ’21-22-24 table where the Alumnae President addressed us on the upcoming recommendations concerning Westhampton’s future status (co­ordinate or coeducational). You have had the chance to read our statement in the summer issue of the U of R Magazine.

Ruth Hoover Lide was the one most needed to get reacquainted because of the length of time since she had met with us. She had been the only one for her son and daughter-in-law while they were in Europe on an educational tour. Ruth limits herself to short trips.

Camilla and Bernard Hess, were guests of Virginia Newill Rawls for Alumnae Weekend. In May a friend from Moscow was their guest. Their sons’ campuses set some travel destinations for them. The Dupont connected son has been transferred from Wilmington to Chicago, and Vander-</minute>
Thanks to Emeline Starns for her years of service as our secretary. We hope she is getting a good rest and enjoying life, generally.

Gladys Wright Cockey is keeping busy with family, church and community volunteer work. She is serving as Lay Leader in the United Methodist Church in Fredericksburg, Virginia. She is participating in church related committees. She drives regularly for “Meals on Wheels” and serves for the Hospital Auxiliary in the gift shop. She keeps it walking, however she says “I know how long it has been since I ran up and down the hockey field.”

Polly (Mary Hall) Drinkard Walton, from Waycross, Georgia reports that she walks with a cane. If she does it must be winged—the way she fits about. With two granddaughters, ages 7 and 4, she visited family in Virginia—“fisked” by airport authorities to be sure the granddaughters were not highjackers; flew to Garden City to visit her sister whose daughter Jean Conway Bibb Van Slyke is a Westhampton graduate (class of ’46); visited friends and relatives in Clinton, New York and Scranton, Pennsylvania. She says a cane is like a magic wand, which she wields as she walks and she is beautiful!! Polly’s son is practicing internal medicine in S.C. and her daughter is a lawyer, with an office in Decatur, Georgia. Meanwhile, our President, who has been out of the office since 1970, is now in Fork Union, Virginia. She returned from a trip to Ireland, Scotland and England. She loves the beauty of the “Emerald Isle” and was surprised to find it was red. She enjoyed the villages in England and was especially impressed by Coventry, the shell of the old Cathedral and the sharp contrast of the new modern town. She is beginning to think about plans for our 50th in 1975.

Eunice Gill Norville writes from Richmond that she has nothing exciting to report except a delightful trip to Greece in the spring.

Bean (Elizabeth) Abernathy says she thinks the world is in a mess. She is wishing those of us who live in the Metropolitan Washington area could do something to straighten it all out! Bean is living in Louisville, Kentucky, far away from Watergate.

Cathryn Henna tells us of her busy life in Richmond where she is an Admissions Board, the Church Council, and as Chairman of the Work of Military Families Committee and Chairwoman of the Social Ministry Committee.

Anne Gordon Steward is moving from New York to Charlottesville, Virginia about October 1. Her new address will be—1612 Ingwood Drive, Charlottesville, Virginia 22901. Her husband will continue his research as “Scholar in Residence” at the State University of New York at Stoney Brook, Long Island, so, for the next year or two they will be dividing their time between Virginia and Long Island.

Billie (Alpha) Gordon Aiwill is happily situated in her new home—Medford Leas, Medford, New Jersey. She enjoys the activities of the retirement community, and travels as it suits her.

I am still working at the Department of Human Resources in Washington, D.C. worrying about and trying to do something about the neglected and abused children in the community. The Federal age limit will catch up with me in January, 1974, so after that I think I will get involved in other activities. Martha said I should mention the awards I received—Metropolitan Washington and National Society Worker of the Year. The article in the Summer issue of the magazine tells the story.

Please send me news about you and your families. Anything I receive between now and January will be held for the Spring issue. Thanks to all who have written and to all who will be writing.

Mrs. Frances S. Burnham (Thelma Ferrell) 24 Westham Green 3000 College Road Richmond, Virginia 23229

Helen Moon finished 28 years of teaching English literature at Collegeiate School with commencement this June and retired. We have many stories about this event. All spring there was much entertaining in her honor and there were constant expressions of sorrow at Collegeiate’s loss.

Susan Spring Vacation Helen had as house guests Mary Stevens and Mildred Jones.

Virginia Snow Richardson and her husband Howard retired from their work at Elon College in North Carolina. They plan a trip to the Orient in the fall.

Liz Barton was visiting in the area for a month this summer. She has retired from Albemarle College in Charlottesville, Virginia.

Louise Britton’s father died in March. He was 92. Louise too has retired from teaching. She and her husband, Mabel, have moved from their old home to an apartment in Norfolk.

Jimmie Steussy Mattox and Helen Moon had their usual summer visit with her ’70s in Culpeper. Usually they are accompanied by Mary Richardson Butterworth but, unfortunately, her husband was ill. Now he is well on the way to recovery we are happy to report.

