IT WON'T BE LONG NOW

as the monkey said when he stuck his tail in the lawn-mower . . .

And it won't be long now before the Spiders will begin their 1938 football season. Ten tough games, six of them at home, are on the program. To the success of this program the team and the coaches pledge their best efforts.

We hope the alumni will like the 1938 edition of the University of Richmond eleven and that your presence at each game and active support will be an inspiration to lead us on to victory.

Here's the schedule:

Sept. 16—Apprentice School at Newport News. (night)
Sept. 24—Maryland at College Park.
Oct. 1—Randolph-Macon at Richmond.
Oct. 8—Hampden-Sydney at Farmville.
Oct. 15—V.M.I. at Richmond.
Oct. 22—Roanoke at Richmond.
Oct. 29—Washington and Lee at Richmond.
Nov. 11—V.P.I. at Richmond.
Nov. 24—William and Mary at Richmond.

Meanwhile, if you find any potential All-Americans running around loose lasso 'em. Tell 'em all about the University of Richmond and get their feet pointed in the right direction.

Cordially yours,

Alumni Day Draws Record Crowd

Best ever, both from the standpoint of attendance and enthusiasm, Alumni Day exercises brought back to the campus a crowd of 2,000 persons (including many non-alumni who came out to watch the athletic events).

Although the exercises reached their climax with the presentation to the University of a portrait of Dr. R. E. Loving, professor of physics for thirty years, and an excellent address by Dave E. Satterfield, Jr., ‘17, representative in Congress from the Third Virginia District, the largest crowd turned out to witness the afternoon baseball game between alumni and varsity teams.

Bucky Jacobs, ’37, leading Piedmont League hurler who has won nine out of ten starts for the Charlotte Club, pitched magnificently for two innings but after he left the mound the varsity staged an uprising that gave them the game by a 7-2 score.

Sharing mound duty with Bucky was Winston Browne, ’30; Tom Morris, ’35; and "Doc" Richardson, ’27.

The starting infield was composed of Doug Gunter, ’30; “Cotton” Landrum, ’31; “Pinky” Mann, ’30, and Fred Cook, ’25. In the outfield were “Speedy” Vial, ’32; Neely Godsey, ’37, and Ed Schaaf, ’37.

Preceding the baseball game, hundreds of alumni and many townsfolk witnessed the colorful water carnival in which were entered best swimmers on the campus and the outstanding “bathing beauties” of Westhampton. Phi Gamma Delta repeated its victory of the previous year to keep possession of the handsome Boatwright Trophy.

At the annual luncheon given by the University in honor of alumni and members of the graduating class, J. Vaughan Gary, ’12, was the principal speaker. It was his pleasure to present to Ralph Patterson Moore of Richmond, ’38, the Alumni Council Medal which is awarded annually to the outstanding member of the graduating class.

Vaughan praised the two previous winners of the medal, William J. Falls, ’36, who next year will complete his training at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, and Alfred J. Dickinson, Jr., ’37, of Mobile, Alabama, a graduate student at Harvard Business School. Bill is serving as assistant pastor of the First Baptist Church at Roanoke this summer and Al is working with a Richmond business house.

Dickinson, after making a splendid student government president at Richmond College, was chosen president of the Harvard Business School and also won the tennis championship of the school.

W. B. F. Cole, ’12, reelected president of the General Society of Alumni, presided at both the luncheon and the annual dinner. At this dinner was announced the election of officers of the Alumni Society and the reelection of Thomas W. Ozlin, ’09, as president of the Alumni Council and the election of other council members.

Robert M. Stone, ’30, presented his report as treasurer of the Alumni Council, a report which showed a total income of $6,567.35. (The detailed report is printed on page 11 of The Bulletin.)

Joseph E. Nettles, ’30, alumni secretary, gave a report of the activities of the Alumni Office during the year, including the quarterly publication of The Alumni Bulletin, the mailing of 35,000 pieces of mail to alumni, the addition of a class file to supplement the alphabetical and geographical card files, and the preparation of 1,000 articles which were published in newspapers from coast to coast. He also reported active efforts to secure a motion picture camera and predicted that a University of Richmond motion picture would be available for showing before the end of another year.
Sweet and Honorable

"It is sweet and honorable to live in the memory of one's friends and in their affections."

Thus spoke Dr. R. E. Loving, '96, for thirty years professor of physics at the University, in responding in a few words to the eulogies which accompanied the presentation of his portrait to the University at the Alumni Day dinner.

"Dulce et decorum est pro patria mori," said Virgil. But whether "it is sweet and honorable to die for one's country" becomes more and more a debatable question. That "it is sweet and honorable to live in the memory of one's friends and in their affections" is undeniably true.

Who was the more touched—Dr. Loving or the scores of friends around him who had come to pay him honor—it would be difficult to say. For those who were present the moment when the portrait was unveiled was a moment which will not soon be forgotten. He who had worked for the joy of the working, spurning offers of more money from larger institutions in order that he might remain with his alma mater, received at last the reward he prized above all others, the esteem and affection of his students.

One of Dr. Loving's most distinguished students, Dr. C. H. Willis, '14, professor of electrical engineering at Princeton University, spoke for all of Dr. Loving's students in the brief presentation address. Elsewhere in THE BULLETIN are printed Dr. Willis' remarks which were characterized by the same "gentle humor" which he admired in the subject of his eulogy and by the evident sincere devotion of one who had been privileged to be both a student and an associate of Dr. Loving.

Masterful but restrained, the brief address deeply moved all who heard it. But it remained for Dr. Loving to put in words the thought which was uppermost in the minds of all. It is indeed "sweet and honorable to live in the memory of one's friends and in their affections."

Athletes Plus

When the Alumni Council announced a year ago that its fellowships would not be mere athletic fellowships, it meant just that and now, after the plan has been in effect for one year, the Council can proudly point to the record of Fellowship recipients.

The public print recently carried the announcement of this year's fellowship winners, Gordon ReMine of Richmond and Vincent W. Collins of Appomattox. The Council has every reason to believe that these young men will measure up to the high standards set by the first three fellowship winners.

When the fellowships were established last year the first awards were made to Robert Keil of Oak Park, Illinois, Arthur Jones of Suffolk, and Richard Cash of Bristol.

