It costs you nothing

TO BELONG TO THE BOOK-OF-THE-MONTH CLUB

Yet, in the past year

IF YOU WERE A MEMBER AND HAD BOUGHT THESE SELECTIONS

YOU WOULD HAVE RECEIVED Six of these books Free

Pictured here are the most recent books that were Club Selections and Book-Dividends. Members do not have to take the selection every month; they may buy as few as four a year. But whenever they do buy the Club's selections they receive one book-dividend FREE for every two selections they buy.

O ver 425,000 families—thus at the very least, over a million discriminating book-readers—now belong to the Book-of-the-Month Club. They do so, in order to keep themselves from missing the important new books they are really interested in.

Time and again you buy the "book-of-the-month"—merely because some discerning friend has said warmly: "There's a book you must not miss." How sensible to get these books from the Club, since you pay no more for the books you must not miss. Optional you receive, free, one of our book-dividends.

LIST OF SELECTIONS SHOWN ABOVE

- Berlin Diary, William L. Shirer
- The Keys of the Kingdom, Dr. A. J. Cronin

- Embrazzled Heaven, Pears World
- New Indian Summer, Van Wyck Brooks
- The American Presidency, Harold L. Laski
- Mrs. Miniver, Jan Struther

You are not obliged, as a subscriber of the Club, to take the book-of-the-month its judges choose. Nor are you obliged to buy one book every month. You receive a carefully written report about the book-of-the-month chosen by our four judges, in advance of its publication. If it is a book you really want, you let it come to you. If not, you merely sign and mail a slip, saying, "Don't want it."

Scores of other careful recommendations are made to help you choose among all new books with discrimination. If you want to buy one of these, you merely ask for it.

In addition, there is a great money-saving. For every two book-of-the-month you buy you receive, free, one of our book-dividends.

Three Alumni Die in Armed Service

Hero Matthewson Cited

Sorrowfully but proudly Alma Mater removes from her file of active alumni the names of three of her young sons who have died in their nation’s armed service. Their names will be inscribed eternally on the pages where will be recorded those who died for love of liberty.

First to go was Douglas Van Buskirk, ’41, shot down over Germany exactly one month before Pearl Harbor. He was wearing the wings of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

On February 4, First Lieutenant Lee G. Crutchfield, Jr., ’32, former industrial secretary of the Richmond Community Fund, died of gunshot wounds at Fort Ord, Cal.

A month later came word that Ensign Charles N. Major, ’39, had been “killed in action in the performance of his duties in the service of his country.” There were no other details.

To this gold-starred list apparently will be added the name of Lieutenant Walter G. Winslow, ’36, who barring an almost miraculous escape, will be counted among those who perished in the sinking of the heavy cruiser Houston which was lost in the Battle of Java Sea.

“Life is not dull a minute,” he wrote his father in a letter postmarked January 1, “and, although there are times when one would rather be in a New York subway, I don’t believe that I would want to be any place but right here.

“My best advice to you people at home is to keep the planes coming, keep your pants on and don’t worry about me. I have work to do...

“Windy” Winslow’s work, Charlie Major’s work, Lee Crutchfield’s work, Doug Van Buskirk’s work will be finished by other sons of Richmond who already are writing a valiant chapter in the story of this great conflict. It will be done by men like Lieutenant Philip L. Matthewson, ’38, one of 70 American bomber pilots recently decorated for distinguished service in the Dutch East Indies.

First to sight a Japanese convoy and first to drop a bomb in a successful attack on the enemy, Lieutenant Matthewson was cited for his bravery in action. The award was given him “somewhere in Java” by Major-General Lewis H. Brereton, deputy commander of the Allied air forces and himself a bomber pilot, in the presence of Air Marshal Sir Francis Pierse, commander of the Allied Forces, and General Patrick J. Hurley, American minister to New Zealand.

Happiest of all those who learned of Lieutenant Matthewson’s exploit were his mother, Mrs. E. H. Matthewson, his wife, the former Marjorie Wood of Ohio, and his 9-months-old daughter.

Lieutenant Matthewson entered the service as a flying cadet at Randolph Field, Texas, after leaving the University of Richmond in 1936. He was commissioned in 1937 as a second lieutenant and the following year was promoted to first lieutenant.

Scores of other Spider fighters are enrolled in the Army, the Navy, and the Air Corps. Others, still in school, are awaiting their opportunity to take their places beside those already in the field. They intend to remember Van Buskirk, Crutchfield, Major, and Winslow.
AP’s McDaniels, ’27, Watches Singapore Fall

Slim, grave, prematurely-gray C. Yates McDaniels, Associated Press foreign correspondent, was sitting in a Singapore hotel room February 11, 1942, his hands wet with nervous perspiration and his typewriter dancing with the crash of bursting bombs.

He was the first American correspondent to arrive in Singapore, and now he was the only one left to witness the heroic last-ditch stand of Singapore’s outmanned defenders. He had bid farewell to departing reporters the day before.

For days, McDaniels had reported the steady advance of the enemy to the very outskirts of Singapore itself. He had seen smoke billow up from burning oil tanks, rubber plants, pineapple canneries and factories, fired to prevent the Japanese from seizing them.

From the hotel room, McDaniels watched waves of Japanese planes pour a murderous fire from the sky on the defenders— with their only challenge from ground guns and two obsolete biplanes with a speed of about 100 miles an hour.

"It makes me rather ashamed of myself," McDaniels wrote, "sitting here with my heart beating faster than their old motors when I think what chance those lads have of getting back in their antiquated machines. If ever brave men earned undying glory, those RAF pilots have on this tragic morning."

To friends of McDaniels, it seemed typical he should pause for reflection in the midst of this holocaust.

"We always agreed," one said, "that Mac was the sort of guy who could sit in a building during an earthquake and write a story."

Perhaps, McDaniels got some of his outward calm from the Chinese children with whom he played as a child in Soochow, China, where his parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Charles G. McDaniels of Blackstone, Va., operated a Baptist mission until the recent Japanese occupation.

Like most missionaries’ sons, Mac was sent to the United States for his college education. He obtained a bachelor’s degree at the University of Richmond. A classmate described him as “one of those versatile geniuses who never lets his studies interfere with his education.” [Ed: In addition to his sheepskin, McDaniels won an O.D.K. key, a track letter, honors in dramatics and forensics.]

Learning the rudiments of newspaper work on the Sarasota (Fla.) Morning Herald and the Durham (N.C.) Herald, McDaniels returned to China in 1929 to work for Shanghai papers. He joined The AP in 1935.

Japanese bombers seemed to follow McDaniels wherever he traveled in China—or else he anticipated their moves.

At the outbreak of the Chinese-Japanese conflict, he was in Tientsin when the bombers came. He rode a Chinese ambulance to Nanking for a rendezvous with the bombers. He watched them drop death on Canton and Hankow.

Usually, his wife—the former Miss Natalie Eills of Boston and Los Angeles—stayed with him as much as possible. During Singapore’s desperate stand, she was in Java.

The bombers followed him to Singapore. Once, as he was writing his story, he ducked behind a wall which screened the blast of bombs falling just outside the hotel.

Finally he tapped out the last paragraph:

“1 am leaving now in a car which I swear I will put into forward gear and head straight into the Strait of Malacca. I left one car for the Japanese in Nanking in 1937, but never again. Don’t expect to hear from me for many days. . . .”

But, the next day, McDaniels filed still another story of the Battle of Singapore—and added:

“Lying offshore, we were bombed incessantly until sundown yesterday and throughout today. We were dive-bombed half a dozen times, but we still are afloat and may get away tonight.”

That was his final message from the Singapore area.