Elizabeth Hale is at Bethel Hill, Kuala Nerang, Malaysia. She has set up an “Old Folks’ Home” there and sent a picture showing her guests and the workers there.

Lucie Francis Samuel and husband, Boyd, are off on a week’s trip to the north. They will stop in Chicago to visit with their daughter and then travel by various types of conveyance will cross Canada and on to their northern destination, Barrow, Alaska.

Miss Margaret Leake 408 North Meadow Street Richmond, Virginia 23220

You missed a good reunion. Etta, Phoebe, Marjorie, slim Camilla, Helen, Marion West S., Adelaide, Frances, Smith J., attended. At the College, Molie, Mar­­garet, Matilda, Edna Earl, Jane and Ann joined us for supper at “14.” Edna Early, Matilda and Jane provided a beautiful flower arrangement that was delivered to Isabel who was in the hospital. The evening was sparked by a visit from Fanny G. after her dinner with the Golden Reunion class. Pictures of husbands, families and grandchildren were passed and enjoyed.

Our deepest sympathy is extended to Carolyn Cutchin whose husband, R. H. Powell, died last month.

Ethel Johnson’s daughter enjoyed an European tour in May, Matilda with husband, Madison, went by ship in the summer. Mol­­lie visited New England in June. Helen Travis C. had a trip in June, also. She went to the West Coast.
Mail with news of you and yours is always welcome and read and shared at "14."

Thank you all for your contributions to the Alumnae Fund. We made another fine record.

Rhea Talley Stewart was in Richmond in the spring and visited many relatives and friends. She was the subject of a feature story in the Richmond Dispatch, of which she was formerly woman editor. She participated in the Channel 23 auction and was on the air for several hours. She also visited in Washington, the Afghan Embassy, the State Department, and other important places.

Mary Anne Guy Franklin spent several weeks in England. She and Rhea enjoyed comparing experiences they had had in their travels in Afghanistan.

My sister and I leave this weekend on the University of Richmond Alumni Tour to London.

Mrs. Thornton Stringfellow (Anna Marie Rue) 1131 Blue Ridge Avenue Culpeper, Virginia 22701

Charlotte Dudley Patteson and family moved from their home near the UR campus to a house on Carter's Creek in Irvington. Their daughter, Anne Roy, was married to Vernon Britt Richardson, Jr. in July.

Helen Dodd Driscoll's son, John Patrick, received his law degree from T. C. Williams in May. Her son, James Stuart, was married in April.

Jean Neasmitth Dickson's son, John, was graduated from St. Christopher's in June and was awarded the William Cabell Brown Prize for character and ability.

Margaret Brittingham Curtice's husband, Jack, who retired as athletic director of the University of California—Santa Barbara in June, was named to the National Association of College Directors of Athletics Hall of Fame at their convention in Denver in June.

Alesa Hardaway Prince's husband, David, agent with Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, is the new president of a national organization of trust officers, insurance men, accountants and lawyers.

We extend sympathy to Mary Owen Bass whose mother died in February.

Sarajayne Payne Arkedis and family had a great winter in St. Petersburg, Florida. Her daughter, Linda, a graduate of the Univ. of Florida, works in a bank in St. Petersburg. George Jr., is a 1st Lt. in the Marine Corps stationed in Philadelphia and will be out of the service in December.

Anne Boehling Bowles has done some substitute teaching in Richmond. She has a son, a 1st Lt. in the Marine Corps stationed at Dorado Beach, Puerto Rico. Their daughter, Jane, a graduate of the Univ. of Florida, works in a bank in St. Petersburg. George Jr., a 1st Lt. in the Marine Corps stationed in Philadelphia and will be out of the service in December.

Anne Boehler Bowles has done some substitute teaching in Richmond. She has her daughter, who will be a sophomore at Longwood and one who will be a senior at St. Gertrudes.

Mayme F. O'Flaherty Stone's son, Dick, graduated with honors form the U. of R. in May, and son, Andy, will be a junior working in Washington with SCAN (interior design). Ann is teaching at Mosby Middle School in Richmond: Fred is at Goddard College in Vermont and interested in sculpture.

Helen Martin Laughon and husband have returned to Richmond from Gainesville, Fla, where the Rev. Mr. Laughon had been pastor of the First Baptist Church for fifteen years. He is now with the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board. They are restoring "Chewick," the 18th century homestead on the Franklin Farm property in western Henrico County. They plan to live there (8106 Three Chopt Road) once restoration is complete.

Patsy Garrett Kokinacis had a nice write-up in the Richmond Times Dispatch when she had a part in one of "The Waltons" episodes and she and Earl Hamner reminisced about their good times at UR. A quote from the articles: "Patsy Garrett is the former Fred Waring singer, now busy on the Hollywood scene with movies, television, and commercials."

