Director's Message

We made it! Well, at least we've reached mid-November. We can still visit campus, study in the library, and order campus coffee through Grub Hub. Thanks for your dedication to our health and shared study spaces. As you conclude the term and prepare for exams, we highlight resources for our law school community. To ensure access to study and take exams, we implemented a seat reservation system you'll use to book seats through December 18. Knowing that many people exercise to stay fit and focused, we offer downloadable legal lectures to consider. Also, when you want to know "the story behind the famous cases" we feature our collection of Law Stories, spanning the top cases in thirty-seven subject areas.

Good luck on final exams.

- Associate Dean Skalbeck

News You Can Use

New Seating Reservation System

If you plan on using Library space now through the end of the semester, we encourage you to use the seating reservation system to help guarantee your place while maintaining social distancing requirements. MuseNews has the details on making your reservation.