Editor’s note: From Singapore to the Dutch East Indies and from the Dutch East Indies to Australia, Yates McDaniels, beat his grudging retreat, still sending out graphic accounts of the struggle in the South Pacific. Now, as chief of bureau at Melbourne, McDaniels directs the activities of the Associated Press in all of Australia.

Printed below is his “Goodbye to Singapore” story of February 11 which the Montgomery Alabama Journal hailed as the “best first-person, eye-witness story we ever read.” It was termed by the Newport News Daily Press “one of the great stories of all time,” and was similarly saluted by American newspapers from coast to coast.

By C. YATES M’DANIEL
Associated Press Foreign Staff Writer

SINGAPORE, Feb. 11—(10:30 A.M.)—(11:30 P.M., Eastern war time, Tuesday).—The sky over Singapore is black with the smoke of a dozen huge fires this morning as I write my last message from this once beautiful, prosperous and peaceful city.

The roar and crash of cannonade and bursting bombs which are shaking my typewriter and my hands, which are wet with nervous perspiration, tell me without need of an official communiqué that the war which started nine weeks ago, 400 miles away, is in the outskirts of this shaken bastion of empire today.

I am sure there is a bright tropical sun shining somewhere overhead, but in my many-windowed room it is too dark to work without electric lights.

Over the low rise where the battle is raging I can see relay after

Buy a Bond: Give a Bond

By OVERTON DENNIS, '10
President, Alumni Council

Every American worthy of the name has but one thought today. WIN THE WAR.

All our efforts, all our thoughts must be toward that objective.
Scores of alumni wear the uniforms of the Army, the Navy, the Marines. Some have died for our just cause. Other alumni are fighting on the home front, speeding the wheels of industry, producing the implements of war, manufacturing supplies for our all-out effort against the Axis.
War is costly. Fortunately we, the wealthiest nation on earth, have the money. And we're spending it—for freedom. Every defense bond, every defense stamp patriotically purchased helps win the war.
We will win the war. And win, too, the peace which will follow.
In that peace will flourish the liberties our fathers won for us with their blood. That peace will safeguard our democratic institutions, our cherished freedoms of worship, of assembly, of speech. Our educational institutions. Our own University.
These are dark days for privately-endowed institutions of higher learning which, without the benefit of Federal and State subsidy, are finding it increasingly difficult to survive the loss in operating revenue resulting from decreased enrollments and the loss in revenue from endowment due to the shrinking interest rate. The University of Richmond, debt-free and wedded to the pay-as-you-go policy, is devoting every energy to the increasingly difficult problem of making ends meet.
At best, available funds can do no more than meet operating expenses. Any improvement to facilities, to physical properties, must come from gifts made by alumni and other friends of the University.
But, you may say, every free dollar I have is earmarked for free-dom, for defense bonds and stamps. Fine! Buy all the bonds, all the stamps, you can afford. Then buy some more bonds and stamps. There is no better investment. You help yourself when you help Uncle Sam.
Consider, however, that the same bond which helps Uncle Sam can help the University of Richmond. Just transfer that bond to the treasury of the University and you'll find it can do duty for you on two fronts. The same is true, of course, of defense stamps.
Buy a bond today and give it to the University of Richmond. Mark it, if you choose, for the Student Activities Building, perhaps the most urgently needed of the several buildings on the University's 'must' list.
Of the $100,000 sought for the construction of this building, $65,000 already has been given. Let's clean up the remaining $35,000 now!
Perhaps some of those 65,000 dollars are your dollars. Wrap them up in a defense bond! Some of those 65,000 dollars were put in the treasury by students who are now working for $214-a-month. They put on shows, they gave carnivals, some of them gave up their contingent fees because they recognized the urgent need for the Activities Building which would serve as headquarters for those extra-curricula activities so necessary to the full development of each student.
Perhaps from your own locality has gone some young alumna whose address is now "somewhere in the Pacific," or "somewhere in the Atlantic." Maybe you'd like to dedicate the bond to him, to purchase it for the University in his name.
In his name, or in yours, make your program a two-edged sword: "Buy a Bond; Give a Bond."

Joint Alumni-Alumnae Banquet
May 30th

Westhampton College women and Richmond College and Law School men will meet in a joint banquet which will feature Alumni-ae Day activities on May 30th.
It's Memorial Day and it should be a memorable day for the hundreds of 'ol' grads from both sides of the lake who will get their first opportunity in months or years, as the case may be, to swap stories of what has taken place since their undergraduate days.
There'll be only one speaker—to be announced at a later date—and most of the evening will be devoted to fun and frolic. So when you're asked to send in your reservation please do so immediately because there may be a shortage of space in the Westhampton gymnasium (that's where it's going to be held) and seats will be reserved on a first-come-first-served basis. If you want to play safe drop a dollar in the mail today, addressed to your alumnae or alumni office. You'll receive your ticket promptly.
The banquet will climax a day of separate activity by the alumni and alumnae groups. You'll be supplied later with details of the program which will, of course, include separate business meetings of both groups and other activities which will be conducted separately on the respective sides of the lake.
But when the sun goes down and the moon comes up . . .
Don't forget that joint banquet. It will be followed by a play, "Our Town," which will be presented in honor of alumnae and alumni by the University Players. There'll be no charge to 'ol' grads.
In fact, all events of the busy day will be free with the exception of the banquet which will be served for one dollar. Ring May 30th on your calendar and resolve now to come.

Our Service Men
The Alumni Office is attempting to compile a list of University of Richmond men who are in the armed service. Your cooperation in furnishing information about yourself and about other alumni who are in the Army, Navy or Marine Corps will be appreciated.
Every effort will be made to have the list as complete as possible. At the close of the war it will form a permanent record of the contribution made by University of Richmond men.

The Cover
In the Army, in the Navy, in the Marine Corps, University of Richmond alumni are fighting for the preservation of freedom in this land we love. Left to right are Lieutenant George Shackelford, '41, with the Marines at Quantico; Captain Earl Lutz, '14, a veteran of World War I who is back in uniform again at Fort Meade, Maryland, and Ensign Tivis Wicker, '41, who is a recruiting officer in Richmond.
With the eagerness with which children are accustomed to await circus day or their yearly visit to the fair, thousands of Virginia children—and grownups too—await the periodic visits of the "book-mobile." To many, particularly those in the mountain areas, these fascinating volumes from the circulating library are the only readily available books, other than textbooks, the family Bible, and an occasional yellowed catalogue.

It was Charles W. Dickinson, Jr., '05, State director of school libraries and textbooks, who in 1934 persuaded the Carroll County School Board to adopt a plan for the establishment of a county circulating public library. Figuratively, he brought Mahomet to the mountain. Even to the folks on the back ridges he brought new visions through the glory of the printed page.

Not for long was Carroll permitted to be the only pioneer. Appomattox, Dickenson, Fluvanna, Giles, Goochland, Lee, Louisa, Page, Powhatan, Smyth, and Washington Counties quickly fell into line.

It was only a beginning. The quietly persistent man whom the State Board of Education had been wise enough to place at the head of its department of school libraries and textbooks was determined that every school child and the parent of every school child should have access to good books. His efforts and the inspiration which others have derived from his efforts have led to two important legislative measures which have won for the Old Dominion nation-wide recognition. Already in a number of authoritative books the Virginia system is being referred to as a model to be copied by other states.

In 1935 the Virginia Library Association sponsored a bill authorizing the establishment of county and regional public libraries. The measure had been carefully drawn by the Association's legislative committee, headed by Mr. Dickinson, and it brought library facilities to 22 additional counties. Under agreements with school boards in 18 of these counties, the public schools will receive service from these libraries.

The second far reaching legislative enactment passed the Virginia General Assembly at the 1942 session which has just recently ad-journed. It empowers school boards of counties not served by county or regional free library systems to make available public school library books to all residents of these counties. A master stroke for adult education, it is also a link which will bind the schools more closely to the people they serve.