Keil not only proved himself an athlete by placing first in every high hurdle race during his freshman year but also won recognition on the dean's list of distinguished students. Furthermore, all three of the Fellowship winners passed more than the minimum academic requirements during their first year and all will be eligible for athletic competition this fall.

Arthur Jones gives promise of being an outstanding football star as a triple threat back and he can play basketball and run track also. Dick Cash, a first class end on the football team, played center on the yearling basketball team.

As for this year's recipients, Collins ranked fifth academically in a high school graduating class of fifty-two, was president of student government and athletically was a line-pounding fullback and a catcher on the baseball team. ReMine, who graduated from Thomas Jefferson high school with a grade of 86, was president of the sophomore and junior classes and was a member of the student senate for three years. In track he ran all the sprints from the 100 to 440 and participated in the broad jump and high jump. In football he is a triple threat back.

A Memorial to Professor Harker

That was an eminently fitting tribute to the creative genius of Professor Frederick Flaxington Harker when on a springtime Sunday afternoon a group of his colleagues in the faculty presented a memorial collection of his published music to the University. For while we knew Mr. Harker as a beloved professor in Westhampton College for twenty years and his work, first at Baltimore and then for eighteen years at St. Paul's in Richmond, won him recognition as an organist and choir director of the first rank, his widest reputation came from the compositions which are an enduring contribution to music.

The collection is in two sets, each of four handsomely bound volumes, one for the University Library and one for the Music Department of Westhampton College, where future generations of music lovers may know and enjoy these products of his rare gifts.

Professor Harker was born in 1876 in Aberdeen, Scotland, of English parents. His musical education was begun in childhood, as he gave early evidence of unusual ability. At seventeen he was organist and choirmaster in Aberdeen. After a period as assistant organist in York Minster, he was invited in 1901 to come to America as organist and director at Baltimore, North Carolina.

There are one hundred and sixteen compositions in the collection. Their publication dates from the second year of his residence in this country down to 1936, the year of his death. The first volume contains the songs—his first publication was a song, "A Rose Jar," dedicated to Mrs. Harker. The second has his compositions for the organ and piano. General anthems are in a third and the fourth includes Christmas and Easter anthems and services. In the introduction to the collection Mrs. Ward says, "Even a cursory inspection of this music gives a remarkable insight into the personality of the composer. He has chosen for his texts, both in sacred and secular compositions, those conveying the joy, triumph and happiness inherent in the certainties of life. In the music, as in the words, there is a joyous freshness, a soaring melodic beauty, a triumphant rhythm, coupled with dignity of style and reverence of spirit."
The alumni have spoken in no uncertain way, reelecting as president of the Alumni Society none other than the genial W. B. F. "Billy" Cole, '12, of Fredericksburg. For vice presidents they chose John Archer "Nick" Carter, '16, of New York; the Rev. J. Maurice "Hank" Trimmer, '27, of Salem, and Virgil H. Goode, '27, of Rocky Mount. Douglas Gunter, '30, of Richmond, was elected secretary-treasurer, and Graham A. "Legs" Carlton, '23, and J. Claudius Kidd, '18, both of Richmond, were elevated to the executive committee. J. Vaughan Gary, '12, was reelected to the Athletic Council of which he has been a member since his undergraduate days. Nominated for the board's consideration for election to the board of trustees were Dr. Julian L. Rawls, '01, of Norfolk; A. Willis Robertson, '07, of Lexington, and Morgan L. Combs, '17, of Fredericksburg.
Fullback, Additional Guards Chief Needs as Spiders Face Fall Campaign

This is the season of the year when John Alumnus wants to know 'what kind of a football team are we going to have next fall?'

The questions have been bundled up and referred to Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite who tells a pitiful story about the lack of guards but to the critical observer there seems to be a lot of optimism seeping out around the edges.

After thirty years in the profession, however, Coach Glenn has learned that June hopes oftimes are blighted by the first cruel frosts of autumn and consequently he's just sawing wood and making no predictions.

As far as the backfield is concerned, Coach Thistlethwaite is somewhat like the old woman who lived in a shoe—he has so many chillun he doesn't know what to do. Or doesn't he? A usually well-informed source (as newspaper dispatches from Washington so charmingly express it) says that some of the backs will be guards before the season's over and that some of the surplus ends will be pulled in toward the center of the line where the battle always rages and it's "root hog or die."

The "three musketeers" of last season—Tom Davenport of West Haven, Connecticut and two Richmonders, Forrest Norvell and Bill Via—will have to bear the brunt of the battle next fall since last year's freshman team produced very little from the standpoint of guard material. All hands agree that there is no better guard in the state than Norvell, and Davenport and Via are a couple of good ones but they'll need some help if they are to hold up their part of the line during the gruelling ten-game schedule.

John Moore of Onancock showed some promise in spring practice and will be invited to participate in the early practice this fall and a couple of last year's letter-winning ends, Jack Powers of South Norfolk and Enders Dickinson of Richmond, probably will be given a try-out at the guards. There's a possibility that they'll be joined by Bob Keil of Oak Park, Illinois, sturdy-legged sophomore, and several other backs.

Although bolstering the guards seems to be the only serious problem in the line, Coach Thistlethwaite and his aides face two problems in grooming a successor to quarterback Len Kielbinski of Milwaukee who has graduated and full-back Clyde Pendleton who has withdrawn from school.

Bruce Van Buskirk of Bronxville, a husky sophomore who was giving the great Kielbinski a run for his money before a leg injury felled him in the Washington and Lee game, is as strong as ever again and probably will get first call at the signal calling job. He is a superb blocker. Jay Corbett of Hot Springs, another husky fellow, and the courageous half-pint, Leon Alexander of Petersburg, are other leading candidates for the quarterback position.

Developing a fullback may be Coach Thistlethwaite's toughest problem. Bill Fitzhugh, a great prospect who came from Thomas Jefferson High School in Richmond as a tackle, shifted to guard and ended the freshman season as a ball carrier, is determined to win the position in a three-cornered fight with Clyde Francisco of Danville, Pendleton's understudy last season, and the veteran George Spears of South Boston who probably will be shifted from his usual half-back position.