Margaret Purcell Spindler has moved to Florida. They are hoping for visits from friends coming that way. Her address is 8 Ocean Drive, St. Augustine, Fla. 32081.

Our daughter, Patty, graduated cum laude from Westhampton in May and will teach kindergarten in Henrico. She was in the May Court, and also reigned as queen of Greek Week at UR. Other daughter, Charlene, and husband moved into their new home out Bon Air way, and she will continue to teach at Buford Academy.

Dr. Harris Surveys 50 Years in Medicine

With a half century of service behind him, Dr. Malcolm H. Harris, '18, continues to practice medicine in an eight-county area of Virginia around West Point. Dr. Harris, who was graduated from MCV, began his practice in April 1923, and, in an article from the Newport News Daily Press, reviews the past 50 years.

He cites the development of sulfa drugs as the most dramatic development he has seen. "I can count on the fingers of two hands the drugs we used in 1923 that are in current use today. . . . We are deluged with new medicines. One of the biggest problems we have is staying out of trouble with reactions. . . ."

"The crux of the matter is that we deal with individuals. You can get a hundred thousand people to respond in the same way, then one individual will react entirely different. . . . I cannot treat my patients all alike. The only patient I have is the one that is in here at a particular time."

"Finding the cause of cancer is the most important break-through yet to be made in medicine, Dr. Harris says. He is confident recent discoveries are leading in that direction.

Dr. Harris has been president of the Virginia unit of the American Academy of Family Practice, which he helped organize; delegate from the Medical Society of Virginia to the American Medical Association; president of the Tri-State Medical Society. The only surviving founding member of the Mid-Tidewater Medical Association, he has missed only one meeting since the group was organized in 1927.

"We don't make as many house calls as we used to," says Dr. Harris. "We don't have to. It's so much easier for people to come to the office." Even so, his case load is several times the size he started with."
done. Quoting Mayme Stone: "... Thanks to Louise's professional skill giving to the Alumnae Fund increased from $43,000 in 1969 to $61,000 by June 15 (1973)." "Louise, who is one of our students, added individual alumnae and administrative detail than the job required of her. At the time, she did this gladly." "Your classmates say, 'Thank you, Cozy, for a job well done!'"

"... a subdivision of Cincinnati, Ohio. She will be spending more time, thought and effort with alumnae clubs and administrative detail than the job well done."

"... A W EST State representative to the Ohio legislature. ... she was one of three candidates in the Republican primary for the Ohio legislature from the 26th district. Headlines in the Cincinnati Enquirer June 7, 1972, a husband. "Fix Wins Recount By 1 Vote," but three weeks and two recounts later they announced she had lost to the incumbent by $66,000. "A stand undeterred, ... try again in 1974." Three days before the actual election her younger daughter, Marjen, was married to Charles Van Slars of Cincinnati and John." "... the trip in September to visit older daughter, Carol, and husband, ... David is working for an insurance agency. Both are UR graduates, class of '66. His wife, Kathy, who was married Mar. 25, 1973, to Christos Spanoudis. His mother, who came from Greece for the wedding, could not speak English. Mary, who had lived in Athens from 1964-1970, while her husband was assigned there with the USIA had to serve as interpreter for about 6 weeks, one reason she missed the return trip. Younger daughter, Mary Lou, was a sophomore at Swarthmore this fall, working as a swimming pool manager in Alexandria. Mary is taking a typing course at Northern Virginia Community College and may return to the "working ranks" in the future."

"... Betty has been a member of the Art League of Cameron Street (Alexandria, Va.) and has exhibited and sold some of her work through the League. Prints of (her) drawings of some historic buildings on Cameron St. are on sale at the Old Apothecary Shop and the City Mouse in Alexandria. "... "Mickey" Cage's husband is working as a horse at Harlinton, Va. They have two new members in the family, Bob (married daughter, Betty) from New York state and Princeton, Vandribilt, and Williams College. Daughter, Donna Holmes (marrying son, John, Jr.), is 26, unmarried and assistant manager of a national chain cafeteria in Cincinnati."

"... "Little Wiley" and husband, John, are still farming near Culpeper, Va. They have two new members in the family, Bob (married daughter, Betty) from New York state. ... six months since we last heard from her. "... She is a chemical physicist and received the medal given in honor of Dr. Loving's 80th birthday by friends at UR. She hopes to get to her Ph.D. next year. John, Jr., graduated from UR last year, was drafted, is now a surveyor in the artillery. Younger daughter, Louise, one of the first coeds at UV, is now working and studying to become a legal secretary. Son, Jimmy, a junior at Randolph-Macon Academy, is seriously interested in music."