From the outset, Mr. Dickinson worked in the belief that the need for good public school library service exists and that the quickest and most certain way to obtain such county-wide library service is through joint action of State and county boards of education. Each, he believed, should help defray the cost.

The entering wedge was driven in Carroll County, in the mountainous southwest. It should not have succeeded but for the effort of the teachers in the county system, each of whom raised five dollars toward a private fund of $1,000. The county school board appropriated $500 from its school funds and the State Board of Education put up $500 from the State Public School Library Fund.

Books were purchased with the $2,000 thus available and on January 1, 1935 a graduate librarian assumed her duties. She was licensed as a teacher by the State Board of Education, employed as a teacher under a state teacher's contract, and therefore, her salary was paid from the State public school fund apportioned to the county for payment of teachers' salaries.

Circulation of library books to the elementary schools began a month later. The librarian permitted each lot of books to remain in a school one month, and then they were taken to another school. This rotating system allowed each school to get new books monthly—books which were read avidly not only by the children but by their mothers and fathers. So great was their interest that it was found necessary to establish loan stations—some 50 of them—to make the books available during the summer vacation period.

Of course, the chief obstacle to overcome in developing public school library service has been the lack of funds. The State, wisely recognizing this fact, has appropriated $571,150 in the last 33 years.

Pitt, Athletic Director; Fenlon, New Grid Coach

University of Richmond athletics will start the new fiscal year with a new athletic director, Malcolm U. Pitt, '18, and a new coach of football, Johnny Fenlon, who is being moved up to the head job after three years as freshman coach.

Coincident with their elevation Coach Glenn F. Thistlethwaite, athletic director since 1934, will leave the University. He carries with him the commendation of the University's administration and the esteem of players and student body.

His duties as athletic director will place new responsibilities on the shoulders of capable Mac Pitt who will be called upon to direct athletic policy in addition to coaching baseball and basketball, and working in an as yet unannounced capacity in football. Mr. Thistlethwaite's successor as track coach has not yet been designated.

The new athletic setup will also give added responsibilities to W. Fred Caylor, who will serve as business manager and work in close cooperation with Atlantic Director Pitt.

Mr. Fenlon will be aided by Ed Merrick, the Spider's former all-Southern Conference center, who will serve as line coach—until Uncle Sam puts a uniform on him.

Four spirited weeks of spring practice have just been completed with players and coaches enthusiastic over the "T" formation from which Spider plays will be run next fall. Richmond becomes the first school in the Southern Conference to turn to the "T."

Baseball

With only three letter men returning, Coach Malcolm Pitt is counting on candidates from last year's outstanding freshman team to fill the empty slots in the 1942 baseball line-up.

Veteran hurler Al Wheeler of Fredericksburg and sophomore Chester Bourne of near-by Quantico are being counted on to carry the pitching burden for the coming season. Wheeler posted a fine record of five victories against two losses last season, while Bourne won eight straight for the freshmen without dropping a contest.

Both are left-handers.

Outstanding prospects from last year's yearling team include Courtenay Lawler of Clifton Forge, Va.; Pat Fenlon of Washington, D. C.; and two Richmonders, Louis "Weenie" Miller and George Gasser. Lawler seems firmly entrenched in the catcher's position, Miller is a sure starter at first, Fenlon seems to fit into the short stop slot, and Gasser probably will be stationed in centerfield.

Captain Walter "Sonny" Wholey of Fredericksburg, one of the greatest second basemen in college history, will play his final season with the Spiders before enlisting with Uncle Sam.

Wholey, Wheeler, and Mac Pitt, Jr., who is moving into the outfield after two seasons at first base, are the only available lettermen.

Track

Track Coach Glenn F. Thistlethwaite will show three outstanding performers this spring who may break University records in the shot, discus, high jump, and two miles.

John Griffin, the Poquoson, Va., giant and strong man of the squad, may go undefeated in the shot and discus events in dual competition. While placing second in the Southern Conference Indoor Meet last winter, he broke his own 45 foot 11 ½ inch record set last year with a heave of 46 feet, 5 ½ inches. He came within two inches of Bill Morrison's record of 140 feet in the discus last year with a heave of 46 feet, 5 ½ inches. He came within two inches of Bill Morrison's record of 140 feet, 5 inches in the discus last year with a heave of 46 feet, 5 ½ inches. He came within two inches of Bill Morrison's record of 140 feet, 5 inches in the discus last year. He is looking forward to an undefeated season in his specialty, and may break Bill Lumpkin's outdoor two mile record of 9 minutes, 56.4 seconds set in 1935.

Houston Sizer a sophomore from Roanoke, is slated to break the high jump record set by H. V. (Sonny) Joyce in 1935 with a leap of 5 feet, 11 ½ inches. Sizer won a first in the Catholic University indoor meet with a five foot, 10 ¾ inch jump.

Coach Thistlethwaite is looking for some sprint men and some good "second placers" to bolster team scoring.

Basketball

Coach Mac Pitt's varsity court team came through with nine wins and ten losses, but played some good basketball and seasoned some green material for use next winter.

The outstanding performers were Captain Mac Pitt, Jr., who was named to a guard position on the All State team, and Robert "Swede" Erickson, who was elected to captain the 1942-43 quintet.

AP's McDaniel, '27, Watches Singapore Fall

...ing faster than their old motors, when I think what chances those lads have of getting back in their antiquated machines.

It makes me ashamed of myself, sitting here with my heart beating faster than their old motors, when I think what chances those lads have of getting back in their antiquated machines.

If ever brave men earned undying glory, those R. A. F. pilots have this tragic morning.

There are many other brave men in Singapore today. Not far away are anti-aircraft batteries in open spaces—they must be to have a clear field of fire.

Please overlook the break in continuity, but a packet of bombs just landed so close I had to duck behind a wall which I hoped would—and did—screen the blast.

But those gun crews keep on fighting, their guns peering smoke into the limited ceiling every time Japanese planes come near—that, almost constantly.

The all-clear has just sounded—what a joke!

From the window I can see three Japanese planes flying low not a mile away.

A few minutes ago I heard a tragic two-way telephone conversation.

Eric Davis, director of the Malayan Broadcasting Corporation, urged Gov. Sir Shenton Thomas for permission to destroy the outlying broadcasting station. The governor demurred, saying the situation was not too bad, and refused to issue a direct order.

Davis telephoned the station in question, instructing the staff to keep on the air, but to stand by for urgent orders.

We tuned in on its wavelength. In the middle of a broadcast, in Malayan, urging the people of Singapore to stand firm, the station went dead.

I am leaving now in a car which I swear I will put into forward gear and head straight into the Straits of Malacca.

I left one car for the Japanese in Nanking in 1937, but never again.

Don't expect to hear from me for many days, but please inform Mrs. McDaniel, Hotel Preanger, Bandoeang, Java, that I have left this land of the living and the dying.

At my elbow while I write this last is Capt. O. K. Keenan, the minister of information adviser on censorship, who is breakfasting on biscuits and brandy.

Henry Steele, army public relations officer, who has seen us through a bad situation from the Thailand border to Singapore, has just told me I have ten minutes to pack up and leave.

When Henry says "Go," I go. So good-bye to Singapore.

F. Y. Tong, of Canton, who has been the landlord for the British ministry of information and the Malayan subsidiary of the BBC, just showed me three famous Chinese paintings he is carrying with him to the vessel on which the ministry of information, the Malayan broadcasting subsidiary and I—first to arrive and last to leave of the foreign correspondents—are taking our chances of getting clear of this close-beleaguered fortress.

Alumni Ballot

Ballots have been mailed for the annual election of officers for the General Society of Alumni. The nominating committee has endeavored to pick good men for all positions, men of ability and proven loyalty to the University of Richmond.