From the freshman ranks will come two of the best ball carriers the yearlings have furnished in many a day. They are Arthur Jones of Suffolk and Ned Butcher of Richmond and both of them are red hot candidates for a first string position. Both can run, kick and pass and each should cause the enemy considerable consternation this fall.

Buddy Lawless, of Richmond, a grand competitor who almost reached the heights last year, should end his gridiron career in a blaze of glory and great things are expected of Stuart Hoskins, the Fredericksburg flash. Another letter winner, Jack Kennedy of Pittsburgh, and Bill Robinson of Hampton, hero of last season's victory over Hampden-Sydney, will be ready for service.

Two Washington sophomores, Carl Sachs and Ludwig Kroutil, probably will be heard from also.

The Spiders have ends aplenty, including two all-Staters, A. B. Marchant of Urbanna who won his laurels last season and Jack Sanford of Luray who was selected the previous year while only a sophomore. Jack was out of action last season with a leg injury but is fit as a fiddle again.

Other ends are Bill Burge of Martinsville, Powers, Dickenson, and John Wright of Lynchburg among the veterans and three first class sophomores, Dick Cash of Bristol, Dick Humbert of Suffolk, and Starke Jones of Fredericksburg.

Although they'll miss Captain Chuck Siddall, the Spiders should be well-fortified at tackle with three lettermen and three sophomores. Ed Sinar, the lanky Clifton Forge fellow who is a first class punter as well as an able lineman; and Bill Morrison of Pittsburgh will be joined by Ames Harrington of Milwaukee who couldn't be used last fall because of scholastic difficulties. They'll have to keep jumping, however, to beat off the challenge of a trio of determined sophomores who won their spurs on the yearling team. Particularly outstanding is Andy Fronczek of Chicago, a vicious charger who specializes in blocking punts. Harold McVay of Norfolk was outstanding also and Bill Terry of Chatham, another big fellow who hits the scales at about 215 pounds, will be ready for service. The Spiders should get some help too from Tom Hall, the Rupert, West Virginia behemoth who weighs all of 235 pounds.

As for the center position, there's no worry there. Ed Merriek of Pottsville, Pennsylvania who won all-state second team honors as a sophomore last season is on hand and he'll have to play like an all-Stater to beat off the challenge of Bill "Moose" Faris, a grand competitor from Miller School. Sophomore candidates are George Shackelford of Hampton, Charlie Miller of Kearneysville, West Virginia, and Charles Catlett of Carington.
H. G. NOFFSINGER Completes Quarter Century as Intermont President

It was appropriate that the speaker at the special program on May 19th, honoring Dr. Noffsinger's quarter of a century of service, should be another old hand at the business of college president, Dr. F. W. Boatwright, '88, for forty-three years president of the University of Richmond and the nation's oldest college president in point of service.

A crowd which filled to capacity the college auditorium heard President Boatwright praise Dr. Noffsinger's fine qualities as a man and his great ability as an educator. To him more than any other man in the long history of the school which was founded in 1884 should go the praise for making Virginia Intermont "what it is today," Dr. Boatwright said.

The speaker paused to pay tribute to Dr. Noffsinger's "faithful helpmeet," (Civilla Brock of Smithfield, Virginia who was married to Dr. Noffsinger in 1901) and to his "able son [H. G. Noffsinger, Jr., '28, business manager] who has come in recent years to share the burdens of the administration."

Pointing out that "the average term of service for a college president in America is five years," President Boatwright quickly added that "if a president, as is rarely the case, proves successful for a period of twenty-five years, then he usually goes on for fifteen years more." He cited President Eliot of Harvard as an example and said forty years as president "has come to be the goal at which college presidents aim. I trust," he said, "that nothing less will satisfy President Noffsinger and his board of trustees."

Another alumnus of the University of Richmond appeared on the program, Dr. J. Emerson Hicks, '99, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Bristol and a member of the college's board of trustees.

The celebration of Dr. Noffsinger's silver anniversary afforded a timely occasion for a review of his contributions to public life, and particularly to the college and the cause of education in Virginia.

Born in Botetourt County, Dr. Noffsinger attended the old Allegheny Institute at Roanoke before he matriculated at the University of Richmond the year before Dr. Boatwright became president.

He was graduated with the B.A. degree in 1898 and won the M.A. degree in 1899.

From the time of his graduation Dr. Noffsinger devoted his efforts to teaching and to the cause of education. He taught at Windsor Academy 1889-1904; was principal of Franklin (Va.) Academy, 1904-1907; and was president of Southside Institute, a Baptist preparatory school for girls at Chase City, (Va.) from 1907 to 1912.

He came to Virginia Intermont as vice president under Dr. J. T. Henderson in 1912 and was made president in 1913 when Dr. Henderson became the Brotherhood Secretary of Southern Baptists.

Dr. Noffsinger's selection "was a fortunate choice," President Boatwright said, "for under his administration the school has far surpassed all its previous records in material progress, in enrollment of students, in breadth of curriculum and in influence in the world of education." When Dr. Noffsinger began his duties as president there were 165 students enrolled and there was a small debt of about $7,000. For the past year 405 were enrolled from thirty states and three foreign countries. Assets now total well over a million dollars.

Or as Dr. Boatwright expressed it: "Under the leadership of President Noffsinger Intermont was one of the first junior colleges admitted to membership in the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. President Noffsinger has been an outstanding leader in the American Association of Junior Colleges and in 1929 was president of this national organization. His success as an administrator, as upholder of good educational standards and his organizing ability have brought to him, and consequently to Virginia Intermont, wide recognition and praise in the world of education. He has been more than an educator, for he has also taken a prominent part in civic and church affairs."

He told his Bristol audience that "we shall need President Noffsinger for many years yet to continue his work of making Intermont strong, a beacon of light and learning, a bulwark of freedom and free democracy such as our fathers sought to establish at the cost of much treasure and blood."

His Alma Mater honored President Noffsinger last year with the degree of doctor of letters—the first one ever awarded by the University of Richmond.

C. Earle Hoshall, '26, is head of the history department at Ridgewood High School, Ridgewood, N. J., and also serves as coach of soccer and tennis. He has done graduate work at New York University, Columbia, and University of Colorado and will receive his M.A. degree from Colorado in June next year.
Willis, '14, in presenting the Loving portrait to the University, his address is printed in The Bulletin.)