"... a cartoonist-designer in the graphics department of USD Transportation, Washington. She is a member of the Art League of Cameron Street (Alexandria, Va.) and has exhibited and sold some of her work through the League. Prints of (her) drawings of some historic buildings on Cameron St. are on sale at the Old Apothecary Shop and the City Mouse in Alexandria. "... Mickey" Cage's husband has been racing his horses at Harlinton, Va. and their son has been a jockey for his father in various races. Anne Byrd, who already has her PhD, is now working on a Masters in Counselling. "... Katy's daughter, Katy, a graduate of Michigan State University, is now working as a programmer for IBM in southeastern New York. Kay and Jack were planning a trip to Scandinavia in June. "... "Puff" and Dick took the boat trip down the Ohio River in June. They ran into Maxine in Las Vegas (after the trip) where she was attending a librarians' convention."

"... Max's daughter, Carol, is pursuing her acting career in Los Angeles where she ... TV shows and appeared on TV in the Sonny and Cher and Cannon programs and has done several commercials; son, Alan, now has his own apartment in Richmond but comes home frequently "... "..."}

"... "... a letter from Martha (Edwards) Allen comes news of 'a long awaited trip to Europe' this past February and March. Their travels included Berlin, Frankfurt, Germany; Brussels, Brussels and Bruges in Belgium; Paris, France, and a little of Spain. "... Elizabeth Wilkinson Domke and husband, Arthur, were delegates to the National Education Association Convention held in Portland in July. Following the convention, the Domkes spent some time in California visiting her brother in Antioch, enjoying the beautiful California landscapes and seeing historic sites around San Francisco. "... Two new contributions to this class letter are deeply appreciated. Why don't you write news of your busy life so I may include it in the next letter? The deadline is January 25."

"... From Lillian Belk Youell comes news of "a very nice surprise came to me in the middle of May: news of a trip to England in September to visit older daughter, Carol, and grandchildren. "... The Ba sic School."

"... from Beth is Route #1, Hamilton, Virginia 22068. A letter from Martha (Edwards) Allen comes news of "a very nice surprise came to me in the middle of May: news of a trip to England in September to visit older daughter, Carol, and grandchildren.""

Our 20th class reunion was held on April 27 and 28. The festivities began Friday evening with a social hour and buffet at the home of Marie and Young Bruce on Riverside Drive. At the meeting following the buffet new officers were elected. They are: Nancy O'Neil Camden, President; Lou George Wolfe, Secretary; Jo Fugate Harris, Fund Chairman.

On Saturday night couples were entertained at cocktails and dinner at Salisbury Country Club. Afterwards, Jo Deter Sullivan and Bill invited those attending for early morning breakfast at their home.

Those attending one or both of the reunion functions were: Janet Johnston Parsons, Nancy O'Neil Camden, Betty Montgomery Marsh, Harriet Wheat Fralin, Virginia Lesueur Carter, Pauline Decker Brooks, Betty Jane Williams Potter, Gladys Thomas, Barbara Batten, Barb Miller, Margaret Bragg, Margaret Kelly, June Heisel, Barbara McPherson, Marilyn Bowlin Gordy, Methyl Young Bruce, Jane Wilcoxen Councill, Rita Jo Fugate Harris, Nancy Carpenter Jordan, Carolyn Carter Birdsong, Janet Midgett Payne, Mary Creath Payne, Lou George Wolfe, Lois Moody Mackey, Page McCray Miller, Pat Shomo Bradshaw, Jo Deter Sullivan, Jane Sheerman.

The well-organized arrangements for the weekend were made by our outgoing president, Carolyn Birdsong. Nancy Camden, past fund chairman, Methyl Bruce, and other Richmond alumnae. For our class, I want to thank our retiring officers Carolyn Birdsong, president, and Nancy Fling Fowles, secretary, for their leadership and hard work during the past five years.

We received letters from several other class members who could not come to the reunion. Carla Waal wrote that after nine years at the University of Georgia, she has now accepted a position as Professor in the Department of Speech and Dramatic Art at the University of Missouri-Columbia.
She also told of a trip to Scandinavia to attend a Nordic Theatre Congress where she played a leading role in a movie produced for Scandinavian television.

A letter from Jane Wilson Rolston informed us that she had "retired" from teaching in '69 to be a mother to Shonny Hunter, now age 3, and Giles Campbell, 14 months. Her husband, Holmes, is an associate professor at Colorado State University. Beth Carperin, Beth's eldest, has obtained her B.A. in geology, "Enact," on compost heaps, insect repellents without poisons, etc.

Faye and Bob have three boys, all of whom are in special programs for advanced students. Jim, age 13, is in the seventh grade. He likes to cook, is active in sports which includes playing on a baseball team and is the captain of that team. He plays the cornet in the school band. He is quite a math buff and would like to work with computers. John, age 11, is in the sixth grade. He plays the drums, but his primary interest is watercolors. He can't work in his laboratory and wants to be a biochemist or microbiologist. Tom is 9 years old and in the fourth grade. He is interested in sports and hopes to be a basketball player in the future. He is not for the band; he has chosen instrument is the tuba.