Your ballot will list only the names in alphabetical order. For the benefit of alumni who may not be familiar with all of the candidates, the nominees are listed here with their class, address, and business or profession.

As you please but please vote. The larger the vote the greater the mandate for service on the part of those who are chosen to represent you.

It has been objected that a change in name would entail a change in songs and yells and a change in the name of the year book. With the exception of our Swing Song and "Fight for Old Red and Blue," neither of which would have to be changed, does anyone think that we have any songs that are outstanding? There are those who say, "I'm a Spider born, I'm a Spider bred," and resent a change that would deny them the privilege of making that claim. Do they not know that that song was borrowed from North Carolina? Do they not realize that when Carolina sings "I'm a Tarheel born," it represents something original, but when we sing "I'm a Spider born" it is our admission that we are either too lazy, or haven't the ability, to be original? However, those who are wedded to the Carolina song could easily substitute Rebel for Spider. The same substitution could be made in the yells we now have. Our institution has been in existence since 1832. Our students and alumni run into the thousands. Isn't there some one in all that number who has the ability and enough interest to write some original songs and yells so we won't have to be copy-cats? Let's be original and so good that others will copy us, rather than we copy them.

In regard to the annual, it could be called the Rebel, the Confederate or the Stars and Bars. It wouldn't require too much effort or originality to change over to the proposed new set-up.

It is a well known fact that "Dixie" does something to the emotions of every Southerner and of many Northerners as well. Our hand could match on the field playing "Dixie" with the Confederate flag in the cheer section on a system of cards and with the students giving the Confederate yell. The band could strike up Dixie after we have scored and every one at the game, who wasn't strictly partisan to the opposition, would be with us. It is a perfect set-up, and we will be short sighted if we fail to cash in on it.

Compare the value of this with the fact that "Spider" means nothing to the general public except what we have made ourselves ridiculous in adopting and retaining the name. If there is doubt in one's mind as to the truth of this, let him make inquiry of outsiders, as the writer has done. All persons interviewed said a Spider is a loathsome thing and that one's immediate impulse on seeing it is to crush it. All said they wondered how we got the name and why we ever kept it. All Northern college men interviewed said the adoption of "Rebels" would not keep Northern boys from entering Richmond and would not stir up sectional animosity. Proof of this is found in the name of the New York team in the American League, the Yankees. Southerners don't resent that. Let's give the North credit for being as broad minded.

Some seem to think that any change is a mistake and that we haven't broken any traditions in the past. Let them consider the following: Our institution has had three different names. It has occupied three different locations. Our colors were changed in the nineties. Our annual has had two different names. Finally, we have been a member of four different athletic associations or conferences. Who will say that these changes were mistakes? Yet each dealt a death blow to tradition. It seems that breaking traditions is traditional with us, which is to be expected since we are a growing institution.

Some say we played as Spiders, don't change the name. May we remind them again that many alumni have annuals called "The Spider" instead of "The Web" and that many have diplomas from Richmond College rather than from the University of Richmond? Did they object when the name of the school was changed? In both cases they were left out of the picture.

No one holds more strongly to tradition than the writer, provided it is a worthy tradition. However, the fact that a man's ancestors were horse thieves is no reason or excuse for his keeping up the family tradition. Similarly, the fact that we adopted and retained the name Spiders to the exclusion and neglect of a much more ancient and more honorable tradition is no reason or excuse why we should continue in this way. As already pointed out, Spiders means nothing to the outside world, and identifies us with nothing, while Rebels would identify us with the noblest tradition of the entire South and of the city which we represent and of which we are a part.

Let us, therefore, forget that in the gay nineties a reporter derisively named one of our teams Spiders because the boys were tall and slender. Let's forget that we ever played under that name. And let us remember that in 1861 the students of our institution enlisted in the Confederate army, that our buildings were used as a Confederate hospital for the duration of the war, that our endowment funds were invested in Confederate Bonds and that the city which we represent and of which we are a part was the Capitol of the Confederacy. Let us remember that our southern heroes are becoming national heroes and that the principles and ideals of the Confederacy are being recognized and respected the country over. Any boy, Northern or Southern, could well emulate the character and example of Lee. Could we wish for more than that our entire student body should adopt him as their ideal and that our teams should be Rebels in both name and fighting spirit? The name and the ideals are rightly ours. Let's adopt them and try to inspire future generations to live up to them. Could we do a finer thing for the institution we love? Could we make a more noble contribution to humanity?
Around the Campus at Westhampton

Elections were completed recently, a sure sign that Commencement is not far away. Barbara Lewis of Norfolk, formerly of Richmond, was elected president of College Government and Anne Lilly of Ghent, West Virginia, was named Chairman of the Honor Council. Rosalie Oakes ('39), sister, Ann, is following in her sister's footsteps and will head the Y.W.C.A. next year. Reba Booker of Naruna will be president of the Athletic Association. Other officers follow:

The Athletic Association is sponsoring a hiking group in keeping with an increased emphasis on physical education for national defense. Each Sunday a group of hikers follows a prescribed route which ends up at the home of an alumna for refreshment. Peggy Lockwood Nolting, '38, and Mary Ryland Babcock, '32, have been hostesses to the group. Bicycle enthusiasts are also forming a club.

Mortar Board tapping was held on March 9th. Ann Oakes of Winchester, Louise Wiley of Richmond, daughter of Elizabeth Ellyson Wiley, '18, Louise Cordoza, Richmond, Barbara Lewis of Norfolk, and Shirley Huxter of Richmond were tapped.

Westhampton is knitting, saving stamps and paper, buying defense stamps and bonds, hiking and square dancing for national defense. There are also several First Aid classes including one for the faculty taught by Martha Elliott, '39.

Westhampton is knitting, saving stamps and paper, buying defense stamps and bonds, hiking and square dancing for national defense. There are also several First Aid classes including one for the faculty taught by Martha Elliott, '39.

Basketball has had a successful season with the team winning seven games out of ten.

Betty Ann Petzinger of Portsmouth will reign as May Queen at the college's annual May Day festivities on May 2nd. May Thayer of Richmond will serve as her Maid of Honor, and Sara Goode, Allene Jones, Jean Grant, Evelyn McAuley, Lucy McDonough and Betty Sessler, all of Richmond, form the May Court.

Phi Beta Kappa elections were announced after the end of examinations. Betty Ann Petzinger of Portsmouth, Rosalie Clary, Evelyn Cosby, Sara Goode, Mary Grace Scherer, Ethel Flanagan, and Ninita Gonzalez, all of Richmond, were elected. They were initiated on March 19th when Dr. John Nason, president of Swarthmore College, will speak.

The second student pilgrimage sponsored by the alumnae will be held on April 22nd when a group of students will spend the day sightseeing in colonial Williamsburg.

Senior music recitals are being held for the second year. Dagmar Jacobsen of Brown's Store, gave a recital in voice on March 6th and Ann Gwaltney of Richmond, will give her voice recital in April.

Elizabeth Tompkins Elected to University Board

Elizabeth N. Tompkins of the class of '17, was recently appointed a member of the University Board of Trustees, making Westhampton's third member of the Board and the fifth woman to become a trustee.

"Tommy," as she is affectionately known to alumnae, has worked for Westhampton and the Alumnae Association since her graduation in 1919. She served as president of the Association from 1923-27. In the alumnae directory published in 1928-29 when the chapel was in process of construction, the gratitude of the Association is recorded in a tribute to Elizabeth Tompkins. There was a strong feeling on the part of the alumnae that the desirable and fitting location of the chapel was on the spot where it now stands and Elizabeth Tompkins made the effort which secured its location there.

In both the general campaigns conducted by the University of Richmond, that of 1926 and 1936, Elizabeth Tompkins bore a major part of the effort and served as General Chairman of the Women's Division in 1936.