With much interest, I have observed in recent years that the world is growing younger. A few years ago our generation was composed largely of my seniors. Today a majority of those present are younger. When first I came to Richmond, the faculty seemed venerable and austere men. Now the world has grown younger, I count among my most beloved friends many of these same faculty members whom I regarded so fearfully a short while ago. This has been a delightful change.

Another symptom of advancing age is my increasing interest in the events of years almost forgotten. Sometimes I have suspected that it was not so much my audience as myself that was thrilled by these stories of the past, but certainly nothing could be more appropriate for this occasion than a few reminiscences from student days and association with Dr. Loving. If I give to these reminiscences a personal touch, you will pardon my indulgence because so many students and friends of Dr. Loving treasure similar memories. If, viewing these departed days in the dim light of recollection, I seem to see them in a sunset glow of romance and adventure, remember that so also do many hundreds of our fellow students.

All but the youngest here have surely heard the story of the freshman who, seeing his train depart from the old Elba station on Broad Street without unloading his trunk, chased it vainly down Monroe Street and returned to observe that he couldn't catch it but that he did chase it in a hole. This was a mythical lad I can assure you and not myself, because I arrived at the Main Street Station. In other respects we had much in common.

This story has failed of its purpose if it has not called to mind the picture of a country boy, awkward and uncouth, naive and simple, a lump of clay fresh from the hills. Clay for the hands of a skilful potter, clay to be moulded on the wheel of study, to be adorned with the pattern of knowledge, to be fired with purpose and determination. Of such there has been a continuing procession through the halls of Richmond.

For many of you the old Science Hall on Franklin Street can be but a legend. For others it is a vivid memory. Here the sciences were stratified, chemistry on the first floor, physics on the second, math and biology on the third. This building was erected before it was known that the odors of chemistry would rise. Those on the upper floors were never in doubt if the chemists were making hydrogen sulfide.

The buildings, the apparatus, and the student body with a dozen charming coeds were only a token of what the future held in store. As students we never dreamed of fields so spacious, of halls so luxurious, or of a student body so promising and so numerous as adorn the new campus and the new Richmond.

It was only a few hours after my arrival in Richmond that I met Dr. Loving. He was, with other members of the faculty, sitting in the president's office to matriculate new students. It was only a few minutes later that I learned that Dr. Loving was from Fluvanna. Soon I knew of his interest in the 'Kingdom' otherwise known as Orange.

My first meeting with Dr. Loving, resulted in a struggle, one sided though it was. (I was insisting that the courses in physics should be taken in reverse order.) Through all the years of my association with Dr. Loving, as student, as assistant, and as colleague, these intellectual duals never failed to stimulate and to instruct. With homely metaphor he would parry a thrust, with gentle humor he would anoint the wounds of his adversary. As a student I feared his logic, as an assistant I respected his judgment, as a co-worker I admired his character, as a guest in his home I came to love and honor Dr. Loving and his "Lady."

Dr. Boatwright, on behalf of his many students and friends it is a great pleasure to present to the University of Richmond, this portrait of Dr. Loving. By this token we wish to show our gratitude for an inspiring teacher, a teacher who is also a student of human nature may, a student who comprehends the understanding of a philosopher, "Our Doctor Loving."—C. H. Willis, '14.

William H. Roper, '25, is now assistant physician for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company Sanitarium at Mount McGregor, N. Y. He is the author of several recent papers on tuberculosis and other diseases.

Edgar Bryan Quarles, '32, recently received his M.D. and is now serving his internship at Nassau Hospital, Mineola, New York.

David A. Dutrow, Jr., '36, is in charge of records and statistics in the engineering department of the Virginia Electric and Power Company. Dave also is teaching in the John Marshall High School at night.

George W. Sadler, '10, who has been pastor of the Second Baptist Church of Liberty, Missouri, since 1932, is president now of the Liberty Ministerial Alliance. Alma Mater conferred the D.D. degree on him in '28. During the World War as a chaplain in the 30th Infantry he won the Distinguished Service Cross.
Alumnae Day at Westhampton

On Monday, June 6, at 10 a.m. registration started in the Alumnae Office and at 10:00 p.m. that night when the book was closed ninety-one alumnae names had been recorded. Many others visited the campus but failed to register. At 11:00 a.m. a new alumnae feature was inaugurated into the regular commencement program. Two of our outstanding alumnae, May Thompson Evans, '21, Assistant Director of the Women's Division of the Democratic National Committee, and Evelyn Boatwright Lynch, '25 (our own President's daughter), who is a fashion writer in New York City, spoke at an open meeting of the Alumnae Association. Mrs. Lynch was introduced by Miss Isabel Harris. The history of fashion, the inside workings of how style and fashion is created, and some most interesting experiences of her own life were told by Mrs. Lynch. Mrs. Evans, who was introduced by Miss Lough, spoke of her work and advantages that were open to women to study government and politics today.

At the conclusion of this meeting Mrs. Lynch and Mrs. Evans were entertained for lunch in the gazebo of the new formal English garden. At the same time the '28 luncheon was held in the students' study, and a number of alumnae luncheon parties were held in the tea room. Immediately following the meeting of the government board at 5:30 p.m. the regular business meeting of the Alumnae Association took place in the reception room. Besides the president's annual report and the report of the executive secretary there were reports given by the various committee chairmen. The nominations for the members-at-large of the association submitted by Madge Pollard Pennell, '26, chairman of the nominating committee, were: Elizabeth Tompkins, '19, Lila Crenshaw, '26, and Dr. Louise Fry Galvin, '26. These were unanimously elected at this time. It was voted by those present to turn $700.00 of the book surplus over to the building fund and to have this sum invested under the guidance of Mr. Tabb.

At the Alumnae-Senior Banquet there were approximately 150 present. After greetings had been expressed by Dr. Boatwright he announced that for next year there would be another alumna, Grace Landrum Watkins, '30, as a member of the faculty in the department of sociology. After a few words of welcome from Miss Keller and from Mrs. Frank Epps, President of the Woman's College Alumnae, Miss Woodfin spoke briefly about the '28 reunion. Margaret L. Watkins then introduced and recognized several of the distinguished alumnae who were present. In conclusion Mrs. Leslie Sessions Booker, '22, National Alumnae President, made a speech of welcome to the seniors, the class of '38 and certificates of membership into the alumnae association were presented to them.