In the summer of 1971 Bob resigned as head of reference at the Illinois State University library in order to open his own auto repair shop. Even though he holds a masters degree in library science from the University of Wisconsin and is only a short time in the University of Illinois, he finds repairing motors a far more fascinating occupation. Bob was a subject for the national news media; the Chicago Sun-Times carried stories about the shop and the Associated Press. He participated in several radio interviews and one on television and received calls from places as distant as Boston and San Diego. The shop was called "Bob's Honest Auto Repair." He has been a den mother for cub scouts and a member of the League of Women Voters.

In behalf of our class, I extend our deepest sympathy to Margaret Rutherford Compton and to her family. Mrs. Compton and her husband, William, died in March of a rare complication of chicken pox called Reye's Syndrome. The Comptons have two daughters; Louise (7) and Leslie (2½).

Pat Netterling Harrington has moved into a new home “on the water with boat slips in the backyard,” Dick built the house himself, beginning in August 1972. Their new address is 100 White House Dr., Poquoson, Virginia 23662. Pat enjoys teaching kindergarten, and she is working in Early Childhood Education at William and Mary. She and Dick have three girls: 13, 11, and 6.

Karen Dietrich Gardner’s current address is “Glenrochie,” Abingdon, Virginia 24210.

Julia Jett Shepherd and Bob have moved to 9320 Evansway Lane, Richmond, Virginia 23235. Julia has “retired” from teaching for a while to keep up with Stephanie, 9 months old. Dick while there. They drove the Oregon coastline into California to Los Angeles and in July they, along with Sallie Magruder Rawls and Ash, visited Nancy Tingle Traynor in Springfield and toured the Washington area on the Traynor’s boat.

Sylvia Thompson Carlson, Ash and the whole Carlson family vacationed in Myrtle Beach this summer. The oldest child, Lisa, starts kindergarten this fall.

Bernard and Carly Bell Harris attended a CPA convention at the Greenbrier this spring where they found golfing just great. They followed this jaunt with a family vacation in New Orleans.

Betty Miller Morris and children have been spending some time in Philadelphia visiting Dennis who is working temporarily there.

Jean Zelinsky Longest and Harold went to Gettysburg this summer where Jean vacationed and Harold pursued his hobby of collecting antique guns. Jean stays quite busy as she is now under a twelve-month's contract.

Thanks to Mrs. Marsh, we have located Bob’s, 106 Mark Twin Drive, New Orleans, La. 70123. Sally received her Masters in Medical Social Work from Tulane University in May 1968 and has been working since then for the Louisiana State Health Department. Mrs. Marsh reports that Sally loves New Orleans and her work. She wishes others would respond to our calls for help as quickly as Sally’s mom.

Judy Kellough MC Veigh sent a “catch-up” letter from Mrs. Harold A. Gagliano—Mrs. Frank Gagliano, 292 Greenbrook Rd., N. Plainfield, N. J. 07060. Robbie reports that Frank is assistant track coach at Manhattan College, which to which he commutes each day. They are kept quite busy with Ralph 9, Diane 8, Nancy 6, and David 4. Robbie keeps up with our news via Frank's bulletin, but I'm sure he would appreciate hearing from old friends.

Joyce Steed Wszalek and Steve have bought a home wonderfully surrounded by trees and wildlife—much to their excitement!! Their new address is 293 Oak Hill Drive, Rt. 1, Forest Hills, Harrisonburg, Virginia 22801. Joyce plans a leave of absence for the fall semester for maternal reasons!!

Thanks to Linda Taylor Carter we have news of Sybil Stevens. Sybil has been Mrs. Bill J. Hundle for the past three years and lives at 11635 New York Court, Apt. 301, Reston, Virginia. Bill teaches and Sybil has recently finished a course in interior decorating.

Peggy McVeigh Nunally and hubby recently journeyed to California, concentrating on the Pebble Beach-Monterey-Carmel area. Peggy stays busy doing volunteer work at the school library, working with a Brown troop, and transporting two children who are on a swim team.

Linda reports that she stays busy and happy with the usual things—to Linda this means letter carrying!
up. Adrienne and Joe recently visited Jack and Jane Pitts McAlisters in Winchester. The McAlisters have bought an 18th century home and plan to be the employer. This past year Gwynn Barefoot Rupper taught one semester of Medieval History in the Open High School in the Richmond Public Schools. This caused you to arrange with the Junior Associates of the Valentine Museum, working mainly with the Jr. Center.