After receiving her B.A. degree from the University of Richmond, Miss Tompkins attended Columbia University where she was awarded her M.A. degree. She received her law degree from the University of Virginia where she was the first woman graduate in law and where she was elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

She has been a practicing attorney in Richmond since 1925. She holds membership in the Virginia State Bar Association, the Richmond Bar Association, and the American Association of University Women, and is a member of the Alumnae Governing Board.

The history of Westhampton alumnae membership on the Board is twelve years old. In 1930 an invitation was extended to the Westhampton College Alumnae Association from the Board of Missions and Education of the Virginia Baptist General Assembly to have representation on the Board of Trustees. This was in accord with the policy to have alumnae representatives of Richmond College, the T.C. Williams School of Law and Westhampton College. Florence Boston Decker was elected in 1933 by the alumnae as their first representative on the Board.

Emily Gardner, '18, was chosen as the second alumnae representative in 1936.

Miss Tompkins is the fifth woman member of the Board. Mrs. Charles B. Keezee of Martinsville, Mrs. George W. McDaniel, Florence Boston Decker, '17, and Dr. Emily Gardner, '18, make up the other four.

The class of '17, with 38.4% of their membership contributing to the Alumnae Fund, would win the silver cup going to the class with the highest percentage contributing to the Fund, if it were awarded. The class of '18 ranks second with 15.3% and the class of '41 comes in a close third with 14.2% sending in their voluntary gifts to the Alumnae Office.

The youngest alumnae, graduating last June, deserve special congratulations for ranking third since theirs is the largest class to graduate from Westhampton and to rank third they must have the largest number of contributors.

The cup, which was given by Elizabeth Hoover, '21, will be awarded at Commencement when final percentages will be worked out. Last year it went to the class of '21 which had 59% of their members giving to the Fund. Second place went to the class of '15 and '39 ranked third.

About two months are left in which to send in your contribution. What have you done to raise your class rank? The percentages, as of March, 1942, follow:

'15, 9.9%; '16, 10%; '17, 38.4%; '18, 15.3%; '19, 13.3%; '20, 12.5%; '21, 11.1%; '22, 10.3%; '23, 7%; '24, 5.5%; '25, 15%; '26, 11.4%; '27, 7.5%; '28, 1.8%; '29, 7.4%; '30, 13.5%; '31, 12%; '32, 3.3%; '33, 6%; '34, 13.1%; '35, 2.1%; '36, 10%; '37, 6.9%; '38, 13.7%; '39, 10.9%; '40, 8.3%; '41, 14.2%.
Westhampton Class Notes

Class of '17
Dear Class of '17:
Can it be possible that we have been out of college for twenty-five years? I hope that of us can return to Westhampton at Commencement time to celebrate our twenty-fifth anniversary.
Don't forget to send your Alumnae Fund contributions to the Alumnae Office.
Sincerely,
Anne-Ruth Harris,
Class Secretary.

Class of '21
Your secretary has received two long, interesting letters in response to her New Year's letter. Answers came from Cammie Robinson Hess and Ruth Hoover Lide. Both expressed enthusiastic interest in hearing from the rest of you. As soon as I receive as many as five such letters, I shall start them as a "round robin" to you. Cammie's new address is 8 Blue Rock Road, Edgewood Hills, Wilmington, Delaware. Ruth is now principal of the grade school in her community. Her son is 13 years old and is a head taller than herself.
May Thompson Evans has moved into a brand new house at 4651 Kenmore Drive, N.W., Washington, D.C.
Marion Stoneham Oliver is living in the Parkview Apartments, B71, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. Her husband is stationed at the Middletown Air Depot near there.
There's a lot more news but space here is limited so write your letter and you'll get the news in the "round robin."

Class of '22
Dear members of '22:
1922 to 1942—twenty years! Does it seem possible that it is almost time for our twentieth reunion? "Tempus fugit." N'est-ce pas?
Some of us who are in Richmond met at Miss Lough's before Christmas and talked over some plans (after we had enjoyed tea made as only Miss Lough can make it). Really, we are making plans, and we hope all of you will be able to help us carry them out.
Be sure to save the week-end of May 30th for this great occasion. Mark those dates on your social calendar now. Then begin to collect all of the pictures, curios, etc., which will show what you have been doing since last we met. Don't forget we want to see that lucky fellow and those good looking children, and we want you to tell us all about your experiences. If you have any suggestions concerning what to do or how to do it, be sure to let us hear from you. (We'd be delighted to hear from you, even if you don't have any suggestions!)
Let's begin now to reunite our thoughts and to make plans to reunite ourselves in May on the campus of "Alma Mater Sunset Crowned."
Till then we say,
"Adiós señoras and señoritas."
Jeanette Henn.

Class of '23
Dear class of '23:
I have been listening in on news everywhere, and this is what I have heard.
During this session of the Legislature we see again in Richmond, Maxine Grave Spiers with her husband, John B. Spiers, Representative from Montgomery County. "Maxie" has been partying here and there, but she can be found quite often listening in at the Legislature. Her home is in Radford. Her three children, now of high school age, recently spent a glorious week-end here with their parents.
Agnes Taylor Gray is also attached to our legislative body. Her husband, Garland Gray, is the newly-elected Senator from his district. "Aggie" commutes from Waverly. It is fun to chat with her in the stores where she may be found from time to time on shopping tours with her three daughters.
Dora Ransome Hartz also drives up just any time from Waverly—or used to—and we have nice little talks with her.
Virginia Epes Feild has moved to Alexandria, Virginia, and is just settled in her new home at 3514 Alabama Avenue. Her husband, James W. Feild, has a government position in Washington.
It was interesting to see Mildred Campbell Broome again. She is teaching at St. Catherine's School and has her two daughters with her. Her young son is with her family. Mildred has had rather recent, but somewhat indefinite, news from her husband, Cyril Broome. His base is somewhere in India. He had looked forward to a nice, long furlough with his family this year, but war conditions cancelled his leave of absence.
Leila Doan, who is teaching in Petersburg, has been attending the Celebrity Concerts here this winter.
Send me items of news about members in our class. I would love to hear from you sometime.
Etienne Selden Headlee,
Secretary.

Class of '26
Ellen Actee Radley (Mrs. H. M.) has a new son born in February.

Class of '27
Dear members of '27:
No doubt each of you is very busy with Red Cross sewing, defense classes and the like, not to mention the rearing and training of young America. I wish it might be possible for us to get together over the tea cups and have a friendly session to discover what has been happening among us during the fifteen years just past. Too many miles and responsibilities separate us, but let us not forget each other for all that. This column is a good way to learn news. What do you have to contribute?

From Dorothy Ryce Gunn (Mrs. L. B.) I learned that Audrey Massey Peay's (Mrs. J. H. B.) husband is now a captain. I have a bit of news about myself. A prospective candidate for Westhampton's class of '63, Miss Emily Caroline Hackendorf, was born on February 11, 1942.

How about your contribution to the Alumnae Fund? Make your check payable to the Westhampton College Alumnae Association. Let's get into the race for the silver cup presented to the class having the largest percentage of contributors.
Yours truly,
Cecyle Loving Hackendorf.

Mrs. Arthur C. Hackendorf
4812 Riverside Drive
Richmond, Virginia.

Class of '31
Louise Schmidt and I had a visit to the campus today and Westhampton looked lovely and full of signs of spring. Had a grand lunch in the tearoom and then saw Miss Keller and Miss Harris. We caught up on our gossip and I heard quite a lot of interesting things. Virginia Peers was married in August. Selma Rothschild became the bride of Bert Mann around Christmas time. Dot Anderson is Mrs. James W. Carruth, lives in Atlanta, Georgia, and has a daughter, Betsy, and a son, Jimmy, Jr.
All of you must be confining your activities to defense work because I have received absolutely no news. Don't fail to let me know about all the exciting events and any changes of address. I love to hear about all of those things and I'm a great one for passing them on. Greetings to you all.
Margaret Leake.