The report of the executive secretary showed a balance on hand of $201.00. The secretary reported that 4,500 pieces of printed matter have gone out of her office since September and that since January three new and corrected sets of class lists have been made and a geographic non-graduate file had been completed.

Special attention has been given to undergraduate cultivation, the secretary reported, and at a special chapel in April Mrs. Booker and Mrs. John Tyree, as a representative of the Richmond Club, addressed the students. There also was held a special meeting of the senior class at which the alumnae association was presented and explained.

Special emphasis has been placed, Miss Watkins said, on the establishment of the Alumnae Fund, new local club organizations, and the Westhampton College tea room.

The Westhampton College book shop committee of which Mary Denmead Ruffin, '18, is chairman reported a gross profit of $2,131.99 and expenditures of $1,365.12, leaving a net profit of $766.87. Deducting the one-fourth of net profit which is the manager's commission, there remained a net to alumnae of $575.15.

Margaret Harlan Hilton, '26, reporting for the Richmond Club of the association, spoke of the sightseeing tour in October for delegates visiting the college for the national student government convention, the Christmas party in December for children of alumnae and faculty, a card party in February in conjunction with the Woman's College Alumnae, a tea for the visiting high school students during hospitality week, and a historical tour of Richmond which was conducted by Dr. Douglas Southall Freeman. Mrs. Hilton reported that approximately 160 persons went on the tour. "Besides being a financial success," she reported that the tour was "an occasion of dignity and charm."

Miss Isabel Harris, chairman of the Alumnae Loan Fund Committee, reported loans to students of $430.00 and a loan of $250.00 to the tea room. The balance on June 6th was $155.00 with $294.50 outstanding in unpaid loans.

In conclusion Miss Withers, Miss Harris, Miss Lough and Miss Turnbull, Miss Woodfin, Miss Crenshaw, Mrs. Grove, and Miss Turnbull made a balance on hand of $201.00. The secretary reported that 4,500 pieces of printed matter have gone out of her office since September and that since January three new and corrected sets of class lists have been made and a geographic non-graduate file had been completed.

The reunion of the class of 1928 was a great success and one of the finest alumnae gatherings ever to be seen on the campus. At 5:30 p.m. on Saturday, June 4th, the reunion was officially opened by the lake with a picnic. Besides the '28ers all the faculty and staff of Westhampton who were here in 1924-1928 were present and a large number of them.

On Sunday afternoon a large number of the class were present for the tea given by Miss Woodfin in the Social Center Building. The class colors of '28, blue and white, were most effectively carried out in the color scheme of the party. Many of the class members who were unable to attend the picnic were present at this time. The closing event of the 1928 celebration was the luncheon on Monday in the tea room. Two particularly delightful numbers on the program were the '28 movie made and shown by Emerald Bristow and the poem by Mildred Anderson Williams. The movie was a pictorial history of the class hand-painted on a roll of paper so attached to a large wooden frame that it could be run through a picture-like frame.

A number of the class were present for the Alumnae-Senior banquet on Monday night in the gym. This was the concluding feature of Alumnae Day. Mrs. Louise Massey Crisp, Mrs. Elizabeth Harris Jones, Mrs. Henriette Greenbaum Kohn, and Mrs. Virginia McMurtry Lyon are especially to be congratulated on the fine work they did as members of the reunion committee.

Westhampton News Flashes

Julia Adele Donohue, '34, has recently announced her engagement to Ralph Spencer Martin. The marriage will take place in the fall.

Kitty Ellis, '36, is now Mrs. William Fox of Ayletts. She was married during the last week in May.

During the Southern Baptist Convention we were able to welcome many alumnae back to the campus. Among them were Margaret Chapin Perry, '28, from Greenville, Alabama; Eva Sanders, '24, from Lagos, Nigeria, West Africa; Saxon Rowe Carver of New York City, '27, and Mrs. Zola Hubbard Leek, '22.

Mary Hicks, '31, of Baltimore and Marjorie Canada O'Riordan, '33, were recent visitors on the campus. Marjorie is now making her home in Atlanta, Georgia, at 636 Cleburne Terrace.

On Saturday, May 28th, Mary Liz Puette, '36, was married to Garland Scott Francis.

Ruth Henderson, '21, is teaching education courses at Stanford University this summer. She sails from New York this month and travels via Panama Canal.

Mary Denmead Ruffin, '18, will be a member of the St. Catherine's faculty in Richmond next year.

It is with much regret that we learned of the death of Marjorie Crawford Westgard, '31, at her home in Richmond.

Among the alumnae here from out of town for commencement were: Betty Kelley, Mt. Vernon, N. Y.; Virginia Kirk, Woodbury, N. J.; May Edmonds and Katherine Spicer Edmonds, Accoumac; Anne Ruth Harris, Syracous, N. Y.; Eleanor Hardaway, Suffolk; Kathleen Bland Cottell, San Francisco, Calif.; Margaret Monteiro, Anking, China; Mary G. Decker, Montevallo, Ala.; Eleanor Decker, Lahore; Audrey Dillon Arnold, Ardmore, Pa.; Cecelia Wight, Washington, D. C.; Hazel Anderson Carpenter, Lynchburg; Evelyn Boatwright Lynch, Westport, Conn.; May Thompson Evans, Washington, D. C.; Lydia Hatfield Chappel and Dorothy Seay Brumbaugh of New York City; Buckner Fitzhugh Pennell, Orange; Sarah Cudd Gaskins, Thornburg, Pa.; Louise Massey Crisp, Suffolk; Virginia C. Willis, Hyattsville, Md.; Ethel Pond Brinkley, Suffolk; Mary Payne Copenhaver, Chilhowie; Gertrude Lewis and Nooks Miller of Culpeper; Catherine Georges, New Rochelle, N. Y.; Katherine Tyler Etlett and Ann Kincannon of Roanoke; Bobby Brock of Appalachia; Virginia Peers, Charlottsville; Katherine Essex Clark, Winchester; and Panny Frazer of Charles Town, W. Va.