Judy Vanderboeche Carroll continues to substitute teach and tutor children in reading. At this time she is excitedly preparing for her upcoming trip to London. Joyce Davidson Wasserman is moving to a larger house with a bigger yard to accommodate the huge crowds of people that will visit her during the month of August. Her new address will be 12511 Neda Drive, Granada Hills, California 91344. The Wassermans vacationed in San Diego recently.

Received a note from Louise Inman Chandler before she left Texas for two weeks in Virginia and Delaware. Jim has finished his residencies and has begun practice in Richmond (just north of Dallas) in Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery. Louise stays busy as treasurer of the Richardson League of Women Voters and is presently undertaking publicity chairwoman for local educational groups. "Pitch-in-Walk"—encouraging citizens to become aware of clean-up and recycle.

Sally Clark Crooker returned to full time employment with American Airlines in January of 1972. In her job she is responsible for travel benefits of the employer. With the exception of the two months, March and April of '72, when husband Joe was recuperating from a ruptured disk, they have done an excellent job and covered for him to make a two week hunting trip to Alaska in September '72. He bagged a sheep, a moose, and a wolf. Sally says Joe's back is sufficient enough for the spring hunting season.

Betty Wade Blanton Jones and Jerry put off this time and vacation a couple of days in order to participate with us in our annual member-guest golf tournament. They were our guests earlier in June, and thought our husbands and no Jack Nicklaus, "we always have a great time together." Betty Wade has taken up tennis this spring and she is once again attempting golf. Betty Wade's major problem is that she has not found a golf pro that is not on the practice range, screaming loudly on the course! Miss Miller, you didn't prepare me!! In a frantic attempt to please both children and parents, we are dividing our vacations this year between Washington, D. C. and Myrtle Beach—with a quick side trip to Fredericksburg to catch up on the Allisons.

I'd like to thank those who supplied the new addresses. I know we all appreciate those who didn't. We only have news twice a year so please cooperate—news, births, new addresses, etc. A very simple way for each of you to fill me in for the next issue would be to mail me a note, mentioning your latest—don't forget, we're all interested in each other.

Special thanks go to Charlotte Hines Forrester and Peggy St. Clair Stevens for planning our tenth reunion. More than 30 of us had a wonderful time reminiscing and "catching up," but the lack of notes from the rest of you. Peggy asked me to thank those who sent contributions to the class treasury for mailing and miscellaneous expenses. There were the money that she left she plans to complete and make a newsletter to all class members, a sort of 10th reunion special.

Mary Benton Hummel's new address is 175 Howard Avenue, Apt. 9, St. Paul, Minnesota 55106. She had been to Greece in early April on an exciting 10-day whirlwind trip. In that time she visited five of the major cities, the island of Crete, and several of the smaller islands.

Barbara C. Vaughan Foods 6019-D Willow Oaks Drive Richmond, Virginia 23225

Linda Webb Talafaterro and Bill have moved to a farm in Center Cross.

Betty Lee Currell Guskin writes that Jackie Harper and Bill have visited with them in the spring in Urbanna.

Carolyn Jackson Mears and Gerry are now at Route 3 Brantley Drive, Salisbury, Maryland. They also have a home in Chinquapin, and spend time at Cranberry, Vermont with Caroline Thomas and her family.

Sue Jackson Lorch received her master's degree in political science from the University of California in August. She and Terry vacationed in Hawaii.

Jo Ellen Ripley made another trip to Haiti in the spring.

Jane Lasnky Quinn's husband, Kevin, is now at the National Center for Research in Richmond.

Mildred Burnett Mohan and Radhe vacationed in California in July. It was a business trip for Millie and David tagged along for vacation.

Millie Bradshaw Brown and Larry vacationed in Massachusetts to visit with Larry's parents. Millie is taking a modern dance course at the College in Franklin.

Cheryl Kerr Stevens and Ted have enjoyed cross country skiing. They have made two trips to Hayward, California.

In April they bought a home in Los Altos, California. They spend a lot of time remodeling and redecorating. Cheryl is still with the Main Computer facility at Stanford University. Owen visited Cheryl and Ted in July.

Fran Dix Mann has received her master's degree in Education from Virginia Commonwealth University and is a Curriculum Specialist in English and Social Studies for Chesterfield County on the Middle School level.

Diana Ryan Stivison and Jim are back from Korea and living in Petersburg.

Barbara Harton German and Bill have a new home in the Forest Lake Hills subdivision of Hanover County.

Judi Murr and Jim have recently bought a townhouse. Judi is teaching high school geometry and calculus.

Tay Wynne Bost and Lloyd vacationed at a rented cottage in Hardey. Hardey had been to move to a new home in Richmond at 17 Glenbrook Circle West. She loves it—especially the closet space.