Class of '32
Dear Classmates:
I know what you are thinking: The tire situation is going to be pretty tough on our reunion. Are we going to try to go ahead and have it anyway? Well, I can tell you this much—we here in Richmond are planning for it and with real enthusiasm. Maybe I'm optimistic, but if I know anything about the class of '32, those girls are going to be here if they have to hop a freight train.

My particular job is to assemble a class scrapbook that will be a brief résumé of each girl's activities during the past ten years. It's a lot of fun, and naturally we want it to be a wow. There must not be a blank by a single name in the book, and that's where YOU come in. If you haven't already done so, will you send me an account of yourself up to date and pep it up with a few well chosen photographs—of you, your husband, children, dogs, house, you on a trip, etc.

Now, even if you haven't done anything remarkable (few of us have), even if you've stayed home and kept the same job for ten years, don't feel that you have nothing to report. It's still news to all of your classmates whatever you've done, and you can still send a picture of yourself. (Forgive me if I seem to harp on pictures, but, after all, aren’t they the spice of any book?)

I'm not going to tell you about the interesting plans being made for the reunion as you'll hear more about them later. Let's look forward to a grand get-together in May, when for a brief moment we'll forget what's going on in the world and reminisce about the time when life held no worse calamity than a math quiz the next day.

I'll be going to the mail box with high hopes from now on. Don't let me down!

Sincerely,

MARY RYLAND BABCOCK.

Mrs. Alvin J. Babcock
106 North Westham Parkway
Route 13
Richmond, Virginia.

P.S.: Did you know that Mary Hodnett Matthews had a son, Emmett C., Jr. and that Mary Ann Hall Anderson had a new daughter?

Class of ’33
Martha Frances Rawlings is now Mrs. Howard T. Ware.

Class of ’34
Dear ’34:

Can you drop your knitting (not your stitches, please) and chat for awhile? I won’t keep you long for I know the government is always saying, “Remember, purl harder” and I do want you to do your bit. Everybody is doing this knitting now. I have got my boys at school making an afghan. I can’t think of a good yarn to tell unless I unravel one of those Dr. Bailey or Astro or Loving used on us, but we really don’t care about going back to Mississippi or Surry or Fluvanna today. However, I may have a wee line of news that may not have come your way. The most important is Puffy’s (Edith McDaniel) marriage. She married Clarence Daniel Shelburne on December 27th. The town gossip is that the wedding and the bride were beautiful. I haven’t seen the lucky groom but Puffy says he’s awfully cute. He’d better be a honey because he found one swell girl for a bride.

I received a letter from little Helen Cunningham the other day. Her address is 204 West North Street, Albemarle, North Carolina. The big news with her is that she is going to join the married ranks this spring. His name is Roy and he is from Monroe. Do you know that only leaves ten of us on the string of the untied? But we haven’t given up hope on that marriage knot.

Virginia Ferguson was in town for lunch and a show last week. I certainly did enjoy seeing her. She is doing big things for Tapeahannock.

Have you overlooked the Alumnae Fund?

Please don’t keep the wool pulled over my eyes any longer. Do write me some news. I really do not like to make this a monologue. Now you can go back to the knitting.

Love,

ANN WOOD,
Secretary.

Class of ’35
Congratulations go to Rhea Talley who was recently made woman’s editor of the “Richmond Times-Dipatch.”

Otelia Francis Bodenstein is working in Richmond while her husband is serving in the army.

Class of ’36
Esther Walsh’s engagement to Duncan Dalton was announced recently. The wedding will take place in the spring.

Class of ’38
Conway Moncure is now Mrs. Emory S. Collins and lives at 709 McCabe Avenue, Baltimore, Maryland.

Louise Thompson Chewing (Mrs. C. C., Jr.) has a son, Clarence Conway, III, born in December.

Margaret Mitchell Meador has a second daughter, born in January.

Helen Ellett is working as a computer at Langley Field.

Wedding bells! On Christmas Eve for Mildred Gafford when she became Mrs. Ralph E. Davis. They toured the Valley of Virginia on their honeymoon. Lieutenant Davis is now located at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. Mildred is still working at the Richmond Social Service Bureau.

Wedding bells on Christmas Day for Florence Fowlkes when she and Chester Garrett of Danville, were married. They are making their home in Danville.

Edna Loving became the bride of Dr. Baskerville Young on January 15th. They left immediately for Rockford, Illinois (1018 North Church Street) where Dr. Young who is a lieutenant in the army, is instructors in the officers’ training school. Dr. Young recently received his degree in dentistry from the Medical College of Virginia. Edna writes that she is enjoying army life but hopes we’ll keep her informed on Westhampton news.

Jo Ann Kent has been Mrs. Roland Bouchard since last June.

Our own Jane Meade was represented in the Exhibition of Prints by Contemporary Virginia Artists in the fall with “Tropical Phantocy,” a linoleum block. Jane has studied art in the Richmond Professional Institute, the New York School of Ceramics, and at Ohio State University. She is now living at 816 Park Avenue, Apartment 5. She plans to complete her work at Ohio State this summer.

Martha Ware has been living in Richmond this year and is working for the C. & O. in the auditing department.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Lewis (Olive Messer) have been living in the Richmond Hotel while Mr. Lewis attends the daily sessions of the General Assembly. He is a member of the House of Delegates from King and Queen, Essex and Middlesex Counties.

Emily Parker Kendig (Mrs. E. Lawrence, Jr.) has a small daughter, Anne Randolph (“Randy”), born on January 1st. The class wishes to extend its sympathy to Emily in the recent death of her father.

Carolyn Smith Ward (Mrs. William) has a son, Rockwell Porter, born on February 10th.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Downing Smith (Henrietta Harrell) have been receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter, Ann Downing, born on March 6th.

Class of ’39
Dear ’39ers:

June really isn’t far off now, is it? And that’s when we decided last year that we would meet during graduation week for lunch and a good old-fashioned get-together—a grand chance to catch up on the past year’s happenings. We’ll have a lot to talk about, too. Did you know that several girls in the class are wearing diamonds on that suspicious looking finger, but they haven’t officially announced it so I’m not mentioning any names.

But we do know that Mae Chalkley is to be married to Ensign Pendleton Shiflett, Jr. in the spring. And in June, the month of brides, Marian Wiley and Julian Ellett will be married. Congratulations, Julian!

Lucille Horne, who as you remember, was in our freshman class, is now teaching at Blackstone College. Our sophomore year... brought a transfer student to join us, Mary Lee Gill, who recently married Dr. Gibbons Wall.

To Mr. and Mrs. G. Albert Klaffky (Kate Peterson) congratulations. They have a son, Kenneth Richard, born on February 10th.

Elizabeth Mitchell is now secretary at Pan-American Business School, teaches there at night, and substitutes in the day.

Mr. and Mrs. James Easley Edmunds, III (Lavinia Winston) are making their home in Richmond.

Betty Conrey Van Buskirk is working as a secretary at New York University.

Martha Elliott, as "professor of First Aid," has turned the tables and is now teaching the Westhampton faculty. Tell us, Martha, do they ever cut classes, and has anyone received a "pink slip"?

We all hope daily to hear good news of the safety of Jessie McClroy Junkin who is with her husband in the Philippines.

You will hear more about the meeting in June and if you aren't there your ears will be burning.

Best wishes,

JUDY FLORANCE.

Class of '40

Dear Forties:

This alumnae news seems to be turning into a vital statistics column—marriages and so forth.