Louise Thompson, '37, will become the bride of Dr. Clarence Conway Cheving, '31. Miss Thompson was a teacher at Bowling Green where Dr. Cheving is a practicing physician.

Margaret Minor Walker, '35, was married on June 11th in Birmingham, Alabama to John Bradford Knowlton. They are at home at 1421 14th Street, South, Birmingham, Alabama.

Trackmen Win

Highlights of a successful track season were victories over William and Mary, 67 to 59, and V.M.I. 63 1/2 to 62 1/2.

The Spiders lost only to Washington and Lee's strong Generals who triumphed, 85 to 41.

Randolph-Macon fell before the well-balanced Richmond team in the opening meet and the following week end North Carolina State took it on the chin, 82 to 43.

In addition to closing the season with a record of four victories in five dual meets, Coach Glenn Thistethwaite's thinitlads made creditable showings in state and conference meets. Frank Alvis, gallant little captain and ace hurdler, led the Spider scoring and other consistent performers were Bill Morrison of Pittsburgh, captain-elect, in the shot and discus; Jack Sanford, weights; Dick Stoneburner, Richmond, pole vault; Ed Sinar and Ed Bragg in the javelin.

The not-so-lowly freshmen, however, stole the show by coming within a gnat's whisker of winning the state meet. Bob Keil, star high hurdler who won first place in all of his dual meets, beat the flock to the tape in the state tournament but was disqualified because he knocked down three of the old-fashioned hurdles. As a result, Virginia's Cavaliers won the meet by the scant margin of two points.

Outstanding member of the freshman squad and the outstanding freshman in the state was Bill Brauer, groomed by Cleve Kern at McGuire's School and brought along fast by Coach Thistethwaite. All Brauer did in the state meet was to win three first places in the sprints, high jump and high hurdles!

Harold McVay, the husky fellow from Norfolk, won first place in the shot in every meet and was the winner of the discus in all meets except one which was won by his teammate, Bill Fitzhugh of Richmond.

5-5 Record in State Competition

The baseball bubble finally burst and the University of Richmond Spiders, after winning four consecutive state championships, bowed out of the picture during the past season.

The Spiders lost to William and Mary and the great "Rosy" Waugh, 6 to 0, and the Indians won the state championship with an outstanding baseball team.

Best by injuries and short of pitchers, the Spiders were off to a slow start and lost five consecutive games before oupping Cornell 9 to 3. They won 7 of their last 13 games, however, including a 10 to 2 victory over North Carolina and a 5 to 0 shutout over V.M.I.

Keeping up his "policy" of developing one great pitcher a year, Coach Mac Pitt brought the sophomore, Porter Vaughan, a left-hander from Stevensburg to top form. He scored victories over North Carolina and V.M.I. but was bested by Waugh in the final game of the season.

Although they lost 10 and won only 8 games during the season, the Spiders had a 5-5 record in state competition.

Pete Jacobs, captain and star third baseman who was out of the game all season with a head injury, will return for his M.A. degree next year and will add strength to the team. The Spiders also can look forward to the graduation of several of the freshman stars to the varsity ranks.

Outstanding member of the team, Jack Sanford, Luray giant, will captain the Spiders next season. Jack hit at a terrific .424 clip and led the Southern Conference batting parade during most of the season.

Edmund J. Woodville, '85, reminds us that boxing was a sport at the University as early as 1883. He was a member of both the boxing and football teams and took an active part in the Philologian Literary Society. Mr. Woodville for many years served as county surveyor for Orange County and later represented that county in the House of Delegates. Since 1922 he has been a citizen of Florida and he is now located at Sulphur Springs, Tampa.

Frederick Stoutamire, Jr., a 1936 graduate who received his M.A. in '37, is now head of the English Department at Shenandoah Valley Academy.

Dudley C. Ashton, '20, has been a practicing physician in Beckley, W. Va., since 1934. He is the author of several articles which have appeared in the medical journals.

Dr. O. F. Hedley, '25, of Philadelphia, past assistant surgeon in the United States Public Health Service, is the author of several recent bulletins on heart disease.
New York

The Annual Alumni Banquet of the New York City Chapters of Westhampton College and Richmond College was held on Tuesday evening, May 17th, at the Town Hall Club, New York City.

Dr. Boatwright was the guest speaker for the occasion and it is the unanimous opinion of all who were present that the 'good doctor' was never in better form. His talk was a real inspiration and tonic to all those present and we wish to express to Dr. Boatwright our sincere appreciation for his interest in our chapter and for his kindness in coming to New York to speak to us.

Many alumni were present who had not attended any of our functions for several years, among whom were Fred Toy, '14; Dr. Henry E. Garrett, '15; Sydney E. Hening, '11; Rev. Cecil Earl Rife, '26, and Paul Bartlett McDaniel, '23.

Mr. Hening is now associated with the Young Men's Christian Association, 347 Madison Avenue, New York City, having been transferred here about a year ago from Pittsburgh where he was located for many years.

Harry Hill, '28, retired as president of our Alumni Association under the system established about a year ago and William J. Moll, '13, who was vice president the past term, succeeds Mr. Hill as the new president for the ensuing term. Charles W. Buford, '15, becomes the new secretary and Victor H. Chalum, '34, assistant secretary. Harry Hill, as is well known, has been a diligent worker for a number of years, and has contributed largely toward keeping alive the interest of our alumni in the college.

Chandler B. Snead, Class of 1906, had as his guest to our dinner, Dr. Pohwatan James, '03. Dr. James is pastor of the First Baptist Church of Tuscaloosa, Alabama. He spoke for a few minutes, informally, giving interesting sidelights of his years, both during and since attending college. We were glad to have him present and thank Mr. Snead for having brought him along.

Bluefield

The Bluefield Chapter held a luncheon meeting in honor of President Boatwright when he was here recently to preach the baccalaureate sermon and deliver the commencement address at Bluefield College. James S. Kahle, '06, president of the chapter, presided. Twenty-five of the approximately fifty alumni in the Bluefield area were present.