Joe, Ginny, and I have made two trips since the last newsletter. In March we spent a few days at the Polynesian Village Inn, Disneyworld, Ginny, 16 months old at the time, enjoyed the Fantasyland rides and was amused by the Disney characters that wander around the Magic Kingdom. In July we flew to California for a visit with my sister in San Jose, 30 miles south of San Francisco. While there we did as much sight-seeing as we could—San Francisco (Fisherman's Wharf, Golden Gate, cable cars, etc.), Monterey, Sausalito, Muir Woods (location of some of the giant redwoods), and a very picturesque part of our country.

If I had taken notes during the reunion this class news article would have been much longer. Unfortunately, I was too busy enjoying the reunion to talk and could not later remember all the news I heard that night. So please, all of you, write me before our next news deadline (January 31st). Why not add my name to your Christmas card list right now before you forget?
Mrs. Epps Outlines RFI-WCR Relationships

The new biography Frederic W. Boatwright by Dr. Reuben E. Alley furnishes background on the relationships of Richmond Female Institute (RFI) and Woman's College of Richmond (WCR) with Richmond College and later Westminster.

To quote Dr. Alley, "Well before the close of the 19th century Baptist leaders in Virginia had advocated the establishment of a quality college for women." Dr. Boatwright, who as a professor at RFI had a keen interest in women's education, supported the idea.

In July, 1894, Dr. Boatwright and Dr. James Nelson, president of RFI, attended the annual convention of the National Council of Education. There Dr. Boatwright announced that the Institute would open its next session as Woman's College of Richmond.

Soon after 1895 when Dr. Boatwright became president of College, the Board of Trustees opened classes at Richmond College to qualified women. Although few applied, some men refused to matriculate because of the women students.

Meanwhile institutions in Bristol and Charlottesville as well as Richmond College made efforts to secure the proposed college for women. RFI-WCR minutes of February, 1905, state, "Dr. R. H. Pitt, president of the Baptist Educational Commission, reported the new woman's college would be established by the Baptists in Virginia if enough attractive propositions were made, and it would be in Richmond with WCR as a nucleus." On the strength of Dr. Pitt's statement, members of the WCR class of 1905 gave $1 each to the fund being raised among Baptists in Virginia. Emanuel Raab, whose daughter attended RFI-WCR, gave the first gift of $10. The alumni for their new college fund.

In May, 1906, the General Education Board of New York selected Richmond College, and the Baptist Education Commission approved a policy of one administration for Richmond College and the proposed college for women. In December, 1906, that year's General Education Board offered $150,000 to Richmond College if it raised $350,000 within 15 months. The General Board stipulated that $100,000 of the total was for a college for women. The goal was reached by Dec., 1909.

In 1914 the Westhampton College Alumnae Association to say that, at the proper time, the Woman's College would be included in the graduate schools of Richmond College.

In 1914 Westminster opened and Richmond College was relocated at its new campus. That year the Richmond College trustees approved a contract conveying to Richmond College the property and franchise of WCR which would continue as a junior college in relation to Westminster. By the close of the 1916 session, however, the Woman's College, then suffering a deficit, was closed with its students offered free tuition in freshman and sophomore courses at Westminster.

By 1925, no provision having been made for RFI-WCR alumnae, a committee was appointed to ask for an interview with the Board of Richmond College. Dr. W. A. Patterson, representing the Board, did not consider it an appropriate matter to take to the Board until the agreement signed by Dr. Boatwright was shown.

Shortly after, a communication from the Board of the Westhampton College Alumnae Association, signed by Maude H. Woodfin, '16, president, stated: "The Westhampton College Alumnae Association has heard with interest the proposal of the Trustees of the University of Richmond in relations between the Woman's College and the Westhampton College Alumnae Association as presented by Dr. Boatwright. Therefore, the Alumnae Association of Westhampton College in the University of Richmond states it will be pleased to welcome the Alumnae Association of the former Woman's College of Richmond and its predecessor, the Richmond Female Institute, into affiliated friendship as an organization and to cooperate in all efforts to enlarging usefulness and success of Westminster College."

Miso Margaret Williams
P. O. Box 632
Culpeper, Virginia 22701

Wish you more of you could have joined us at our first reunion April 27th and 28th. About twenty-five of us including our class sponsor, Judge William G. McDowell, were at Adele Affleck Medved's home Friday Night. Class officers for the next three years were elected: President—Meg Gilman; Fund-Raising Chairman—Dana Harrell Neel; and Secretaries—Fay Duffer Inge and Margaret Williams.

Lisa Byers has now returned from her studies in Europe and has begun graduate school at the University of Michigan. Her address is c/o Graduate School of Music, Biats-Smith #2103, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48104. Linda Fries is engaged and lives at 2119 Dumbarton Drive, Virginia Beach 28454. Linda's former roommate Jane Alphin Davis is doing lab research work for MCV and husband Wayne is in dental school there. Their address is 202C Quincey Road, Richmond 23229.