Anabel certainly beat me to the draw. I thought I was pulling a quickie in the last letter, and doggoned if she wasn't married before THE BULLETIN was printed. The lucky fellow is Lieutenant Edward "Red" Hessel of the United States Naval Air Corps—and so goes Anabel Lumpkin. Another wedding of about the same age is that of Bobby Winfrey and Edmund Cannon. They were married in December. Edmund is doing some kind of engineering at the Naval Base in Norfolk.

Speaking of weddings—Mildred Gustafson is wearing a beautiful sparkler on her third finger left hand. It’s Jimmy Donahue’s (who is serving in Uncle Sam’s united forces during 1941) fiancee. Lieutenant in the United States Naval Air Corps—and so goes Anabel Lumpkin. Another wedding of about the same age is that of Bobby Winfrey and Edmund Cannon. They were married in December. Edmund is doing some kind of engineering at the Naval Base in Norfolk.

I heard the story around that they’re going to push graduation up about a week, so that will push our reunion up a bit. But don’t forget, Forties, we reunite in June, and all of you plan to be here. We’ll have great times.

Dot Roberts really gets places. She’s working in Florida now for some hotel—and is having a scumptious time. Boy that’s the life—spending the summers up at White Sulphur Springs and her winters in Florida.

Frances Bailey has changed jobs. She is working for the State Board of Education, and has been there about a month or two.

You all are letting me down really, when I have to start using my own stuff for this letter. Usually I have so much news about the doings of the Class of Forty that I have to leave some of it out—but it’s a different story this time. Your humble correspondent (that’s what they say in the newspapers) has made a little change, too. I’m now working in the office of Philip-Morris.

Well, here’s to you until June—and I’ll be seeing you all then, when we have our first get-together.

Love,

Dell.

Class of ‘41

You all should have been at the tea given by the Richmond Club at which we shared honors with Miss Lucas, the new dean of students. It was fun to see some of you there and to find out all the "latest."

There are some more girls with rings. Ann Woodward has one from Bob Courtney. Betsy Woodson has one from Albert Weaver and Marion Rawls received hers from Ray Waymack and of course, there is Mary Owen and Kenneth Bass. If all you others need inspiration, there it is.

Margaret Forrer Wren has a job in New York with an insurance broker. Elizabeth ‘Its’ Holden is at Smithdeal-Massey learning to be a secretary. Frazier Drumwright is there, too.

Jeanette Evans is now in the Library at the Virginia State Highway Department.

Jeanne Huffman Waite has moved to Fredericksburg and is living in a new house.

Kira Nicholsky is going to Business School in New York.

Cecile Gaddis is teaching Spanish and journalism in the New Smyrna Beach High School, Florida, and says she goes to Miami every week-end. Any other jobs open down there, Cecile?

Kitty Spencer was married to A. L. Philpott in the summer.

That just about covers the news. If you hear of anything please let me know. With June coming there ought to be lots of news. Keep me posted and I’ll do the same for you.

So long now—

HELEN MARTIN.

Dr. Charles H. Wheeler, III, for fourteen years a member of the mathematics faculty and head of the department since the retirement last year of Dr. R. E. Gaines, has taken over his new duties as treasurer of the University of Richmond.

His selection by the board of trustees to the post formerly held by the late B. West Tabb was enthusiastically hailed by his colleagues on the faculty and the student body.

Dr. Wheeler holds a bachelor's degree from Washington and Jefferson College and a Ph.D. from Johns Hopkins. His appointment was cordially praised by President Boatwright who said the "only objection I have heard to his election has been that it was a pity to deprive the mathematics department of such an excellent teacher and administrator."

He Sings, Too

Most alumni know Dr. Douglas S. Freeman as editor of the Richmond News Leader and Pulitzer Prize biographer of Robert E. Lee but it remained for freshman Jesse Tucker to come forward with the amusing assertion that the distinguished head of the board of trustees was once suspended—briefly—for serenading the dean.

Freshman Tucker indulged in this mild bit of debunking in reading a term paper before one of Dr. S. C. Mitchell's history classes. Destined perhaps to take a place in University tradition similar to that of Washington and the cherry tree in the nation's, the legend goes that young Freeman, egged on by his fellows one night, treated the slumbering dean of Richmond College to a loud serenade. He was recognized by the dean, asserts Historian Tucker, and suspended next day for a short time.

He had entered Richmond College from McGuire's School for boys in 1901 when he was only fifteen. As editor-in-chief of the Messenger, campus magazine, he wrote articles on the affairs of the day as well as four short stories with the opera as their background. He obtained his A.B. degree from the University of Richmond in 1904 and was awarded a fellowship to Johns Hopkins University where in 1908 he received his Ph.D.

After graduation he worked on the Richmond Times-Dispatch for two years, and then served as secretary of the Virginia Tax Commission for two more years. In 1913 the Richmond News Leader called him as associate editor, and in 1915 he became editor although he was but twenty-nine years old. In this position he has exerted tremendous influence throughout the South. His task today has been to awaken the American people to the reality of their danger in the war. At the same time his calm and assuring voice on the news broadcasts over WRNL has helped them to take news of Allied reverses without hysteria.

Dr. Freeman's four volume biography of Robert E. Lee was published in 1934, but his interest in the Southern leader goes back to grammar school days. His father interested him in Lee then by telling him of the true experiences he had with the General in the Confederate Army. The South to Posterity was published in 1939, and at present Dr. Freeman is spending two hours each afternoon writing Lee's Lieutenants.

"How Dr. Freeman does so many things, wrote freshman Tucker, "possibly no one knows or ever will know." It may be explained somewhat by the motto which hangs beneath his office clock: "Time is irreplaceable," and which he follows by rising at 4:45 each morning to prepare his breakfast. He is at work on his editorials in the newspaper office before the city has begun to rub the sleep from its eyes. By 1:35 p.m. his newspaper work and radio broadcasts have been completed. After lunch he naps for half an hour, and then goes to his study at 3:30 to work on Lee's Lieutenants. Each night after dinner he listens to a half hour of symphonic music, and then after an hour's chat with his wife and his son James Douglas he goes to bed at 8:45.

Anyone troubled with insomnia should try a day like Dr. Freeman's as a sure cure.

Our Fighting Ships

Our Fighting Ships, an authentic and complete description of the ships in the United States Navy will soon come from Harper's press. It is the work of three young men, two of them alumni, Mitchell Katz, '37, and Edwin L. Levy, '38. They were joined in the work by Herbert Lee of Richmond.

Official U. S. Navy photographs will illustrate the book which the jacket description terms "the most complete picture of our Navy today, from mighty battleship to midget torpedo boat," and including aircraft carriers, destroyers, submarines, mine craft, patrol and district craft, auxiliary and miscellaneous craft. It includes also a comprehensive description of the United States Coast Guard.

Quoting further:

"Every class of vessel is introduced by a descriptive text explaining its tactical functions and characteristics, followed by a detailed outline of the number and size of guns mounted... tonnage... dates of keel laying, launching and commissioning, and complement carried... Uniforms, insignia and flags of our Navy are illustrated and ship nomenclature explained. Finally, there is an official statement of our naval policy and a complete index of every vessel in our Navy."

Since finishing his work on the book, Mike Katz, formerly a member of the News Leader advertising department, has joined the armed forces and is now an air cadet at Maxwell Field, Alabama. Ed Levy is in the printing business with his father in Richmond.
Fredericksburg

Morgan L. Combs, Jr., '39, is in the Naval Reserve and is awaiting his call to active service.

Dr. Claude Nunally, '27, already assigned to the Base Hospital out of Richmond, is awaiting his call. He will carry the commission of major.

The Rev. Horace L. Ford, '37, has been called to the pastorate of the Lawrenceville (Va.) Baptist Church.

MRS. CLARK M. BROWN, Secretary.