In an informal talk at the luncheon, Dr. Boatwright told of the many changes and improvements which have taken place in recent years. Despite the fact that we live so far away from 'headquarters' he inspired us all with his enthusiasm for Alma Mater. Dr. Boatwright said it was the first time in his experience that one college had included the alumni meeting of another college in its regular commencement program. He thanked Dr. Edwin C. Wade, president of Bluefield College, for his thoughtfulness.

Seven former students of the University of Richmond are now members of the Bluefield faculty. C. W. Owen, '06; E. M. Louthan, '07; M. R. Louthan, '31; Marvin Williams, '27; Mrs. Emily R. Gruver; Jessie Le Grande, '32; and Margaret Lazenby Brown, '26. Marvin Williams' wife, Kathleen Stinson Williams is a member of Westhampton's Class of '26.—MARGARET LAZENBY BROWN, '26, secretary.

Danville

Dick Patterson, Jr., '32, is back in Danville after spending some time in Lexington, Canada.

Elmer Potter, '29, has changed his address again and since March 15th has been studying at the University of Chicago.

Lanier Anderson, '36, and Marie Lucy Harwell, '36, were married in Petersburg on April 16th. They are living on Howeland Circle, Danville.

Clara Terry, '32, is now Mrs. Walter Nowlin Owen and is living in Danville.

Curtis Bishop, '32, was elected vice president of the American Association of Junior Colleges at its recent meeting in Philadelphia. Mr. Bishop was also on the program for the meeting and spoke on 'the junior college: its opportunities.' Mr. Bishop is president of Averett College.

Clarence P. Kearfott, a graduate of the Law School, '36, and Miss Elizabeth Louise Kelly, of Big Stone Gap, Virginia, were married on June 16th.—ELIZABETH FUGATE, '32, secretary.

Roanoke

R. Courtney Mottley, '21, a member of the faculty of Jefferson High School here, has recently been elected president of the Reserve Officers' Association of Roanoke. Stanley Craft, '31, has enjoyed a most successful season in his initial venture as coach of the track team of Jefferson.

E. L. Flippo, '30, is president of the Roanoke Photo Finishing Company, which has recently moved into its splendid new building. It is said to be one of the most modernly equipped photography establishments in the world. The formal opening took place June 2, 3, and 4.

Two Westhampton alumni are prominent in local dramatic circles. Miss Clara Black, '24, is director of dramatics at Jefferson High and is quite active in the Roanoke Little Theater League. She has also done considerable directing of radio dramas recently. Miss Susie Blair, '25, continues her fine work as head of the dramatics department of Hollins College. Her commencement play this year was "The Romantics," a satirical comedy by Edmond Rostand.

William Fallis, '36, is again serving as assistant pastor of the First Baptist Church during the vacation months. "Bill" has one more year in the Seminary at Louisville.

Dr. Blanton P. Seward, '18, recently married Miss Edna Gibbons of this city. The wedding brought about the impossible—a union of the University of Richmond and the College of William and Mary. Mrs. Seward is an alumna of the Williamsburg school.

Hon. Willis Robertson, '07, of Lexington was in Salem recently attending a birthday celebration for his mother, Mrs. F. P. Robertson, who on April 12th attained the ripe age of four score years.

Dr. Eugene Luck, '04, has a daughter, and graduates this year from Sweet Briar college.

John Glasgow, '25, has become an outstanding local churchman. He is teacher of a boys' class in the Sunday School, and is leading the Junior Brotherhood which was recently organized at Virginia Heights Baptist Church.

Rex Brugh, Jr., '36, graduates this spring from the Harvard Business School.

Miss Elizabeth Sutherland, '26, of North Garden, near Charlottesville, is a Westhampton alumna who has been a prominent member of the faculty of Andrew Lewis High School, Salem, this year.

Ministerial Notes: Rev. John Coburn, '16, is president of the Roanoke Baptist Ministers' Conference this year. Dr. John Kinchloe, Jr., '28, of Emporia, and Rev. J. M. Trimmer, '27 of Salem negotiated an exchange agreement this spring, each assisting the other in a week of special services in their respective churches. Rev. Howard Arthur, '26, is helping Rev. Sam Stone, '32, in special services at the Cave Spring Church in June. (Vital Statistics: Rev. and Mrs. Stone are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a daughter.) Dr. George Dewey Stevens, '22, preached the commencement sermon at William Byrd High School of Vinton, Rev. Roy Orrell, '23, has taken a prominent part in the organization of the local Optimist Club. Rev. J. E. Davis, '25, won an important case in the local Hustings Court when his church had to resort to litigation to establish the validity of its title to property occupied by an oil company. Dr. George Braxton Taylor, '81, and Dr. Richard S. Owens, '33, were on the university campus at commencement attending the trustees meeting.

Local alumni are rejoicing that Franklin and Mac Hough, sons of R. F. Hough, superintendent of the Baptist Orphanage of Virginia, are matriculating at Alma Mater this fall.—J. MAURICE TRIMMER, '27, secretary.

Caroline

The Caroline Chapter, one of the most recently organized University of Richmond Alumni Chapters, has twenty-one representa-
We are very proud that one of our number, L. M. Ritter, '03, received the degree of Doctor of Divinity at the commencement exercises at the University this month. Mr. Ritter is the president of the Caroline Chapter.

Four of the five lawyers are University of Richmond men: Willing Bowie, '11; Frank Beazley, '20; Bernard Mahon, '23; and Elliott Campbell, '27.

The medical profession has five University of Richmond representatives in Caroline County: Dr. Clarence Campbell, '33; Dr. C. C. Chewning, Jr., '31; and Dr. R. C. Chewning, '34; Miss Virginia Bell, '29; and Miss Gay Broaddus, '07. W. A. Loving Portrait Fund.

The University of Richmond representatives in the ministry are: Willing Bowie, '11; Frank Beazley, '20; Bernard Mahon, '23; and Elliott Campbell, '27.

In education are W. A. Vaughan, '20, division superintendent; two high school principals, B. E. Mitchell, '21, and J. B. Martin, '98; one school board member, L. G. Pitts, '16; and six high school teachers, Miss Lucy Anne Wright, '30; Miss Louise Thompson, '57; Mrs. Clarence Campbell, '10; Miss Dorothy Chewning, '34; Miss Virginia Bell, '29; and Miss Gay Broaddus, '07. W. A. Vaughan, '20, secretary.