Marsha Carl was married in June to Jim Gillick, a med student at MCV. She completed her Freshman English at Tucker High School. Beginning in September Frances Fowler is in Athens, Ohio for two years working towards a MFA degree in Theatre.

Carol Wolfe Kindeer has a new address: 525 Alcott Drive, Hillandale Apts. #20-0, Columbia, S. C. 29203. She has completed requirements for her masters in school psychology and started a one-year internship July 1st. She is still studying for his degree in clinical psychology.

Ann Hodges is now computer programming for two doctors at University of Virginia Hospital. Pat Burton is a guidance counselor this year at Jack Jouett Junior High School in Charleston. Meg Gilman has received her M.S. in Biology from the University of Richmond and is teaching environmental science and biology at College.-

Sylvia Allgood's back in Williamsburg. For those of you getting lost or anyone else in the vicinity, Sylvia would love to see you. Just head for the lower level of the Colonial Williamsburg Information Center and the Virginia Tourist Bureau.

Lindsay Struthers is more than halfway through medical school in Tampa. She began her first clerkship July 9th with twelve weeks in medicine and is looking forward to December 28, 1974, when she will receive her M.D. She and Jim Nichols spent her spring break in Italy. She chaperoned twelve Latin students on a trip to Rome and Naples with a group of 250 students and teachers. In April Mary and Catie Holmes Horn were in Vickie Bowman's wedding in Danville. Vickie is now Mrs. Robert "Q" Jones, Jr. Bob is a government teacher at George Washington High School in Danville.

Naina Harper is in Martinsburg, West Virginia, for the second year. She is now an intern at a children's hospital in the county. Adele Medved and Mel have moved to a farm near Winchester. Mel has been elected to the Board of Parole. Eylee and Bill are living in Norfolk with their 11-year-old twins, Rachel and Jennifer.

Gale Burrow, Pat Burton, Frances Fowler, and Margaret Williams spent a month in Europe with an American Express tour—France, Spain, Monaco, Italy, Austria, Liechtenstein, Switzerland, Germany, Holland, and England were visited. Among the favorites were France for charm and England and Austria for beauty and friendliness.

Others in our class were traveling over the United States this summer. Anne Alport and Linda Noell went South to Florida. In July they visited Kathy White and Bill, Lee Finch Campbell and Buddy, and Mary Lee Watson Brazell and Jim. Mary Lee is teaching tenth grade math in a junior high school in Augusta. Judy Lancaster headed north to New England, and Margaret Douglas visited her aunt in Hawaii.

Brenda Carrier Martin and Teddy have bought a home at 2009 Dumbarton Road. Brenda works for the Social Service Bureau as a case worker, and Teddy is an accountant. Brenda was planning a September trip to Tokyo, Japan, to visit Janice Carter (WC White and Bill, Lee Finch Campbell and Buddy, Mary Lee Watson Brazell and Jim). Mary Lee is teaching tenth grade math in a junior high school in Augusta. Judy Lancaster headed north to New England, and Margaret Douglas visited her aunt in Hawaii.

Social work seems to be popular with members of our class. Alice Scott Dow works as a medical case worker for the Social Service Bureau in Richmond. She and James have a young son named Jamie. Jeanne Shorter Smith works with Brenda at the Social Service Bureau. She and Ron are moving to Asheville, Va. in January. William County. Ron works for Sears. They celebrated their second anniversary this spring with a trip to Jamaica.

Maryann Makowsky Robinson and Jim have bought a home in Chesterfield County—165 Inspiration Drive. Maryann works for Avis Rent-A-Car, and Jim is a purchasing agent for Babcock Phillips.

As for me, I am still teaching at the Stonewall Jackson Learning Disability Center in Richmond while Dwyer is working for the Allstate Insurance, and Margaret hopefully, by now, has a new job after resigning from the company. Going to Europe. Our next deadline is in January, so please remember us with your Christmas cards. All news is gratefully accepted.

At UR, it's just like the old days—Ryland Hall, the lake path, small classes. Only now it's better. Thomas Hall and North Court have wall-to-wall carpeting and air conditioning; continental breakfast is available for late sleepers; students take new courses such as "Big Bangs, Black Holes and All That," a study of the physical universe.

This is what the H. Stuart Massies of Hartford, Conn. found when they enrolled their son, Buck, as a freshman for the '73-74 session. Stu, a 1949 graduate of the Business School, is now manager of Travelers Insurance Company's life, health and accident division.

The University of Richmond is proud of its past and of its traditions, and proud that so many alumni and alumnae send their sons and daughters to their Alma Mater. If you want to have us share with your children or their friends news of UR's old traditions and the exciting changes of today, complete the form below. Then the Admissions Office will do just that.