Philadelphia

A quiz program—with Student Pilot Lyle Graham as target for questions on professional football and Joe Macc as chief interrogator—was put on at the February meeting of Philadelphia Chapter of the University of Richmond Alumni. Graham, who was star center for the Philadelphia Eagles in 1941, is receiving his flying training at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

Mack, who is also seeking to enter the service, was accompanied by Mrs. Mack. Dr. Maude Woolfson, of the Westhampton faculty, was too sick to be present, but was unable to attend the meeting.

The newly elected president, Norwood G. Greene, was president, Dr. V. Carney Hargrove, retiring president, announced the invocation. Carlton Whitelatch led in the singing of school songs. The chairman of the program committee was Dr. Wilbur L. Manhane, while Mark Lutz was chairman of arrangements.

An exhibition of baton twirling was given by Miss Virginia Hilda Block, the "Miss All-America Girl" from Pleasantville High School. N. J. Mr. Greene announced that Miss Block may be a student at Westhampton College next fall. George Smith, Jr., a senior at Collinwood High School, assisted by Miss Helen Barry, a senior at Camden Catholic High School, gave a demonstration of legerdemain.

Recently elected officers for the Chapter are, in addition to Mr. Greene as president, Dr. Jacob Billikoff and Mrs. Marion Conley Smith, vice presidents; Mr. Lutz, secretary, and Mr. Whitelatch, treasurer.

From the Alumni Chapters
Necrology

Dr. George Braxton Taylor, '81, vice-president of the board of trustees of the University of Richmond, died in Roanoke on March 9 after a long illness.

Baptist congregations in Virginia were familiar with him through his several volumes on State Baptist Clergymen and through the Baptist Sunbeam Society which he founded for children 50 years ago. He did missionary work in Germany and Italy.

For 37 years he served as pastor of Enon, Troutville, and Cove Alum charges, and was at one time chaplain of Hollins College. He retired in August, 1940.

Dr. Joseph Frank Slade, '86, a Sussex County physician for many years, died on October 14 at his residence in Sussex County after the illness of a year.

Thomas B. Johnson, Jr., '89, for many years president of the Ellison and Hayes Coal Company, died on October 14, at the age of 74 at the residence of his sister, Mrs. William Elyson of Richmond.

The Rev. Lewis Dashiel Craddock, '93, who had been retired from the ministry two years, died on February 25 in Lynchburg following a lengthy illness.

Edmund Harvey Symonds, '95, government finance expert, died on December 29 at his home in Miami, Fla.

Extolled by Governor Colgate Darden as one who would be "greatly missed in the Senate," State Senator Robert Randolph Parker, '06, died on February 14 from a heart attack.

Entering the House of Delegates in 1924, he served until 1930. In 1936 he was elected to the State Senate from the Seventeenth district.

He had worked for some time as a member of the Insurance Commission of Virginia and the Judicial Court of Virginia. He also was a member of the Wise County School Board and the Virginia Advisory Legislative Council.

Gordon W. Kennerly, '27, who operated the Gordon W. Kimberly Horticultural Service in Richmond, died at the age of 55 on December 5.

Alumni Breakfast

Really, we've never had anything like it. Everybody said so. That breakfast for alumni attending the annual meeting of the Virginia Baptist General Association in Roanoke, February 24th, was a complete success! There were no formal speeches, no ulterior motives, not even a single card or envelope to be filled. We just got together for the "fun of it." Good fellowship and stronger ties of friendship between Virginia alumni and the University were the purposes, and certainly they were achieved in full measure.

It was Dr. Reuben Alley's idea, and he made himself wholly responsible for all the arrangements, and for its success or failure. Several alumni helped him sell the tickets and their cooperation was appreciated, but Editor Alley, of the Religious Herald, deserves individual honors for initiating and carrying through the idea of the breakfast in the interest of, and loyalty to, the University.

Of the 86 people present, ten were interested friends and visitors, and the others were loyal Spider preachers and laymen.

Dr. J. P. McCabe, Martinsville, was master of ceremonies, and after the meal he introduced President Boatwright who spoke briefly on the current session of the University and the future in terms of the effects of the war.

No one had to be urged to speak in appreciation of the service of our president, or in behalf of the University. Dr. Bob Caverlee, Fredericksburg, expressed the keen desire that such a gathering become an annual feature. Dr. Carter Helm Jones, perhaps the oldest alumnus present, spoke enthusiastically.

Dr. Sparks W. Mellon, Norfolk, told inimitably his story of Rastus and the dollar-a-minute horseback ride. Others who spoke were: Dr. J. H. Franklin, president of Crozer Theological Seminary, Dr. J. T. Edwards, a visitor from Culpeper, Rev. Ed Clark, Winchester, and President Curtis Bishop of Averett College. Upon motion by Dr. Dick Owens, Roanoke, the alumni sent greetings to Dr. George Braxton Taylor, who has since then succumbed to that illness.

Before the group adjourned Dr. Alley received a rising vote of thanks and asked to select a committee to assist him in arranging a similar gathering during the next session of the General Association.

Escape to Dansalan

On February 19th the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church at its headquarters in New York received the following cable from the Philippines: "Cable Mears, Clark, Abbitt salary Philippine National Bank Lanao Agency Dansalan."

It was signed by the Rev. Raymond E. Abbitt, '33, and was the first word from him since Manila fell into Japanese hands. On March 8th further assurance of his safety was contained in a cable received by his mother in Victoria, Va.

Dansalan, as explained by the National Council, is about seventy-five miles north of Upi in the hill country around Lake Lanao, a region thickly populated with Mohammedan Mosas, a warlike tribe which apparently had succeeded in holding off the Japanese invaders.

Time must wait the detailed telling of Abbitt's story, a story of the cruel interruption of his missionary labors at Labungan on the island of Mindanao. In his "Christmas greetings" from the Philippines he spoke enthusiastically of his work. But these letters, mailed in duplicate to friends in the United States, were mailed before the Jap attack at Pearl Harbor.

Raymond Abbitt went to the Philippines in 1940, soon after his graduation from the General Theological Seminary in New York City which he had entered two years earlier. (He had worked for several years in the Farm Land Bank in Baltimore before reaching his decision to enter the ministry.) His first station was at Sagada, in the province of Luzon, where he taught in the native seminary. There he was ordained into the priesthood.

With hopes high, he went last September to Labungan to begin his work at the Mission of St. Francis of Assisi. Then came the Japanese and his escape to Dansalan.

Pretty Patsy Garrett, Westhampton alumnus, is the Chesterfield lady who sings so sweetly for Fred Waring's orchestra and smiles at you from magazine, billboard, and newspaper advertising. She helped persuade Waring to write and dedicate to the University of Richmond the song "Fighting Spiders." It already has been played twice over a national network.
SHE'S PROUD OF HER K. P. DUTY!

TO TODAY'S American homemaker, K. P. duty is neither a penalty nor a joke. It's a privilege, a challenge, and her personal opportunity to build stronger, sturdier, healthier Americans so that final victory will be ours!

Her kitchen is a battlefront, her pantry a fort. She must plan diets and meals and menus with the skill and care of a General in combat. She knows that our greatest weapon is health, and that a well-balanced diet must build it!

This does not mean that she must have a lavish purse nor an extravagant food budget. On the contrary, adherence to certain good rules of daily diet often effects real savings.

Plan carefully, and in advance; select foods with an eye to nutritive values as well as appetite appeal; use the "Nutritional Yardstick" for a guide to foods to buy FIRST.

Cook carefully and curtail waste. Controlled, accurate Electrical heat is helpful in the retention of maximum vitamin and mineral values.

Our President says, "During these days of stress, the health problems of the military and civilian population are inseparable. Total defense demands manpower. The full energy of every American is needed."

Enlist now. Be proud of your K. P. duty!