Lawrenceville

Malcolm D. Harris, '30, holds the position of treasurer of the town of Lawrenceville.

E. Morris Abernathy, '26, is a candidate for mayor of Lawrenceville.

Emerson D. Baugh, '25, is trial justice.

Richard T. Elmore, '33, was married this spring to Miss Jewell Maness and is now living at 605 Edgehill Road, Richmond.

Albert Luck "Pete" Jacobs, '38, and E. H. "Chief" Pointer, '34, are playing on the Lawrenceville baseball team. Mr. Pointer, a resident of South Hill, is a vice president of the Lawrenceville-Emporia-South Hill chapter.

C. J. Hobgood, '28, was married last summer to Miss Mabel Wilmouth.—Mrs. George Short, '21, secretary.

Martinsville

Clarence Kearfoot, '36, (Law School) will be married to Miss Elizabeth Kelly of Big Stone Gap on June 10th.

W. R. Broaddus, Jr., '20, commonwealth's attorney of Henry County, has recovered sufficiently from an appendicitis operation to be back in his office.

Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Tuggle (Marguerite Roper), '26, announced the birth of a daughter, Betsy Faye, last February.

Dr. J. P. Scott, '30, has recently completed and just moved into his new home in Forest Park. Mrs. S. L. Goodman, secretary.

Suffolk

Francis S. Chase, '21, principal of Suffolk High School, was elected governor of the 187th district of Rotary International at last month's meeting of more than 500 Rotarians from the Eastern half of Virginia and North-eastern North Carolina at Elizabeth City, N. C. His election was unopposed and unanimous.

A past president and a leading member of the Suffolk Club for several years, Governor Chase also has taken an active part in group and district Rotary affairs. During the past club year he has served on a number of important committees and as chairman of the group of Rotary Clubs of which the Suffolk Club is a part.

Charles B. Godwin, Jr., '18, was elected president of Godwin Motor Company, at a reorganization meeting recently.

The new president, widely known throughout Eastern Virginia and North Carolina, is commonwealth's attorney of Nansemond County and a well-known sportsman.—B. Redwood Council, '36, secretary.

Norfolk—Portsmouth

Vernon Richardson, '35, a graduate of Crozer Theological Seminary, recently was ordained at impressive and solemn exercises in Court Street Baptist Church. Among those who assisted in the ordination were President Boatwright and President James H. Franklin, '95, president of Crozer.

Margaret Virginia (Peggy) Brown, '35, recently became the bride of William Dixon. They will live in Norfolk.

Peninsula

The Peninsula Westhampton Alumnae Chapter met recently and elected Anna Hallett, '35, as president, and Mary Lou Trice, '32, as secretary.—Mary Lou Trice, '32, secretary.

Clarence J. Gray, '33, who won both Phi Beta Kappa and Omicron Delta Kappa honors at the University, has been instructor in Spanish at Columbia University since 1934. Mrs. Jones is the former Jane Love Little, '32. A daughter, Frances Elizabeth, was born last year.

John A. Moore, '34, is teaching mathematics in the Bronxville, N. Y. High School.
James Kenneth Cunningham, '35 has been practicing law at Beckley, W. Va., since 1936.

H. Ray Bennett, '27, is farming at Ringgold, Va., and is president of the Community Farmers Club.

The Rev. T. R. Corr, '86, who is doing great work at the School for the Blind in Muskogee, Oklahoma, is the author of a work which will appear in Volume VI of Genealogy of First Families of America. In a recent communication, Mr. Corr points out that he was the undergraduate roommate of the honored president of the University of Richmond.

Captain John Brooks Kaufman, '97, a surgeon in the Navy Department at Washington, is located temporarily at Norfolk, Va. While an undergraduate he played on the baseball and football teams, edited the Spider—now the Web—and was responsible for the selection of the colors Red and Blue as the University's official colors.

The Rev. Charles F. Leek, '22, has made an amazing record in the ministry since his graduation from the University just fifteen years ago. His name appears in both Who's Who in America and the International Blue Book. Mr. Leek is pastor of the Highland Avenue Baptist Church in Montgomery and is vice president of the Montgomery Ministerial Association. He and Zola Young Hubbard, '26, were married during their sophomore years and they were the first married couple to receive degrees at the same commencement.

Jesse Dillon, '27, a former Spider football captain, is now supervisor of inheritance taxes for the State Department of Taxation. Mrs. Dillon is the former Margaret E. Knight, a Westhampton graduate.

Harry C. Hubbard, '35, a student now at Union Theological Seminary, recently was ordained into the Baptist ministry. He will continue his studies next year at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Paul H. Cale, '31, has been principal of Greenwood high school in Albemarle county since 1935.

Dr. H. Marshall Taylor, '01, of Jacksonville, Fla., one of the nation's leading physicians, both in research and practice in the specialized field of ear, nose and throat, recently was chosen chairman of the American Medical Association's section of Oto-laryngology. The medical body's action was taken at the San Francisco convention.

The distinction was but one of many which have come in quick succession to Dr. Taylor in recent years.

Augmenting the numerous honors which have come to him in his chosen profession was his tenure of office as president of the American Bronchoscopic Society. Dr. Taylor also holds membership in all of the special societies pertaining to his particular branch of medicine.

Dr. Taylor is credited with being responsible for legislation controlling the sale of poisons which could be ingested by children—principally lye. Through his efforts these poisons are now required to be plainly labeled, the result being that many small children's lives have been saved and their happiness insured.
There's Concentrated Energy in MILK

That's why Milk, "nature's most nearly perfect food," is doubly necessary during these hot summer months. You get the zest-giving energy that is necessary in summer or winter and none of the discomforts that come from overloading with heavy foods.

Drink it "as is" or try our Krim-Ko Chocolate—a delightful beverage which children love, and "grown-ups" relish.

Remember that Virginia Dairy is dedicated to the task of supplying you with the best milk that is produced. Not from one farm alone but from many farms in Virginia comes the milk that is delivered to you each morning in the Virginia Dairy bottle. That's why you can be assured of an adequate and dependable supply of milk at all times.
